First Time In Support Of Vietnamese Troops

U.S. B52s Rain Bombs On Reds In Central Viet

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force B52 bombers flying for the first time in support of Vietnamese ground forces, dumped 500 tons of bombs today on suspected Communist positions in central Viet Nam.

Between 25 and 30 of the big jets flying 2,200 miles from Guam blasted the suspected area in the Mang Yang Pass, a key part of Route 19 stretching across central Viet Nam.

A major ground operation is reported underway along the route to clear out Viet Cong guerrillas and open the road to a supply convoy.

On the political front, the killing of a rebellious army colonel by government security forces raised fears of new demonstrations by South Viet Nam's Roman Catholics.

The Defense Ministry said Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, a Roman Catholic who led at least two unsuccessful coup attempts, "was ambushed by security forces and seriously wounded" in a forest near Bien Hoa Friday. It said he died of his wound while being flown to Saigon.

Thao had been the subject of an intensive manhunt. He was sentenced to death in absentia by a military tribunal on May 7.

Reliable sources had reported earlier that Thao was arrested in a Roman Catholic monastery in the Saigon suburb of Thu Duc. Bien Hoa is 20 miles northeast of Saigon.

Most of Thao's civilian and military followers were Catholics.

Roman Catholic charges of persecution by Buddhists in the government have sparked previous upheavals.

Official Vietnamese sources, however, believed that Thao had discredited himself in the abortive coup attempts and contended that little Catholic reaction to his death was likely.

Thao helped lead an attempted coup against former armed forces commander Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh last Sept. 13. This attempt failed, as did another on Feb. 19, largely through the intervention of Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, the current premier. Ky has had close relations with Buddhist leaders and is not popular with Catholics.

The colonel had been in hiding since the Feb. 19 attempt, in which he actually held Saigon for one day.

In the air action, the Guam based B52s dropped 500 tons of explosives on suspected Viet Cong positions in Mang Yang Pass, a key part of Route 19 stretching across central Viet Nam from the port of Qui Nhon to the central plateau city of Pleiku, the spokesman said.

The ground operation reportedly involved as many as 5,000 Vietnamese troops, who were clearing the road of Viet Cong and opening it to supply convoys.

The spokesman said the bombing "was carried out at the request of the government of Viet Nam in connection with ground operations being conducted in the area..."

It was the fourth announced U.S. Air Force B52 raid in South Viet Nam.

The spokesman said there was good weather over the target. The B52s normally bomb from a high altitude.

Asked why the giant bombers were used today, the spokesman said, "we wanted to get a real good pattern on the target we want to hit."

The so-called D zone, a Communist hideout in a thick jungle area about 25 miles north of Saigon, was the target of previous B52 raids.

Air strikes continued overnight against other targets inside South Viet Nam.

One—an attack by four U.S. Air Force F100s—was made 15 miles southwest of Saigon Airport, a spokesman said. That lo-

STAY ALIVE IN '65!

Pinned under an overturned convertible on Route 9 south of Salem early today, a 16-year-old Salem youth became Columbiana County's 19th traffic fatality for 1965 — the fifth so far this month.

Edward Konnerth of 954 New Garden St., Salem, died from a crushed chest and internal injuries in the mishap which occurred at 2:55 a.m. about three miles south of Salem, the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon reported.

Officers said Konnerth was a passenger in a car operated by Harrison Nicholson, 19, of Salem, who was headed north when he lost control on a curve.

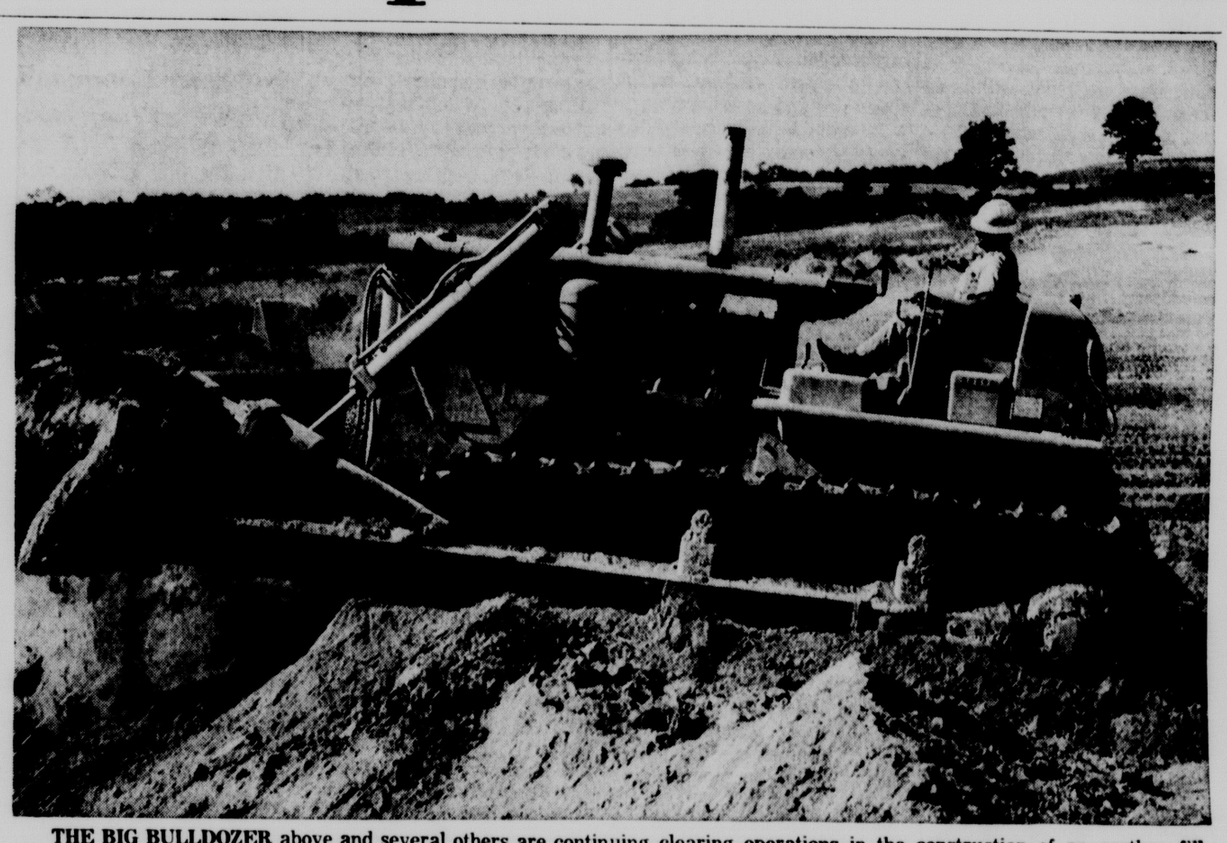
The 1958 convertible veered off the highway and overturned, landing on its top, trapping Nicholson, Konnerth and another passenger, James Joy, 21, of Salem, underneath.

All were taken to Salem City Hospital when freed from under the auto.

Nicholson escaped injury, the patrol said, but Joy received a sprained right elbow.

The death marked the 19th road fatality this year in the county, compared with 12 at this time last year.

Officers said the crash is still under investigation.



THE BIG BULLDOZER above and several others are continuing clearing operations in the construction of an earthen fill dam which will create a 170-acre lake in the Highlandtown Wildlife Area. Conference Committee Action Due

2 Key Points Still Remain As House OK's Strip Bill

By WILLIAM S. VANCE
Review Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The 5½-month battle over legislation to toughen Ohio's strip mine law moves into its final round next week.

Unanimous House passage of the heavily-amended Senate bill Friday left two key points to be resolved by a conference committee.

Sen. Edmund A. Sargus, D-Belmont, chief sponsor of the bill, said he will insist that the Senate refuse to concur in House amendments and ask for appointment of a conference committee.

SARGUS was angered by what he termed a "sneaky amendment" in the House which yanked two teeth from the bill which he had managed to salvage on the Senate floor last month.

One of the provisions would have given the chief of the forestry-reclamation division authority to deny mining licenses if he had probable cause to believe the area could not be reclaimed.

Sargus learned just prior to the House vote that the same amendment struck from the bill the chief's authority to double the performance bond if necessary to accomplish reclamation.

Both of these provisions had been knocked out of the bill during Senate committee hearings, but were restored on the Senate floor.

THE AMENDMENT which removed them again was adopted by the House Mines and Natural Resources Committee. The effect of the amendment was not generally known at the time.

Rep. Ralph E. Fisher, R-Wayne, author of another strip mine bill — parts of which were tailored into Sargus' measure—told newsmen he considered the "probable cause" provisions "worthless."

He was quoted as saying last week that the bill still retained the double bond authority. Friday he said the engrossed bill which came from the Senate did not contain that authority.

Rep. A. G. Lancione, D-Belmont, House minority leader, said during floor debate that both the probable cause and bond provisions "were approved by a subcommittee of the House."

"I would call it to your attention," he said, "that they were deleted by the full committee on the strength of a statement that these were agreed amendments. The Senate is going to insist on their reinsertion."

HOUSE action on the bill came after more than an hour of explanation by Fisher and other co-sponsors and party-line rejection of three proposed amendments.

The amendments, offered by Rep. Anthony J. Russo, D-Cuyahoga, would have increased penalties against "bootleg" or unlicensed operators, made the mineral rights owner jointly liable for illegal mining and increased fees from $15 to $20 an acre.

Major provisions of the bill, as passed by the House, would:

Increase the performance bond from $220 to $300 an acre, raising the minimum bond from $1,000 to $2,000.

Increase the license fee from $50 to $75.

Require reclamation of areas scarred by prospecting for coal deposits as well as for actual strip mining.

Permit license denials in areas where damage from stream siltation cannot be prevented.

Re-establish the reclamation fund for deposit of all license and acreage fees.

Require grading of spoil

Last-Ditch Effort

Cloud Offers New Ohio Plan On Apportionment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Speaker Roger Cloud, R-Logan, has submitted a new apportionment plan in a last-ditch effort to get legislative approval before the current session ends.

The proposal, involving both the Ohio House and Senate, was offered at a "skeleton session" before the legislature adjourned Friday for the weekend.

Cloud said the resolution in the form of an amendment to the Ohio Constitution probably would be sent to the House floor next week by the Rules Committee without hearings.

Minority Leader A. G. Lancione, D-Belmont, said House Democrats also planned to submit a plan of their own next week.

Across the Statehouse, Sen. Robin T. Turner, R-Seneca, said the Senate Civil Service and Elections committee, would open hearings Tuesday on still another proposal. He said the plan would be pulled together Monday with or without Democratic help.

"The feeling seems to be that there is common ground," Turner said.

If all the proposals are offered, it would boost the total pending in both houses to 17.

With some leaders predicting an end of working sessions next weeks, the time appears short for agreement on a substitute for the republican plan defeated by voters in the May primary election.

A three-judge federal court has ordered reapportionment of the Ohio House in line with U.S. Supreme Court "one man, one vote" edicts. The federal judges indicated they would do the job if it wasn't accomplished this year.

Earlier apportionment proposals have remained dormant in the legislature because party leaders said they saw no chance of adoption.

Approval requires 83 votes in the House and 20 in the Senate to place the constitutional amendment issue on election ballots for final decision by voters. The Senate is split 16-16 between Democrats and Republicans.

Cloud's new plan would di-

Hunt Goes On For Body Of River Victim

The body of a 19-year-old Canton youth who drowned in the Ohio River off Wellsville Thursday night still has not been located.

Fire Chief Robert Lewis said the dragging operations were halted Friday night after the area pointed out as the spot where Mike Gallagher went down had been covered thoroughly with no results.

Civil Defense volunteers took up the search this morning.

Two area divers were called in Friday afternoon about 4:30 and remained until dark. Several boats and volunteers aided in the search.

The youth and a companion, Robert Bowen, 18, also of Canton, were attempting to swim the river. Bowen was rescued.

Lisbon Man Wounded

LISBON — George B. Brown, 42, of R.D. 3 was treated at Salem City Hospital Friday night for a bullet wound of the right foot suffered while target practicing. Sheriff's deputies said Brown's gun shy dogs bumped him as he fired a shot, and the bullet struck his toes.

Drought Area Appeals For Federal Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A portion of the thirsty Northeast, hit by the worst drought in its history, appealed Friday for designation as a federal disaster area.

New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes asked the status for his own state plus part of New York, parts of Pennsylvania and southern New England.

Hughes made five other recommendations as he met with the Federal Water Resources Council.

President Johnson has given the Cabinet-level council a Tuesday deadline in its quest for answers to the Northeast's water shortage.

Hughes said the disaster tag would pave the way for emergency assistance from federal agencies.

Although the council meeting was closed, a staff member said it was considering emergency drilling of wells plus the trans-

Street Resurfacing Will Begin At Chester

Chester's summer street resurfacing program will begin Monday, with the Lawrenceville road scheduled to be closed to traffic during the day.

Mayor Harry Abrams said the road will be closed from Route 30 to the city limits from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The summer project will be handled by the Ohio Tar & Asphalt Co. of Canton, whose bid of $9,807.75 was accepted by Chester Council. The sum of $822.50 has been allotted for the Lawrenceville road work.

The Canton firm will continue resurfacing of other streets during the remainder of the week.

Speculation Mounts Over Soviet Rocket

Hint Reds Testing Super Booster For Manned Moon Shot

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet accounts of a powerful new rocket used to put a spaceship with a 26,896-pound payload into orbit roused speculation today that the Russians are testing a super booster for a manned moon shot.

The new space station called Proton-1 was lofted Friday. First reports said it was the biggest payload ever hurled into space. But Tass indicated that the boosting rocket was the key factor in the experiment.

The American Titan 3C rocket with a thrust of 2.65 million pounds orbited a satellite with a dummy payload weighing about 21,000 pounds last month.

The U.S. satellite was attached to the second stage of the rocket bringing the total weight to 32,347 pounds. The two sections separated after six hours.

American scientists noted, however, that the Soviet satellite had no rocket attached. They estimated that if a rocket had been attached, the total weight would have been about 40,000 pounds.

A British space expert said in London there was little doubt that the new Soviet rocket is intended for spacecraft capable of sending men to the moon.

Kenneth Gatland, vice president of the British Interplanetary Society, also said there was little doubt the Soviets intend to use the rocket for construction of a manned space station.

"This," he said, "is the booster we have been expecting the

2 Midland Residents Hurt As Car Wrecks

Two Midland residents escaped serious injury early this morning after their car got out of control on a curve five miles west of Aliquippa on Green Garden Rd.

Lewis D. Kruel, 21, of 80 Midland Ave., the driver, and Regis A. Schulte, 20, of Ohio Ave. were treated at the Aliquippa hospital, Kruel for a possible fracture of the nose and Schulte for lacerations of the right arm and head.

Chippewa Barracks of the Pennsylvania state police said the Kruel auto was traveling east when it failed to negotiate a curve, left the road and went over an embankment. Damage was estimated at $800 to the convertible.

Queen Crowning Tonight

Lisbon Program To Begin Tonight

LISBON — The community's Railroad Centennial opens tonight with 21 district young women competing in a beauty and talent event for the title of "Miss Railroad Queen."

The week-long observance of the 100th anniversary of the first railroad train through the town will conclude July 25 with a Grand Civil War encampment and battle re-enactment at the County Fairgrounds.

Tonight's program also includes an old-fashioned costume ball at the Floral Hall at the Fairgrounds at 9 p.m.

The beauty pageant is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and includes girls from Lisbon, West Point, East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, Columbiana and Salem.

Tom Kastner will be master of ceremonies for the event to be held at 6 p.m. at the Fairgrounds grandstand.

Candidates will appear in sportswear during the talent phase of the program and later will appear in evening gowns. Prizes will be awarded the queen and four attendants selected by five judges.

The queen and court will appear at the ball at 10 p.m.

The schedule for the rest of the centennial includes dedication of the new post office Sunday afternoon, with Rep. Wayne L. Hays, 18th District Congressman, taking part.

The Lions Club street fair will open Wednesday, continuing each afternoon and evening through Saturday. The Kiwanis Club's annual chicken barbecue will be held Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 4 to 8 p.m. at Willow Grove Park.

The 50th anniversary of the Morgan Drugstore will be observed Friday when the headquarters for the Civil War groups will be established at the Fairgrounds.

Saturday's program calls for the arrival of some 800 Civil War soldiers, a band concert at the Square, a parade of the troops at 6 p.m. and arrival of a steam locomotive to take part in the battle re-enactment.

A special train from northern Ohio will arrive Sunday for the Fairgrounds program.

The Old Stone House on Washington St. will be open for visitors during the week.

Air Too Thin For Earth Life

2 More Photos Of Mars Will Be Released Today

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The world gets a look today at the second and and third pictures taken of Mars by Mariner 4, the amazing U.S. spacecraft which also found that planet's atmosphere too thin for any form of earth life.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials said the photographs, snapped as the 575-pound spacecraft swung past Mars Wednesday at the climax of a 7½-month voyage, would be released to news media at noon. The officials gave no hint of what the photographs showed.

Picture No. 1, released Thursday night, contained the bare outlines of an earth-like desert bordered by smudges that might possibly be vegetation. Taken at an altitude of 10,500 miles, it showed surface markings as small as three miles in diameter — far sharper than is possible with earth telescopes.

As picture No. 3 was coming Friday, laboratory scientists told a news conference that Mariner 4 had helped them determine that Mars' atmosphere at the surface is about as thin as earth's at a height of 90,000 to 100,000 feet.

"Men landing there certainly would have to wear space suits," said Dr. William H. Pickering, laboratory director. "But when you consider the amazing complexity and variety of life forms on earth, you can't exclude the possibility that some other kinds might have evolved on Mars."

Scientists who measured the gradual fading of signals coming through Mars' atmosphere as Mariner 4 swung behind the planet calculated it extends no more than eight miles above the surface. Earth's blanket of air is more than 20 miles deep.

They said the measurements also indicated Mars' atmosphere is one to two per cent as dense as earth's. Earlier esti-

35-Mile Limit Posted On St. Clair Stretch

Speed limit signs have been posted on St. Clair Ave. and a warning was issued today by Safety - Service Director Robert Vodrey against speeding.

The new street has been posted at 35 miles an hour, the director said. He pointed out radar signs also have been erected and police have been directed to enforce the speed limit.

Some motorists already have been arrested for speeding on the new section and Municipal Judge Samuel Chertoff declared in court this week he will do all within his jurisdiction to keep the street from becoming a "speedway."

2 Key Points Still Remain As House OK's Strip Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The 5½-month battle over legislation to toughen Ohio's strip mine law moves into its final round next week.

The U.S. satellite was attached to the second stage of the rocket bringing the total weight to 32,347 pounds. The two sections separated after six hours.

American scientists noted, however, that the Soviet satellite had no rocket attached. They estimated that if a rocket had been attached, the total weight would have been about 40,000 pounds.

A British space expert said in London there was little doubt that the new Soviet rocket is intended for spacecraft capable of sending men to the moon.

Kenneth Gatland, vice president of the British Interplanetary Society, also said there was little doubt the Soviets intend to use the rocket for construction of a manned space station.

"This," he said, "is the booster we have been expecting the

2 Midland Residents Hurt As Car Wrecks

Two Midland residents escaped serious injury early this morning after their car got out of control on a curve five miles west of Aliquippa on Green Garden Rd.

Lewis D. Kruel, 21, of 80 Midland Ave., the driver, and Regis A. Schulte, 20, of Ohio Ave. were treated at the Aliquippa hospital, Kruel for a possible fracture of the nose and Schulte for lacerations of the right arm and head.

Chippewa Barracks of the Pennsylvania state police said the Kruel auto was traveling east when it failed to negotiate a curve, left the road and went over an embankment. Damage was estimated at $800 to the convertible.

Queen Crowning Tonight

Lisbon Program To Begin Tonight

LISBON — The community's Railroad Centennial opens tonight with 21 district young women competing in a beauty and talent event for the title of "Miss Railroad Queen."

The week-long observance of the 100th anniversary of the first railroad train through the town will conclude July 25 with a Grand Civil War encampment and battle re-enactment at the County Fairgrounds.

Tonight's program also includes an old-fashioned costume ball at the Floral Hall at the Fairgrounds at 9 p.m.

The beauty pageant is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and includes girls from Lisbon, West Point, East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, Columbiana and Salem.

Tom Kastner will be master of ceremonies for the event to be held at 6 p.m. at the Fairgrounds grandstand.

Candidates will appear in sportswear during the talent phase of the program and later will appear in evening gowns. Prizes will be awarded the queen and four attendants selected by five judges.

The queen and court will appear at the ball at 10 p.m.

The schedule for the rest of the centennial includes dedication of the new post office Sunday afternoon, with Rep. Wayne L. Hays, 18th District Congressman, taking part.

The Lions Club street fair will open Wednesday, continuing each afternoon and evening through Saturday. The Kiwanis Club's annual chicken barbecue will be held Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 4 to 8 p.m. at Willow Grove Park.

The 50th anniversary of the Morgan Drugstore will be observed Friday when the headquarters for the Civil War groups will be established at the Fairgrounds.

Saturday's program calls for the arrival of some 800 Civil War soldiers, a band concert at the Square, a parade of the troops at 6 p.m. and arrival of a steam locomotive to take part in the battle re-enactment.

A special train from northern Ohio will arrive Sunday for the Fairgrounds program.

The Old Stone House on Washington St. will be open for visitors during the week.

Air Too Thin For Earth Life

2 More Photos Of Mars Will Be Released Today

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The world gets a look today at the second and and third pictures taken of Mars by Mariner 4, the amazing U.S. spacecraft which also found that planet's atmosphere too thin for any form of earth life.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials said the photographs, snapped as the 575-pound spacecraft swung past Mars Wednesday at the climax of a 7½-month voyage, would be released to news media at noon. The officials gave no hint of what the photographs showed.

Picture No. 1, released Thursday night, contained the bare outlines of an earth-like desert bordered by smudges that might possibly be vegetation. Taken at an altitude of 10,500 miles, it showed surface markings as small as three miles in diameter — far sharper than is possible with earth telescopes.

As picture No. 3 was coming Friday, laboratory scientists told a news conference that Mariner 4 had helped them determine that Mars' atmosphere at the surface is about as thin as earth's at a height of 90,000 to 100,000 feet.

"Men landing there certainly would have to wear space suits," said Dr. William H. Pickering, laboratory director. "But when you consider the amazing complexity and variety of life forms on earth, you can't exclude the possibility that some other kinds might have evolved on Mars."

Scientists who measured the gradual fading of signals coming through Mars' atmosphere as Mariner 4 swung behind the planet calculated it extends no more than eight miles above the surface. Earth's blanket of air is more than 20 miles deep.

They said the measurements also indicated Mars' atmosphere is one to two per cent as dense as earth's. Earlier esti-

John Beadnell of Foundry Hill, Salineville, filed today at the County Election Board as a nonpartisan candidate for mayor at Salineville.

Beadnell, 35, a maintenance man at the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co., served two previous terms on Council. He is a former strip mine augur operator, an Army veteran and is married and has three sons.

35-Mile Limit Posted On St. Clair Stretch

Speed limit signs have been posted on St. Clair Ave. and a warning was issued today by Safety - Service Director Robert Vodrey against speeding.

The new street has been posted at 35 miles an hour, the director said. He pointed out radar signs also have been erected and police have been directed to enforce the speed limit.

Some motorists already have been arrested for speeding on the new section and Municipal Judge Samuel Chertoff declared in court this week he will do all within his jurisdiction to keep the street from becoming a "speedway."

Assembly Nears End Of Session

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 106th General Assembly will speed to an end next week if Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-Miami, has his way.

Gray announced Friday as the assembly ended its 26th work week that "every effort will be made" to conclude the session by Friday.

Other leaders were not so optimistic. They pointed to major proposals awaiting action, including public education subsidies, legislation to ban discrimination in housing, legislative reapportionment, and a bill to permit restricted sale of liquor on Sunday.

New proposals to reapportion the Ohio House in line with the U. S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" edict will be offered Monday in both the House and Senate. The Senate will resume hearings Tuesday in the hope of coming up with a substitute for the one defeated by voters in the May 4 primary.

The education bill, passed Thursday by the House, will be considered further by the Senate Education Committee. Committee Chairman Oakley C. Collins, R-Lawrence, said the committee will take a hard look at the proposal which earmarks $625 million for schools in the next two years.

Collins said the record-high appropriation for education should be boosted about $20 million for hard-pressed districts. He also envisioned possible changes to bring about better financial equalization.

A widely amended bill to tighten state control over strip mining cleared the house without dissent Friday but Senate sponsors predicted it will wind up in a joint committee.

The House accepted Senate amendments and sent to the governor bills empowering counties to create regional transit authorities and lowering from 15 to 10 years the service requirement for county employes to receive three weeks of vacation.

The lower chamber also completed pasage of measures conveying land for highway construction near Massillon State Hospital and regulating companies dealing with second mortgages under $15,000 for debt consolidation.

Senators approved 24-1 a House proposal to revise state conservancy district laws with Sen. Charles H. Jones, R-Butler, dissenting.

The measure requires districts to file a development plan no longer than two years after their creation and to conduct projects in all counties to be affected. The bill also prohibits interference by conservancy districts with the water rights of municipal corporations.

Other bills approved by the weights and measures in line with federal standards, permit municipalities to annex park lands, and classify the writing of bad checks as misdemeanors to conform with most city ordinances.

Passage was completed in the upper chamber of bills changing Ohio's parking brake statute to conform with the national uniform vehicle code and revising the formula for support payments for patients in benevolent institutions.

Project On Lisbon St. May Be Aired Monday

An ordinance to clear the way for a major improvement on Lisbon St., given first reading July 7, may be presented for second reading at City Council's session Monday night at 8.

Final enactment of the legislation was delayed at the July 7 session when Councilman Donald Smith questioned the State Highway Department's requirements for future parking regulations if it cooperates in the resurfacing and widening of the stretch between W. 8th St. and the city limits.

Council will meet in caucus at 7 with representatives of the city employes union, Local 677, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. The union's requests for fringe benefits will be discussed.

Crews Finish 100 Miles Of Road Project

County crews have completed work on the first 100 miles of a summer road program totaling 160 miles in all, County Engineer John Ursu said today at Lisbon.

The completed work includes oiling of about 30 miles of highways and sea' - coating of approximately 70 miles, the engineer said. The entire project covers township roads and the list of roads was set up by trustees in each township.

The crews have just completed work on blacktop resurfacing of the Calcutta -Smiths Ferry Rd., heavily used by many East Liverpool workers traveling back and forth to jobs at the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. The stretch is approximately 2½ miles in length. It was given a new surface of blacktop approximately three inches deep. The work has been completed except for raising the berms to the level of the new pavement.

Ursu pointed out that each township receives an annual county allocation of $100 for each mile of township roads, to be used for maintenance and construction work. In addition, the county furnishes men and equipment for the projects, equivalent to another $300 to $400 per mile.

The work is concerned entirely with township roads in such projects as seal coating and treating. The allocation is in addition to the regular township funds utilized for highway purposes.

Columbiana County is one of only three of Ohio's 88 counties which allocate funds in such a manner to aid townships in their road work, he added.

Ursu emphasized that township roads are the primary responsibility of the trustees and the township highway departments. He said he is directly in charge of 150 miles of county highways, in addition to the work performed in cooperation with the trustees.

The engineer said his department is completing work on replacement of a bridge at Gavers, also on a township road. The work will cost an estimated $3,000, he said. The county intends to replace other inadequate structures at the rate of one every two or three weeks.

Ursu said he also is attempting to build up a fund so that matching money will be available for projects under the so-called federal aid secondary highway program.

The $800,000 rebuilding of St. Clair Ave. is an example of a federal aid secondary program, under which the U. S. provides half the funds for an improvement.

In order to take advantage of the federal money, the county must apply for projects and then have matching funds available when the U. S. approves a project, he explained.

Other examples of prospective federal aid projects in Columbiana County are the Knox School Rd., near Salem, and the Depot Rd.

Fate Of 300 Unknown When Volcano Erupts

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP)—Mount Langla, a 4,000-foot volcano on an island in the trust territory of New Guinea, erupted violently today.

The fate of 300 villagers living within five miles of the mountain was unknown.

The volcano shot a stream of molten rocks, ash and smoke 12,000 feet high. The flare from the summit could be seen from the New Guinea mainland, 60 miles south.

An airline pilot who circled the column of spiralling ash reported a stream of lava was moving toward the villages of Sag Sag and Agulupella.

A government spokesman said, however, the villages probably were safe.

cation would place it just outside Cholon, the big Chinese enclave that makes up part of the capital.

The spokesman said the strike was the nearest to Saigon by jet planes to date. Pilots used rockets, cannon fire and 750-pound bombs, the spokesman said, adding that intelligence sources estimated a large number of Viet Cong were killed in the vicinity of a guerrilla encampment. He said a forward air controller reported 30 buildings were destroyed, eight damaged and 10 guns destroyed. There were no other details.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes struck at a wide range of targets in North Viet Nam, including port facilities, bridges, a radar site, trucking, a ferry slip, an air field, army barracks and warehouses, the spokesman said.

No American planes were reported lost and the spokesman sighted today.

Assistance Command Asks U.S. Troop Boost

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The U.S. Military Assistance Command recommended to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara today that American Forces in South Viet Nam be increased.

Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester said the Assistance Command had presented a staff study ot McNamara suggesting a specific number of reinforcements. He declined to elaborate on the number.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government requested a hike in U.S. troop strength Friday.

Asked if the Vietnamese request compared in magnitude with the U.S. military recommendation, a U.S. Embassy spokesman, Barry Zorthian, replied: "The figures are in the same ball park."

Friday, Sylvester said the Vietnamese had presented their request in terms of force levels without asking for a specific number of troops and that McNamara had not made any commitment.

It also was reported that a rise in U.S. troop strength was being considered as part of an over-all buildup that would include induction of 100,000 Vietnamese recruits.

This would bring the Vietnamese armed forces to well over 600,000 men. American armed forces in Viet Nam now number somewhat less than 75,000.

The recommendations, Zorthian said, were "designed to meet the urgencies of the present situation."

He declined comment on a Vietnamese press report that in the Friday talks the Saigon government had asked for 100,000 more U.S. combat troops.

Sylvester said that earlier Defense Department announcements indicated there already were about 83,000 U.S. servicemen either in Viet Nam or on the way eventually. Current discussions have to do with additional forces.

The final recommendation to McNamara reportedly will boil down to a figure close to the 179,000 disclosed in an Associated Press Washington story Thursday as having been recommended by the joint chiefs of staff.

McNamara, however, has denied any such recommendation.

The secretary spent most of the day at U.S. military headquarters in Saigon being briefed on the military situation by top U.S. officers. There were no conferences with Vietnamese.

McNamara's formal briefings in Saigon ended today, and he was scheduled to spend Sunday and Monday on field trips around Viet Nam. The places he intended to visit were not disclosed because of security reasons.

McNamara and his party were scheduled to meet top Vietnamese leaders including Premier Ky, at a dinner given tonight by retiring Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

SUMMER AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Surprising though it may seem, summer with its sunshine and showers, is just about the most critical time of the year for owners of septic tanks.

To correctly understand the aforementioned statement it is first necessary to anyalyze the workings of septic tanks, and the effect of seasonal changes.

Your septic tank is a chamber wherein exists a complex of micro - organisms, each type equipped to handle and dispose of different types of waste material. Working as a team, these infinitesimal forms of life break down and liquefy the solids, leaving only a liquid which is free to run out for final disposal in your drainfield or drywell. Regularly activated, these living "garbage disposals" will normally keep up with the flow of waste, and your system will function properly. However, surveys show that during the summer season, more systems "back-up" and overflow than at any other time of year, creating expensive and highly unsanitary conditions.

WHY? ? ?

The answer to that question is simply "temperature". Bacterial life dislikes temperature changes, and, since your septic tank has no heating system to keep things cozy so that they can go about their work in comfort, they die off in the millions and billions when winter arives, leaving only a "Skeleton crew" of weakened bacteria to handle the heavy loads. Consequently, as winter months pass slowly by, a build-up of undigested grease and solids occurs, clogging the tank and passing through to the disposal fields. Grease congeals and deposits in the pores of the soil, almost to the point of being beyond repair. Melting ice, snow, and showers add to the problem by increasing the amount of water entering the system.

How Sea-Cal Enzymes Help

The powerful digestive powers of the enzymes contained in SEA-CAL rapidly liquefy the hard grease packs in the septic tanks and drainfields, changing such grease and other solids into available food for the bacteria. SEA-CAL also contains 80,000,000 anerobic bacteria per gram (28 grams in each ounce), and with each bacteria reproducing itself many times a day, the micro-organism population is rapidly built up to the adequate numbers, with the ultimate return of full operating efficiency.

Project On Lisbon St. May Be Aired Monday

An ordinance to clear the way for a major improvement on Lisbon St., given first reading July 7, may be presented for second reading at City Council's session Monday night at 8.

Final enactment of the legislation was delayed at the July 7 session when Councilman Donald Smith questioned the State Highway Department's requirements for future parking regulations if it cooperates in the resurfacing and widening of the stretch between W. 8th St. and the city limits.

Council will meet in caucus at 7 with representatives of the city employes union, Local 677, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. The union's requests for fringe benefits will be discussed.

Crews Finish 100 Miles Of Road Project

County crews have completed work on the first 100 miles of a summer road program totaling 160 miles in all, County Engineer John Ursu said today at Lisbon.

The completed work includes oiling of about 30 miles of highways and sea' - coating of approximately 70 miles, the engineer said. The entire project covers township roads and the list of roads was set up by trustees in each township.

The crews have just completed work on blacktop resurfacing of the Calcutta -Smiths Ferry Rd., heavily used by many East Liverpool workers traveling back and forth to jobs at the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. The stretch is approximately 2½ miles in length. It was given a new surface of blacktop approximately three inches deep. The work has been completed except for raising the berms to the level of the new pavement.

Ursu pointed out that each township receives an annual county allocation of $100 for each mile of township roads, to be used for maintenance and construction work. In addition, the county furnishes men and equipment for the projects, equivalent to another $300 to $400 per mile.

The work is concerned entirely with township roads in such projects as seal coating and treating. The allocation is in addition to the regular township funds utilized for highway purposes.

Columbiana County is one of only three of Ohio's 88 counties which allocate funds in such a manner to aid townships in their road work, he added.

Ursu emphasized that township roads are the primary responsibility of the trustees and the township highway departments. He said he is directly in charge of 150 miles of county highways, in addition to the work performed in cooperation with the trustees.

The engineer said his department is completing work on replacement of a bridge at Gavers, also on a township road. The work will cost an estimated $3,000, he said. The county intends to replace other inadequate structures at the rate of one every two or three weeks.

Ursu said he also is attempting to build up a fund so that matching money will be available for projects under the so-called federal aid secondary highway program.

The $800,000 rebuilding of St. Clair Ave. is an example of a federal aid secondary program, under which the U. S. provides half the funds for an improvement.

In order to take advantage of the federal money, the county must apply for projects and then have matching funds available when the U. S. approves a project, he explained.

Other examples of prospective federal aid projects in Columbiana County are the Knox School Rd., near Salem, and the Depot Rd.

Fate Of 300 Unknown When Volcano Erupts

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP)—Mount Langla, a 4,000-foot volcano on an island in the trust territory of New Guinea, erupted violently today.

The fate of 300 villagers living within five miles of the mountain was unknown.

The volcano shot a stream of molten rocks, ash and smoke 12,000 feet high. The flare from the summit could be seen from the New Guinea mainland, 60 miles south.

An airline pilot who circled the column of spiralling ash reported a stream of lava was moving toward the villages of Sag Sag and Agulupella.

A government spokesman said, however, the villages probably were safe.

cation would place it just outside Cholon, the big Chinese enclave that makes up part of the capital.

The spokesman said the strike was the nearest to Saigon by jet planes to date. Pilots used rockets, cannon fire and 750-pound bombs, the spokesman said, adding that intelligence sources estimated a large number of Viet Cong were killed in the vicinity of a guerrilla encampment. He said a forward air controller reported 30 buildings were destroyed, eight damaged and 10 guns destroyed. There were no other details.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes struck at a wide range of targets in North Viet Nam, including port facilities, bridges, a radar site, trucking, a ferry slip, an air field, army barracks and warehouses, the spokesman said.

No American planes were reported lost and the spokesman sighted today.

Assistance Command Asks U.S. Troop Boost

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The U.S. Military Assistance Command recommended to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara today that American Forces in South Viet Nam be increased.

Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester said the Assistance Command had presented a staff study ot McNamara suggesting a specific number of reinforcements. He declined to elaborate on the number.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government requested a hike in U.S. troop strength Friday.

Asked if the Vietnamese request compared in magnitude with the U.S. military recommendation, a U.S. Embassy spokesman, Barry Zorthian, replied: "The figures are in the same ball park."

Friday, Sylvester said the Vietnamese had presented their request in terms of force levels without asking for a specific number of troops and that McNamara had not made any commitment.

It also was reported that a rise in U.S. troop strength was being considered as part of an over-all buildup that would include induction of 100,000 Vietnamese recruits.

This would bring the Vietnamese armed forces to well over 600,000 men. American armed forces in Viet Nam now number somewhat less than 75,000.

The recommendations, Zorthian said, were "designed to meet the urgencies of the present situation."

He declined comment on a Vietnamese press report that in the Friday talks the Saigon government had asked for 100,000 more U.S. combat troops.

Sylvester said that earlier Defense Department announcements indicated there already were about 83,000 U.S. servicemen either in Viet Nam or on the way eventually. Current discussions have to do with additional forces.

The final recommendation to McNamara reportedly will boil down to a figure close to the 179,000 disclosed in an Associated Press Washington story Thursday as having been recommended by the joint chiefs of staff.

McNamara, however, has denied any such recommendation.

The secretary spent most of the day at U.S. military headquarters in Saigon being briefed on the military situation by top U.S. officers. There were no conferences with Vietnamese.

McNamara's formal briefings in Saigon ended today, and he was scheduled to spend Sunday and Monday on field trips around Viet Nam. The places he intended to visit were not disclosed because of security reasons.

McNamara and his party were scheduled to meet top Vietnamese leaders including Premier Ky, at a dinner given tonight by retiring Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

His wife, Mrs. Doris Arnold, also is a teacher. She was graduated from Otterbein College in 1948. They have two sons, Tim, 5, and Tom, 8, a student at Pleasant Heights School. Arnold served three years in the Air Force in World War II, including 20 months in Africa and Italy. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge in Bellville and the First Methodist Church here.

Earlier entrants in the school board race were Harry D. McConville of Ross Meadows and Mrs. Nessie R. Dunlop of Highland Colony, whose terms expire at the end of 1965, and Richard Keith Wolfe of Peake St., a clerk in the cold strip accounting office at the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co.

Taylor has served as Municipal Court bailiff since Judge Samuel M. Chertoff assumed office in 1960. A resident of Liverpool Township virtually all his life, he formerly was employed 21 years in the transportation department at Crucible.

Taylor served 36 months in the Seabees in World War II, including 28 months in the Aleutian Islands with the 45th Construction Battalion.

Married and the father of three, he is a member of the Moose Lodge and the Second Church of Christ. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have one grandchild.

Earlier entrants in the trustee race were two incumbents whose terms run out at the end of the year—Guy Digman of LaCroft and Richard Sanford of Dixonville.

The other new nonpartisan candidates are Howard Goddard, for trustee of public affairs at Salineville, and Howard D. Evans and Dale E. Young, both for the Board of Education in the Columbiana Exempted Village School District.

Donald L. Harrold filed today for the Board of Education of the Leetonia School District.

The latest filings brought to 68 the number now filed for nonpartisan seats in townships, school districts and villages under 2,000 population.

The deadline is Aug. 4.

SUMMER AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Surprising though it may seem, summer with its sunshine and showers, is just about the most critical time of the year for owners of septic tanks.

To correctly understand the aforementioned statement it is first necessary to anyalyze the workings of septic tanks, and the effect of seasonal changes.

Your septic tank is a chamber wherein exists a complex of micro - organisms, each type equipped to handle and dispose of different types of waste material. Working as a team, these infinitesimal forms of life break down and liquefy the solids, leaving only a liquid which is free to run out for final disposal in your drainfield or drywell. Regularly activated, these living "garbage disposals" will normally keep up with the flow of waste, and your system will function properly. However, surveys show that during the summer season, more systems "back-up" and overflow than at any other time of year, creating expensive and highly unsanitary conditions.

WHY? ? ? '

The answer to that question is simply "temperature". Bacterial life dislikes temperature changes, and, since your septic tank has no heating system to keep things cozy so that they can go about their work in comfort, they die off in the millions and billions when winter arives, leaving only a "Skeleton crew" of weakened bacteria to handle the heavy loads. Consequently, as winter months pass slowly by, a build-up of undigested grease and solids occurs, clogging the tank and passing through to the disposal fields. Grease congeals and deposits in the pores of the soil, almost to the point of being beyond repair. Melting ice, snow, and showers add to the problem by increasing the amount of water entering the system.

How Sea-Cal Enzymes Help

The powerful digestive powers of the enzymes contained in SEA-CAL rapidly liquefy the hard grease packs in the septic tanks and drainfields, changing such grease and other solids into available food for the bacteria. SEA-CAL also contains 80,000,000 anerobic bacteria per gram (28 grams in each ounce), and with each bacteria reproducing itself many times a day, the micro-organism population is rapidly built up to the adequate numbers, with the ultimate return of full operating efficiency.

Police Seek Car Which Rammed 2 Autos In Chester

Area police today remained on the alert for a car involved in a hit-run mishap on Route 30 in Chester late Firday night.

A 1956 sedan driven by Mark Allen Rydell, 37, of 607 Bridge St., East Liverpool, and a 1962 station wagon operated by Caroline Wright, 47, of Hookstown were both struck by an unidentified vehicle about midnight Friday on the Route 30 hill adjacent to Rock Springs Park just inside the city limits, Chester police said.

Rydell's car was damaged in the rear, and the Wright vehicle on the front and side. Kenneth Williams, special patrolman who investigated, estimated damages to the Rydell and Wright autos of $300 and $800, respectively.

The unidentified car, which was heading down the hill towards Chester, continued on its way despite heavy damage it sustained.

Alerts were broadcast to area police to be on the lookout for the fleeing auto.

Local Youth Achieves Honors In Air Force

Airman 3 C Ronald Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine V. Barrett of 8th Ave., LaCroft, was one of 60 judged to be the "Honor Flight" from a group of 800 during Air Force basic indoctrination training at Lackland Air Force base in Texas.

Flights are judged on various points, including military bearing, appearance, efficiency in drill and ceremony and overall outstanding ability in military procedure.

Airman Barrett, a graduate of East Liverpool High School, is now receiving training as a weapons specialist at Lowry Air Force base in Colorado. He enlisted in May.

U.S. Official Seeks End To Race Impasse

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — White House emissary John Doar sought today to end the racial impasse here and a Negro leader vowed that if blood is shed it would be "all kinds — both black and white."

A. Z. Young, president of the Bogalusa Civic and Voters League, which has spearheaded the civil rights campaign here, added however, "We are going to do everything we can to keep down a civil war in this area."

Doar, who came here under White House orders to see what could be done to solve the six-month-old racial conflict in this papermill town of 23,000, planned more private talks today with city officials and civil rights leaders.

Gov. John J. McKeithen said he must have the massive support of both white and Negro leadership throughout the state to help ward off outsiders whom he said were blocking efforts to gain racial peace at Bogalusa.

Young, at a rally of some 300 Negroes Friday night, called for picketing today "in the four corners of Bogalusa."

He also said Negroes would again march on City Hall "and I don't want this march turned around."

Asst. Police Chief L. C. Terrell ordered a parade by 300 Negroes, most of them teen-agers, halted Friday after several fistfights broke out between whites and biracial pickets at a shopping center near City Hall.

After the rally, Young said in an interview he was in accord with Terrell's action in halting the parade.

"We are going to do everything we can to keep down a civil war in this area," Young told a newsman. "But if blood is going to be shed in this area, we are going to let it rain down, all kinds — both black and white."

Doar, assistant U.S. attorney general for civil rights, declined comment on his mission, except to tell newsmen he was in Bogalusa to "see that the laws are complied with and that all people show respect for law and order."

McKeithen was rebuffed earlier this week when he called for a 30-day cooling off period to allow both sides to sit down at the conference table.

At his weekly news conference Friday McKeithen said he told council leaders "that Louisiana was on the verge of obtaining a breakthrough giving it a position of leadership, that the only thing that could interfere is the way we handle in this state the transition required under civil rights legislation."

"Someone eventually must make those Negroes understand they have to be qualified to get jobs," he said. "In my mind, the marchers are completely unreasonable — they don't know what they're marching for."

mates had ranged as high as 10 per cent. This finding will be valuable to men now wondering whether to use parachutes or retrorockets in braking the descent of instrumented capsules they want to land on Mars in the 1970s.

The study of the radio signals, known to react differently to various kinds of molecules in an atmosphere, showed no oxygen on Mars. This agreed with telescopic studies which indicate the presence of nitrogen, carbon dioxide, argon and a trace of water.

Calculations of Mariner 4's path made it likely that the first picture was a of a desert area called Phlegra, north of the Martian equator.

The second and third pictures along this north-to-south track would fall between two deserts called Elysium and Amazonis.

Later frames in the 25-minute camera sweep would cover a broad dark area, Mare Cimmerium, and another desert, Phaethontis, astronomers said.

There was no hint as to when the later pictures being radioed across 134 million miles at a rate of one every 10 hours would be released.

STAMP OF ORIGINALITY

Originality is the most notable trend in contemporary decorating today. It is heartening to note that we have gracefully emerged from a long period of conformity. Our rooms are no longer monotonous, dull replicas of one another because our ideas are no longer confined within a narow range.

Given a small room of limited dimensions, we have learned how best to exploit its qualities of space and shape, how to make them serve our needs. We have developed our own unique sense of style, and our power of selectivity — and by expressing our own preferences we put the stamp of individuality on every room in our homes.

The very small den-study sketched above is a case in point. A pair of contemporary sleep sofas arranged with a table in a corner grouping utilize wall space, provide plenty of seating units by day, and leave center area clear.

Dimitive desk placed at right angles to the wall serves also as a lamp table.

Pale colors were chosen for the background to give a room-stretching effect. An area rug in pale beige gives an expansive effect when placed over a tile floor of the same color. Walls are several shades paler than the floor.

Up-to-date styling with real old-fashioned comfort — this is what we offer you with every chair, sofa and sleep sofa that you purchase from us. And that's not all. You are assured of good value, too. So make us your furniture headquarters, won't you?

Police Seek Car Which Rammed 2 Autos In Chester

Area police today remained on the alert for a car involved in a hit-run mishap on Route 30 in Chester late Firday night.

A 1956 sedan driven by Mark Allen Rydell, 37, of 607 Bridge St., East Liverpool, and a 1962 station wagon operated by Caroline Wright, 47, of Hookstown were both struck by an unidentified vehicle about midnight Friday on the Route 30 hill adjacent to Rock Springs Park just inside the city limits, Chester police said.

Rydell's car was damaged in the rear, and the Wright vehicle on the front and side. Kenneth Williams, special patrolman who investigated, estimated damages to the Rydell and Wright autos of $300 and $800, respectively.

The unidentified car, which was heading down the hill towards Chester, continued on its way despite heavy damage it sustained.

Alerts were broadcast to area police to be on the lookout for the fleeing auto.

Newell Carnival To Open Tonight

The Newell firemen's carnival will officially open tonight at 7:30 and will continue each night through next Saturday, with the exception of Sunday night, it was announced today.

Since the Washington Monument was completed in 1884, more than 43 million people have ridden or trudged to the top of the 555-foot obelisk.

Chester Day Camp Ends

A program was presented for parents as the final activity of the Chester - Newell Girl Scout Day Camp conducted Monday through Friday at Chester City Park.

The camp, attended by Brownies and Junior Scouts in grades one through six, was based upon the pioneer folklore of the area. Talks were conducted on herbs and plants and Indian relics were demonstrated.

John Chaney of Chester related the story of the Old Stone House and the springs at Rock Springs Park. A field trip was made to the house, now owned by Dr. and Mrs. Milton Wolpert, and to the springs.

Juniors attending the camp were awarded Folklore Badges.

A total of 105 girls attended.

Mrs. Richard Barnhart was camp director, Mrs. Ed Wine camp site manager, Mrs. Arch Dalrymple camp nurse and Mrs. Ralph Wolfe junior director.

Newell Woman Hurt In Fall; Others Treated At Hospital

A Newell woman injured in a fall on stairs was in "poor" condition today at City Hospital, where 11 other district residents were treated Friday after separate mishaps.

Mrs. Madeline Wells of 501 Jefferson St., Newell, was admitted about 9:20 p. m. with a possible fractured skull and other injuries received in a fall down four steps at home.

John Chevront of Albia Ave., Chester, an employe of the T. K. Roofing Co., was treated last night for bruises of the lower left leg received when roofing material fell against his leg.

Edward Carnes of 342 Kinsey St. suffered a laceration of the right wrist on a window pane.

Robert Smith of 833 Riverview St. was treated for a lacerated finger after he was cut on a pen knife.

Struck by a tree branch, Pamela McNicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McNicol of Negley, suffered a bruised nose.

Donald Moore, son of John Moore of Georgetown R. D. 1, received a sprained wrist and abrasions of the arm when his motorscooter skidded on tar slick.

Brent Sheerer of Negley R.D. 1, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mohr, was bitten on the left ankle by a dog.

In a fall while running, David Pelley of Wellsville R. D. 1 received a cut on the left knee.

William Wayne White of R.D. 2 suffered a puncture wound of the forearm when a piece of metal struck his arm while he was hammering.

Willard Covert of 135 W. Church Ln. received a puncture wound of the right foot when he stepped on a roofing nail.

Pulling In Opposite Directions

The fast-growing war in Viet Nam will jerk the props from Defense Secretary McNamara's budget-cutting project.

But until he is forced to ask for more money and Congress tumbles over itself to give it to him, there is time to admire something he was trying to do and to understand what opposition he was encountering.

By using business accountancy and competitive bidding, Secretary McNamara claims he saved $4.6 billion in the fiscal year that ended June 30. This does not mean the Defense Department gave back that much money. It means it would have needed $4.6 billion more if Secretary McNamara had not been on the job.

President Johnson was so impressed he has urged all other department heads to study the methods used, to see if they cannot save money for taxpayers too.

Every move, of course, was opposed bitterly by people who stood to lose something. Every unneeded facility that was closed brought squeals of protest.

Every organizational reform was a net reduction in the gravy train's cargo.

Naturally, the gravy-train commuters objected.

Secretary McNamara learned the hard way a fact of life about government spending.

Everybody is in favor of cutting it down —for the other fellow.

Every item of expenditure has a lobby to defend it. The government is a cow milked to the limit by hungry dependents who rely on it for their sustenance. Every suggestion of curtailing the milk supply is a threat to their existence.

In spite of this, Defense Secretary McNamara pried loose $4.6 billion worth of dependency last fiscal year. With a little support, he might be able to fight the escalating Viet Nam war with a minimum of loss to taxpayers.

He will be lucky to get any support at all. He has learned the hard way no one really believes in saving public money, except that part of it being "wasted" by the other fellow.

Ride With Care

Columbiana County's traffic toll to date this year is 19, seven more than during the comparable period in 1964. The increase is alarming.

Even more alarming is the frightening thought that the figures could continue to skyrocket because of a relatively newcomer to the traffic picture—the motorbike.

Almost daily, accident reports involving the "bikes" are increasing on a local, district and national level.

This is cause for concern. Even more so when it is remembered that the motorbikes have become the playthings of the younger residents. This is understandable —but it's also lamentable.

We like our young people. But we want them to be around for awhile.

$1,000 Limit Makes Sense

Rep. Robert E. Levitt's bill to require competitive bidding for any county purchase exceeding $1,000 faces an uncertain future, now that it has been defeated by a two-vote margin in the Ohio House.

An effort may be made to revive it through a motion to reconsider, but it is doubtful, unfortunately, that anything will come of it at this session of the Assembly, now rushing toward sdjournment.

The Cuyahoga County delegation, apparently feeling that the limitation is too rigid for the larger counties, struck the telling blow.

As a matter of fact, an effort was made to raise the limit to $4,000, but the amendment failed on a tie vote.

We doubt that a $4,000 limitation would resolve the problem. It would protect the taxpayer against chicanery on major purchases, but in most counties bids already are being asked on deals of those proportions.

In view of that, we feel that the areas of purchase which Rep. Levitt is trying to bring under control would be completely lost with a limitation as high as $4,000.

In fact, it would be worse than no limitation at all, because it would encourage a temptation to make major purchases on a piecemeal basis, keeping each segment of the whole under the $4,000 figure.

This procedure becomes considerably less attractive under a $1,000 limitarion, and it is just nonsense to contend that this would make a multitude of smaller items subject to competitive bidding and excessively high advertising and accounting costs.

The Levitt bill makes all necessary provisions for emergency purchases. In our view, opposition to the $1,000 limitation is nothing more than an effort to protect ing methods now in vogue.

For Safety's Sake

We pointed out this week that two youngsters within a radius of some 60 miles had lost their lives because of accidental bullet wounds and urged caution when firearms were around.

The cautionary note has brought some common-sense suggestions from William McCarrell Jr., a Pennsylvania gun safety instructor who resides in the Hookstown area.

Mr. McCarrell points out that the National Rifleman's Association and the Pennsylvania Game Commission "have taken great steps to prevent accidents by holding safe gun-handling classes."

He conducts such classes at the South Side Sportmen Club off Route 168, about a mile from Laughlin's Corner toward Frankfort, Pa.

If you find it necesary to have guns around the house — and you have children — it might be a good idea to talk with Mr. McCarrell.

The 'Voluntary' War On 'Poverty'

The president of the National Association of Manufacturers, W. P. Gullander, is guest columnist for Victor Riesel who is on a news-gathering mission to Latin America.

By W. P. GULLANDER
President, NAM

The widespread attention given the federal Poverty Program has largely obscured the fact that a variety of non-governmental solutions are assisting the jobless or disadvantaged citizen in overcoming his economic handicaps.

These solutions, often unheralded, continue to spring up in community after community. Getting to know about them presents a problem. Therre is no GHQ to turn to. No Big Boss gives orders or gets reports. No master computer spews out the results of this endless variety of voluntary effort.

Nevertheless, we know that from countless clusters of private initiative and responsibility various kinds of help continue to emerge for the hapless citizen who may be handicapped by lack of skill, training or education in his quest for greater economic opportunity.

LAST SUMMER the National Association of Manufacturers set out to collect case histories of company-inspired or community-inspired programs that were getting results in this social service area. Later we set up a national clearning house called STEP, which stands for Solutions To Employment Problems, to which citizen-leaders could turn for validated methods of dealing with some of these problems.

Big towns, middle-sized towns and small towns all have been the sources of useful examples, some of them long antedating the birth of the federal Poverty Program. Let me give some illustrations of what goes on voluntarily in industrial America to permit more citizens to participate in the mainstream of American economic life.

In Chicago, a job-mecca where the versatile usually thrive but where the unskiled may falter in face of changing job requirements, some notable examples exist, of which the following may be of particular interest.

A NATIONAL food processor had long provided employment in its Chicago warehouse for applicants with minimal educational backgrounds. But the demands of the marketplace for a greater variety of products and product labels recently began dictating a change in hiring standards.

To curtail errors in shipments, it became imperative that a greater portion of the warehouse worker be able to comprehend packaging and shipping instructions more efficiently. The company, therefore, has established clases at the grammar school level, grades 1 to 6, to provide preent employes and applicants with the required visual and verbal skills to handle today's type of work.

In Indianapolis, a leading electronics plant has found it advisable to provide in-plant instruction at the high school level of learning to make it possible for employes to adapt to increasingly sophisticated manufacturing methods.

With the flicker of learning re-awakened, a number of employes requested the opportunity of pursuing their studies through to the goal of a high school diploma. Company officials worked out such an acceptable plan with Indianapolis Public School officials, and graduating exercises recently were held in the plant for the accredited pilot group.

IN BEDFORD, OHIO, near Cleveland, two communitywide problems were simultaneously faced: an alarmingly high school dropout rate existed and local industry found itself short of skilled help. Industrialists and school authorities teamed up to produce a twin solution. Local businessmen contributed over a million dollars of equipment to the schools. Youngsters willing to complete specified vocational training courses were promised jobs in local plants on presenting their school certificates.

Bedford's school dropout rate has been cut far below the national norm, and industry's recruiting probem has been largely solved.

In Freeland, Pa., an anthracite coal region northwest of Allentown, chronically unemployed miners are now productively engaged in making exhaust fans, range hoods, air purifiers and other home equipment. This is due to the conviction of an industrialist, Gerald L. Cohen, who grew up in the area, knew the character of the work force available, and built a plant in the depressed town.

Relying on on-the-job training method, Mr. Cohen quickly disproved the theory that the future holds no hope for the worker whose only occupational experience heretofore has been in the mines.

OTHER STEP case histories have been researched on the San Francisco Peninsula and in Spartanburg, S.C.; Lynchburg, Va.; Braxton Court, W. Va.; Dayton, O.; Toms River, N.J.; Baltimore, Md.; Ithaca, N.Y.; Hartford, Conn.; Meadville, Pa.; Camden, N.J.; Melrose Park, Ill.; Cleveland, and many other cities and town, small and large, across the land.

The private probing for solutions goes on, constantly. The local businessman is working in harness in many cases with the educator, the social worker, the public official, and as result of their mutual interest they all are getting to know and respect one another in a meaningful manner.

They are building a stronger America, community by community, in the American tradition of voluntary cooperation for the common good.

Civil Rights Law Raises Some Questions

Five or six years from now—perhaps sooner — the American people may be interested indeed in whether the Republican or the Democratic party was responsible for the enactment of the latest civil rights bill. The argument then will be not who is to receive the credit but who is to be blamed for having helped to take away from the states their right to fix the qualifications of voters and for having enacted legislation that penalizes some states while others are permitted to carry on discriminatory practices.

David Lawrence

The Republicans today are boasting that 82 per cent of the party's membership in the House of Representatives supported the administration bill on final passage by the House, while in the Senate 94 per cent of the Republicans voted for passage. They point out that in both instances a substantially smaller percentage of the Democratic senators and representatives stood behind the measure.

The Republican minority leader in the House asked President Johnson five questions on Monday of last week. They have not been answered.

WHEN THE FULL effects of the new voting measure are felt, however, it is quite probable that these questions will be even more pertinent. The questions asked of the President are as follows:

1. Why was Texas not covered under the President's initial voting-rights bill and is not effectively covered now?

2. Why were vote frauds and dishonest elections, such as have occurred in Chicago and Texas, not covered under the President's proposal?

3. Why shouldn't the right to vote be protected equally in every state, not just in seven states?

4. Why should any area be exempted after only 50 per cent of the Negroes are permitted to vote?

5. Why should votes that are challenged be counted and, if found invalid, be used possibly to determine the outcome of an election, including the election of a president?

Mr. Johnson is charged by the Republicans with not having answered any of these questions. Certainly when the new law has been in effect a few years, it will be evident not only that the states were treated individually but that, in the drive to grant voting rights without restrictions, citizens — both Negroes and whites — who really were not qualified to vote were enabled to participate in elections and perhaps even hold the balance of power.

THE REPUBLICANS are trying to make it appear that, although they attempted to safeguard the rights of all citizens by an important amendment, their Democratic colleagues in Congress were unmindful of their obligations. Yet the Republicans themselves have not answered the question as to why, if they were serious about their point of view, they didn't vote against the bill when it was up for final passage.

Certainly a measure that contains inequities and discriminatory provisions is just as bad in its final form as it was when an amendment to remove the defects was voted on and rejected, mostly by the Democrats.

What it amounts to is that Republican members are evidently trying not to take any political risks whatsoever. They voted for the bill on final passage and also credit for having sought to change the measure. The average citizen, however, would have more admiration for the Republicans if they had stuck to their convictions by voting against any bill which contained provisions of a discriminatory nature.

The former Arizona senator voted against the 1964 civil rights bill on final passage because he felt it was a bad bill, though he did favor some of its provisions. When certain amendments failed, he did not turn about and cast his ballot for a bill which he sincerely believed was unconstitutional. On the contrary, he took pride it.

THERE IS a lesson which the Republicans have not learned. It's that the people want their representatives to be less interested in political advantages of the moment than in fundamental convictions. In the long run, the cause of good government will be advanced far more by those who stick to their guns and vote against bills which they feel are unconstitutional and discriminatory than by those members who are recorded as in favor of a measure on final roll-call just because its general objective may be hailed as meritoricus. Democratic government is not advanced by yielding to political expediencies.

Unfortunately, the whole voting-rights bill contains many inequities and discriminatory provisions. It may take time before all these defects are evident to the people Eventually the truth does come out, and when the people find that what was considered to be advantageous a few years before is detrimental to the best interests of the country, the vote of a member of Congress of either party for such a measure can turn out to be a political liability rather than a political asset.

Automation In The Pulpit

By Ken McKenna

Automation? Electronics? Religion? How did that last subject get in there?

Well, anyhow, it fits. Like other large, complex groups, organized religion is reaching out for the best things in modern technology to improve its operations.

For instance, it was recently reported that the American Bible Society will use the latest computer for publication and distribution of Scriptures throughout the world.

Later, the society hopes to put the electronic marvel to work on translating the Bible.

More up to the minute, perhaps, has been the adoption of wireless microphones by Roman Catholic Churches to help parishioners to understand newly introduced English liturgy in the Mass.

The microphone — which is smaller than a pack of cigarettes — requires no wire to connect it with conventional public address systems and it is hidden easily under the vestment of the priest.

"Church accoustics were not really up to handling the English translation of the Mass," said a representative of the manufacturer. "It would defeat the whole purpose if parishioners couldn't hear the priest.

To any who might wonder about the mixture of electronics and religious worship, it's pointed out that since the microphone is worn under the vestments of the priest, it does not disturb the solemnity of the Mass as conventional microphones and cables often do.

The use of the transmitter certainly answers many problems — such as troublesome wires and the instrusion of a shiny mike. Still, the marriage of the modern miracle of electronics to the ancient miracle of religion leaves many adherents wondering about the future.

These are hardly considerations that will be analyzed at the next Ecumenical Council, but they will likely be the subject of parishioners' discussion.

The American Bible Society is utilizing its new computer in a business-like fashion for the tremendous task of distributing some 50 million copies of Scripture in the United States and 130 other countries. This is complicated by the fact that the Bible has been published in 1,232 languages and dialects.

The society also sends out some 16 million pieces of literature annually. One of the principal uses of the IBM 360 will be to maintain and keep current the voluminous contribution list, which serves as the source file for these mailings.

Pulling In Opposite Directions

The fast-growing war in Viet Nam will jerk the props from Defense Secretary McNamara's budget-cutting project.

But until he is forced to ask for more money and Congress tumbles over itself to give it to him, there is time to admire something he was trying to do and to understand what opposition he was encountering.

By using business accountancy and competitive bidding, Secretary McNamara claims he saved $4.6 billion in the fiscal year that ended June 30. This does not mean the Defense Department gave back that much money. It means it would have needed $4.6 billion more if Secretary McNamara had not been on the job.

President Johnson was so impressed he has urged all other department heads to study the methods used, to see if they cannot save money for taxpayers too.

Every move, of course, was opposed bitterly by people who stood to lose something. Every unneeded facility that was closed brought squeals of protest.

Every organizational reform was a net reduction in the gravy train's cargo.

Naturally, the gravy-train commuters objected.

Secretary McNamara learned the hard way a fact of life about government spending.

Everybody is in favor of cutting it down —for the other fellow.

Every item of expenditure has a lobby to defend it. The government is a cow milked to the limit by hungry dependents who rely on it for their sustenance. Every suggestion of curtailing the milk supply is a threat to their existence.

In spite of this, Defense Secretary McNamara pried loose $4.6 billion worth of dependency last fiscal year. With a little support, he might be able to fight the escalating Viet Nam war with a minimum of loss to taxpayers.

He will be lucky to get any support at all. He has learned the hard way no one really believes in saving public money, except that part of it being "wasted" by the other fellow.

Ride With Care

Columbiana County's traffic toll to date this year is 19, seven more than during the comparable period in 1964. The increase is alarming.

Even more alarming is the frightening thought that the figures could continue to skyrocket because of a relatively newcomer to the traffic picture—the motorbike.

Almost daily, accident reports involving the "bikes" are increasing on a local, district and national level.

This is cause for concern. Even more so when it is remembered that the motorbikes have become the playthings of the younger residents. This is understandable —but it's also lamentable.

We like our young people. But we want them to be around for awhile.

$1,000 Limit Makes Sense

Rep. Robert E. Levitt's bill to require competitive bidding for any county purchase exceeding $1,000 faces an uncertain future, now that it has been defeated by a two-vote margin in the Ohio House.

An effort may be made to revive it through a motion to reconsider, but it is doubtful, unfortunately, that anything will come of it at this session of the Assembly, now rushing toward sdjournment.

The Cuyahoga County delegation, apparently feeling that the limitation is too rigid for the larger counties, struck the telling blow.

As a matter of fact, an effort was made to raise the limit to $4,000, but the amendment failed on a tie vote.

We doubt that a $4,000 limitation would resolve the problem. It would protect the taxpayer against chicanery on major purchases, but in most counties bids already are being asked on deals of those proportions.

In view of that, we feel that the areas of purchase which Rep. Levitt is trying to bring under control would be completely lost with a limitation as high as $4,000.

In fact, it would be worse than no limitation at all, because it would encourage a temptation to make major purchases on a piecemeal basis, keeping each segment of the whole under the $4,000 figure.

This procedure becomes considerably less attractive under a $1,000 limitarion, and it is just nonsense to contend that this would make a multitude of smaller items subject to competitive bidding and excessively high advertising and accounting costs.

The Levitt bill makes all necessary provisions for emergency purchases. In our view, opposition to the $1,000 limitation is nothing more than an effort to protect ing methods now in vogue.

Civil Rights Law Raises Some Questions

Five or six years from now—perhaps sooner — the American people may be interested indeed in whether the Republican or the Democratic party was responsible for the enactment of the latest civil rights bill. The argument then will be not who is to receive the credit but who is to be blamed for having helped to take away from the states their right to fix the qualifications of voters and for having enacted legislation that penalizes some states while others are permitted to carry on discriminatory practices.

David Lawrence

The Republicans today are boasting that 82 per cent of the party's membership in the House of Representatives supported the administration bill on final passage by the House, while in the Senate 94 per cent of the Republicans voted for passage. They point out that in both instances a substantially smaller percentage of the Democratic senators and representatives stood behind the measure.

The Republican minority leader in the House asked President Johnson five questions on Monday of last week. They have not been answered.

WHEN THE FULL effects of the new voting measure are felt, however, it is quite probable that these questions will be even more pertinent. The questions asked of the President are as follows:

1. Why was Texas not covered under the President's initial voting-rights bill and is not effectively covered now?

2. Why were vote frauds and dishonest elections, such as have occurred in Chicago and Texas, not covered under the President's proposal?

3. Why shouldn't the right to vote be protected equally in every state, not just in seven states?

4. Why should any area be exempted after only 50 per cent of the Negroes are permitted to vote?

5. Why should votes that are challenged be counted and, if found invalid, be used possibly to determine the outcome of an election, including the election of a president?

Mr. Johnson is charged by the Republicans with not having answered any of these questions. Certainly when the new law has been in effect a few years, it will be evident not only that the states were treated individually but that, in the drive to grant voting rights without restrictions, citizens — both Negroes and whites — who really were not qualified to vote were enabled to participate in elections and perhaps even hold the balance of power.

THE REPUBLICANS are trying to make it appear that, although they attempted to safeguard the rights of all citizens by an important amendment, their Democratic colleagues in Congress were unmindful of their obligations. Yet the Republicans themselves have not answered the question as to why, if they were serious about their point of view, they didn't vote against the bill when it was up for final passage.

Certainly a measure that contains inequities and discriminatory provisions is just as bad in its final form as it was when an amendment to remove the defects was voted on and rejected, mostly by the Democrats.

What it amounts to is that Republican members are evidently trying not to take any political risks whatsoever. They voted for the bill on final passage and also credit for having sought to change the measure. The average citizen, however, would have more admiration for the Republicans if they had stuck to their convictions by voting against any bill which contained provisions of a discriminatory nature.

The former Arizona senator voted against the 1964 civil rights bill on final passage because he felt it was a bad bill, though he did favor some of its provisions. When certain amendments failed, he did not turn about and cast his ballot for a bill which he sincerely believed was unconstitutional. On the contrary, he took pride it.

THERE IS a lesson which the Republicans have not learned. It's that the people want their representatives to be less interested in political advantages of the moment than in fundamental convictions. In the long run, the cause of good government will be advanced far more by those who stick to their guns and vote against bills which they feel are unconstitutional and discriminatory than by those members who are recorded as in favor of a measure on final roll-call just because its general objective may be hailed as meritoricus. Democratic government is not advanced by yielding to political expediencies.

Unfortunately, the whole voting-rights bill contains many inequities and discriminatory provisions. It may take time before all these defects are evident to the people Eventually the truth does come out, and when the people find that what was considered to be advantageous a few years before is detrimental to the best interests of the country, the vote of a member of Congress of either party for such a measure can turn out to be a political liability rather than a political asset.

Automation In The Pulpit

By Ken McKenna

Automation? Electronics? Religion? How did that last subject get in there?

Well, anyhow, it fits. Like other large, complex groups, organized religion is reaching out for the best things in modern technology to improve its operations.

For instance, it was recently reported that the American Bible Society will use the latest computer for publication and distribution of Scriptures throughout the world.

Later, the society hopes to put the electronic marvel to work on translating the Bible.

More up to the minute, perhaps, has been the adoption of wireless microphones by Roman Catholic Churches to help parishioners to understand newly introduced English liturgy in the Mass.

The microphone — which is smaller than a pack of cigarettes — requires no wire to connect it with conventional public address systems and it is hidden easily under the vestment of the priest.

"Church accoustics were not really up to handling the English translation of the Mass," said a representative of the manufacturer. "It would defeat the whole purpose if parishioners couldn't hear the priest.

To any who might wonder about the mixture of electronics and religious worship, it's pointed out that since the microphone is worn under the vestments of the priest, it does not disturb the solemnity of the Mass as conventional microphones and cables often do.

The use of the transmitter certainly answers many problems — such as troublesome wires and the instrusion of a shiny mike. Still, the marriage of the modern miracle of electronics to the ancient miracle of religion leaves many adherents wondering about the future.

These are hardly considerations that will be analyzed at the next Ecumenical Council, but they will likely be the subject of parishioners' discussion.

The American Bible Society is utilizing its new computer in a business-like fashion for the tremendous task of distributing some 50 million copies of Scripture in the United States and 130 other countries. This is complicated by the fact that the Bible has been published in 1,232 languages and dialects.

The society also sends out some 16 million pieces of literature annually. One of the principal uses of the IBM 360 will be to maintain and keep current the voluminous contribution list, which serves as the source file for these mailings.

One Of Its Greatest Heroes

Adlai Stevenson Receives Homage Of Home State

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — In the shadow of the office where he served as governor, Adlai E. Stevenson receives the homage of Illinois today as one of its great heroes.

Gov. Otto Kerner, in a eulogy prepared for a simple service, said all of Illinois citizens as well as the rest of the world will carry Stevenson's memory and his spirit in their hearts.

"Now he has come home, to his Illinois, to take his place with our other heroes," Kerner said, in placing Stevenson's name alongside those of Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, Ulysses S. Grant and Illinois Gov. John P. Altgeld.

The state's official ceremonies were scheduled for 10 a.m.

Thousands of persons filed past the flag-draped bier as the body lay in state in the Illinois Capitol under the 361-foot silver dome.

The all-night vigil began after the body had been brought back to Springfield Friday afternoon from Washington in a plain, English casket. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, collapsed Wednesday on a street in London.

During the afternoon and evening hours 1,800 persons an hour circled the casket, mounted on an old railroad table on which the body of Lincoln had rested a century ago.

Some of the mourners folded their hands in prayer. A few knelt on the stone floor in front of an armed services honor guard.

Kerner said Stevenson had remembered the great truths of life "wherever fate and duty took him."

"We lived in the shadow of greatness, a greatness which somehow seemed to bring to each of us a special feeling, a particular kind of pride, a sense of satisfaction, that we lived in the world of Adlai Stevenson," Kerner continued.

"This is a world that is better because of the life he lived, the deeds he performed, the words he spoke and the examples he set."

After the body had been brought to the big rotunda, members of his immediate family — his sister, Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, and his three sons, Adlai III, Borden and John Fell — viewed the caket alone.

Later in the evening the family returned to the Capitol with Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., who ran on the ticket when Stevenson ran for governor in 1948.

Mrs. Ives, who served as her brother's official hostess most of his term, was distraught with grief.

Stevenson's body lay under the outstretched arms of a bronze statue symbolizing Illinois welcoming the world.

Two red and white carnation floral pieces, one from President Johnson and the other from Gov. Kerner, flanked the coffin. Dozens of other wreaths, some from India, Africa and other countries, filled a long stairway.

Eight nations sent consular representatives from Chicago to join in the memorial for the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. They included Britain, Germany, Japan, Canada, Belgium, the United Arab Republic, France and Nationalist China.

When the presidential plane carrying Stevenson's remains landed at the airport, an Illinois National Guard unit fired a 19-gun salute.

On the way to the Capitol the entourage wound through hilly Oak Ridge Cemetery past the granite shaft marking the tomb of Stevenson's hero, Lincoln.

Stevenson's loyal band of associates who were with him in the bright days as governor when his political career was soaring, came back with him.

Among them were such men as Judge Carl McGowan of the U.S. Court of Appeals; William McCormick Blair Jr., ambassador to the Philippines; Secretary of Labor Willard W. Wirtz; former Postmaster General J. Edward Day, and Newton N. Minow, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Stevenson's body will repose in the rotunda until 10 a.m. Sunday. The funeral cortege will move by the white Executive Mansion before beginning the 60-mile trip to Bloomington where Stevenson will be buried Monday in the family plot.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will attend the final services in Bloomington, as will the President's older daughter, Lynda Bird Johnson.

Largest Single Source Of Revenue

Ohio Sales Tax Faces Long Stay

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A sales tax that started as a temporary money-raiser has poured nearly $5 billion into Ohio's treasury. And it shows no signs of expiring.

The sales tax, now the state's largest single source of general revenue, "will be around for quite a while," says Ohio Tax Commissioner Gerald Donahue.

DONAHUE believes the tax is too important to repeal although it was first initiated on a one-year basis by a financially-troubled depression-era legislature 30 years ago.

He said the 3 per cent tax, a child of poverty, has put $4.7 billion into the state's coffers and a record $324.8 million the last fiscal year.

About 37 per cent of all money collected by the state comes from the sales tax. And the few pennies collected on purchases here and there finance about a fifth of the school budget. Only gasoline taxes produce more money, but they are allocated to roads and highways.

DONAHUE predicted the sales tax will become more important in future years due to economic growth. He noted that sales tax receipts were up 9.2 per cent or about $4.8 million more than had been predicted a year ago.

The tax went into effect Jan. 1, 1935, as a stopgap revenue raiser. It was made permanent in 1936—and that same year saw addition of a "use" tax. The "use" tax is like the sales tax, except that it is collected on purchases made outside Ohio for use within the state. Use tax revenue amounts to about 10 per cent of the total.

The tax was first designed to raise $60 million annually. But the tax Gov. George White signed into law in 1935 fell about $10 million short the first year.

IT WAS NOT until 1941 that the state finally collected $60 million in a single year. Sales tax income has been increasing by leaps and bounds ever since.

Sales tax money is spent in a variety of ways today. But the tax was originally instituted after poor relief costs surged and nearly exhausted the state treasury in the 1930s.

The tax first applied to food purchases — except milk and bread—as well as other items.

The tax originally called for a one cent payment on purchases from nine to 40 cents. But objections arose in 1948 when someone figured out that a penny tax on a dime item actually ran at 10 per cent instead of 3 per cent. That section was repealed.

The tax now is collected on purchases of more than 30 cents. A 30-cent purchase requires no tax. A 30-cent item and a 10-center bought together requires tax.

The legislature has revised the tax several times during the years. One of the more major changes was made in 1961.

That year the legislature abolished the green tax stamps that used to be distributed with purchases to keep track of tax payments. Gov. Michael DiSalle complained it was costing the state $11 million a year to administer the stamp plan, used only in Ohio.

About 34 tons of stamps with a face value of $26.7 million were burned at Columbus.

Now merchants pay the state the taxes they collect from customers instead of buying stamps for the tax on their sales.

Donahue credits Ohio's merchants with making the tax a financial success. He says they are "nearly 100 per cent honest," adding "if they weren't honest and were not good businessmen, we'd be in trouble."

What Donahue particularly likes about the merchants is: "They pay their taxes promptly."

Sir Francis Drake Has Descendant In Pageant

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sir Francis Drake has a descendant in the Miss Universe pageant who is skilled in Chinese boxing and drinks daisy petals to stay healthy.

With a carefully placed jab of her fist, Joy Drake of Hong Kong could fatally wound an attacker.

"On my mother's side, there is a legendary boxer from South China called 'The Tiger of Kwaung-Tung.' I learned boxing to preserve my mother's heriage," Joy said.

Her father, Darrell Drake, 78, is a retired teacher and journalist. He is a descendant of Sir Francis Drake, the English explorer, according to his daughter.

Joy, a raven-haired 21-year-old English literature teacher at Mansfield College in Kowloon, is the first Eurasian to be named Miss Hong Kong.

As a child, Joy read Shakespeare to her father. She speaks Cantonese, French, English and Mandarin and charms other contestants with her captivating word-pictures of Hong Kong.

"I drink daisy petals to keep well," she says. "Such ideas make Westerners laugh, but the Chinese are skilled in herbs and medicines."

Joy said that when she left for the pageant, her Hong Kong boxing teacher showed her "several sets of fists to keep attackers away — just in case."

A new Miss Universe will be crowned July 24.

One of the other Eurasian contestants, Miss Okinawa, came to this country in hopes of finding her father, an American serviceman who does not know she is alive.

"My mother didn't know English," Lieko Arakaki said Friday in an interview. "She didn't know how to explain to him that she was pregnant."

He left shortly before Christmas of 1946, six months before Lieko was born.

"My mother was a maid for him, in his quarters. She says I have his face, that I look like him almost exactly.

"I'm afraid my father will not come forward. He probably has a family, a wife and maybe children.

"I would not want to hurt him, or his family. I just want to meet him."

EVERY WORTHY LIFE IS WORTHY OF A MEMORIAL RECORD

AN HONORABLE life has been too important to pass unrecognized . . . to be forgotten. In your own family, each worthy life has written a page in your family's history. You do not personally need a reminder to keep your own memories of dear ones fresh and sure. But you can remind others for all time by marking each grave with a meaningful Memorial. We offer to you a service which can help you, as it has so many others. In our fully-stocked showrooms, you can shop in comfort, and especially in privacy, also see what you purchase. For your convenience, we also carry a complete line of beautifully designed Bronze Markers. We offer home counsel, or transportation will be furnished if you live beyond a visit. You will not be urged to make a hasty decision, nor be solicited. Why not call us today? Let us help you without charge or obligation.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. The meeting will close at 2:30 p. m. Those attending are to bring a sack lunch. The beverage will be provided. A nursery for children also will be available.

Wheeling district officers for 1965-66 include, Mrs. Richard Hoffman of Wheeling, president; Mrs. H. L. Chapman of Glendale, recording secretary, and Miss Helena Seaman of Wheeling, treasurer.

Secretaries of various departments include Mrs. Herman Bartenbach, supply work, and Mrs. Mary Lou May, Wesleyan service guild, both of Weirton.

Musical Program Set For Chestnut Grove

The Barnes Family of Salem will present a musical program during the Sunday night service at the Chestnut Grove Church of the Nazarene.

The program will begin at 7:30, with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barnes and their three daughters presenting instrumental and vocal selections.

The public is invited to attend the service.

The Rev. Lena Tice is pastor.

Baptismal Service Will Be Held Sunday

The Friendship Gospel Tabernacle will hold a baptismal service Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the lake on the Whitehill Farm on Lynniville Rd. in Congo.

Special singing will be featured at the tabernacle Sunday at 7:30 p. m. by the Hocking Sisters of Salem. The Rev. Charles S. Taylor is pastor.

The public is invited to both services.

The Cherokee, Iroquois and Muskogean Indians are the only tribes in North America known to have hunted with blowguns.

Rev. Harris Assumes Duties At Church Here

The Rev. E. H. Harris, formerly of Campbell, Ohio, has assumed his duties as interim pastor of the Second Baptist Church, where he previously served as pastor from July 1938 through November 1946.

A native of Anniston, Ala., where he received his early education, Rev. Harris studied law at the University of California and theology at Morgan College, Baltimore.

He pastored churches in Isabelle and McKees Rock, Pa., and Warren.

The church at 878 State St. was built under his leadership. He then was called to the First Baptist Church at Pacific Grove, Calif., where he remained for 10 years. In 1957, he accepted a call to the Shiloh Baptist Church in Campbell and rebuilt the church at the cost of $67,000.

One Of Its Greatest Heroes

Adlai Stevenson Receives Homage Of Home State

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — In the shadow of the office where he served as governor, Adlai E. Stevenson receives the homage of Illinois today as one of its great heroes.

Gov. Otto Kerner, in a eulogy prepared for a simple service, said all of Illinois citizens as well as the rest of the world will carry Stevenson's memory and his spirit in their hearts.

"Now he has come home, to his Illinois, to take his place with our other heroes," Kerner said, in placing Stevenson's name alongside those of Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, Ulysses S. Grant and Illinois Gov. John P. Altgeld.

The state's official ceremonies were scheduled for 10 a.m.

Thousands of persons filed past the flag-draped bier as the body lay in state in the Illinois Capitol under the 361-foot silver dome.

The all-night vigil began after the body had been brought back to Springfield Friday afternoon from Washington in a plain, English casket. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, collapsed Wednesday on a street in London.

During the afternoon and evening hours 1,800 persons an hour circled the casket, mounted on an old railroad table on which the body of Lincoln had rested a century ago.

Some of the mourners folded their hands in prayer. A few knelt on the stone floor in front of an armed services honor guard.

Kerner said Stevenson had remembered the great truths of life "wherever fate and duty took him."

"We lived in the shadow of greatness, a greatness which somehow seemed to bring to each of us a special feeling, a particular kind of pride, a sense of satisfaction, that we lived in the world of Adlai Stevenson," Kerner continued.

"This is a world that is better because of the life he lived, the deeds he performed, the words he spoke and the examples he set."

After the body had been brought to the big rotunda, members of his immediate family — his sister, Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, and his three sons, Adlai III, Borden and John Fell — viewed the caket alone.

Later in the evening the family returned to the Capitol with Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., who ran on the ticket when Stevenson ran for governor in 1948.

Mrs. Ives, who served as her brother's official hostess most of his term, was distraught with grief.

Stevenson's body lay under the outstretched arms of a bronze statue symbolizing Illinois welcoming the world.

Two red and white carnation floral pieces, one from President Johnson and the other from Gov. Kerner, flanked the coffin. Dozens of other wreaths, some from India, Africa and other countries, filled a long stairway.

Eight nations sent consular representatives from Chicago to join in the memorial for the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. They included Britain, Germany, Japan, Canada, Belgium, the United Arab Republic, France and Nationalist China.

When the presidential plane carrying Stevenson's remains landed at the airport, an Illinois National Guard unit fired a 19-gun salute.

On the way to the Capitol the entourage wound through hilly Oak Ridge Cemetery past the granite shaft marking the tomb of Stevenson's hero, Lincoln.

Stevenson's loyal band of associates who were with him in the bright days as governor when his political career was soaring, came back with him.

Among them were such men as Judge Carl McGowan of the U.S. Court of Appeals; William McCormick Blair Jr., ambassador to the Philippines; Secretary of Labor Willard W. Wirtz; former Postmaster General J. Edward Day, and Newton N. Minow, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Stevenson's body will repose in the rotunda until 10 a.m. Sunday. The funeral cortege will move by the white Executive Mansion before beginning the 60-mile trip to Bloomington where Stevenson will be buried Monday in the family plot.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will attend the final services in Bloomington, as will the President's older daughter, Lynda Bird Johnson.

Ohio Sales Tax Faces Long Stay

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A sales tax that started as a temporary money-raiser has poured nearly $5 billion into Ohio's treasury. And it shows no signs of expiring.

The sales tax, now the state's largest single source of general revenue, "will be around for quite a while," says Ohio Tax Commissioner Gerald Donahue.

He said the 3 per cent tax, a child of poverty, has put $4.7 billion into the state's coffers and a record $324.8 million the last fiscal year.

About 37 per cent of all money collected by the state comes from the sales tax. And the few pennies collected on purchases here and there finance about a fifth of the school budget. Only gasoline taxes produce more money, but they are allocated to roads and highways.

DONAHUE predicted the sales tax will become more important in future years due to economic growth. He noted that sales tax receipts were up 9.2 per cent or about $4.8 million more than had been predicted a year ago.

The tax went into effect Jan. 1, 1935, as a stopgap revenue raiser. It was made permanent in 1936—and that same year saw addition of a "use" tax. The "use" tax is like the sales tax, except that it is collected on purchases made outside Ohio for use within the state. Use tax revenue amounts to about 10 per cent of the total.

The tax was first designed to raise $60 million annually. But the tax Gov. George White signed into law in 1935 fell about $10 million short the first year.

IT WAS NOT until 1941 that the state finally collected $60 million in a single year. Sales tax income has been increasing by leaps and bounds ever since.

Sales tax money is spent in a variety of ways today. But the tax was originally instituted after poor relief costs surged and nearly exhausted the state treasury in the 1930s.

About 34 tons of stamps with a face value of $26.7 million were burned at Columbus.

Now merchants pay the state the taxes they collect from customers instead of buying stamps for the tax on their sales.

Donahue credits Ohio's merchants with making the tax a financial success. He says they are "nearly 100 per cent honest," adding "if they weren't honest and were not good businessmen, we'd be in trouble."

What Donahue particularly likes about the merchants is: "They pay their taxes promptly."

EVERY WORTHY LIFE IS WORTHY OF A MEMORIAL RECORD
AN HONORABLE life has been too important to pass unrecognized . . . to be forgotten. In your own family, each worthy life has written a page in your family's history. You do not personally need a reminder to keep your own memories of dear ones fresh and sure. But you can remind others for all time by marking each grave with a meaningful Memorial. We offer to you a service which can help you, as it has so many others. In our fully-stocked showrooms, you can shop in comfort, and especially in privacy, also see what you purchase. For your convenience, we also carry a complete line of beautifully designed Bronze Markers. We offer home counsel, or transportation will be furnished if you live beyond a visit. You will not be urged to make a hasty decision, nor be solicited. Why not call us today? Let us help you without charge or obligation.

Budget OK'd By Liverpool

A 1966 budget of $30,000 was tentatively adopted by the Liverpool Township trustees at a meeting Friday night.

The budget is up $4,500 from the current expenditures of $26,500 due to increased operating costs the trustee said. The 1966 figure does not include $7,000 netted from the township fire levy.

Trustees awarded to the Wimmer Motor Sales a $4,598 contract for a fire truck chassis for a new tanker truck for the volunteer department's use at Dixonville.

The Baughman Manufacturing Co. of Jerseyville, Ill., will supply the tank for the truck, which will cost a total of $8,881.

Trustees also purchased a $450 pneumatic road tamper for use in repair work from the Adams Machinery Co. of Salineville.

An application was received from Franklin Hanlon of Pennsylvania Ave. Ext. for police constable in event there is an opening.

Bills totaling $2,638 were paid. The next meeting will be July 30.

Drought

fer of water from areas which haven't been hit by the shortage.

Even as the group met, the U.S. Weather Bureau issued a special report which began:

"The four-year drought now blanketing the most densely populated area of the nation is the worst — in extent and duration — ever recorded in the Northeast."

The bureau said there might be above - normal rainfall through mid-August but that months or even years of above-average rainfall may be needed to restore normal conditions.

The federal council, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said, was considering both short-and long-range solutions to the problem, adding:

"One of the major conclusions reached by all of the scientific people here was that the only prudent thing to do is for everybody to operate on the assumption there will be a fifth year of the drought."

23 Counties In Ohio Cited Disaster Areas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-three Ohio counties have been declared disaster areas because of drought conditions, the U. S. Department of Agriculture informed Gov. James A. Rhodes Friday.

The action clears the way for possible use of certain soil bank land, upon approval of county agriculture conservation committees. However, farmers must refund payments otherwise earned by them for retiring lands, the department said.

The counties are: Athens, Belmont, Carroll, Champaign, Clermont, Coshocton, Delaware, Guernsey, Hardin, Harrison, Highland, Hocking, Holmes, Jefferson, Knox, Logan, Madison, Morrow, Noble, Ross, Tuscarawas, Union and Vinton.

Alaska's largest producing industry is its fisheries.

Homecoming Next Week

Events Speeded In Highlandtown

Ray Leatherberry, on ladder, is shown putting the finishing touches on the wiring of the new pavilion constructed by the volunteer fire department in preparation for the annual Highlandtown Homecoming and community fair festivities which will begin Wednesday and run through Saturday.

Dale Rose prepares to hand Leatherberry a part of the housing for the wiring system which will be the main unit that controls the entire flow of electricity to the pavilion and the fairgrounds. Both men are firemen.

The pavilion, which measures 30 feet wide and 60 feet long, will be used as a lunch stand during the homecoming. The lunch counter will run down the center of the structure, with tables located on each side.

The pavilion was constructed not only to enlarge the eating facilities for the homecoming celebration, but also for use by the general public for picnics and meetings.

The fair is scheduled to get under way at 8 p.m. Wednesday with singing by the Twin Trio, accompanied by Nancy Clark on the piano.

This will be followed at 9 p.m. with Curt McClelland's version of a Punch and Judy show.

Thursday night will be highlighted by drills, contests and games presented by the Rambling Ridge Riders Saddle Club. Jim Ewing and his orchestra will play all evening.

The annual parade will begin at 7 Friday and will be led by the Southern Local High School Band.

A horse-pulling contest will be the main attraction Saturday afternoon, with all concession stands open and rides at special prices.

A round and square dance will round out the festivities at 9 Saturday, with music by Kenneth Nichols and his orchestra. Tom Rawlings will be caller.

Coleman's Amusements will provide rides and concessions for the fair, with steam engines and shingle-making machinery on display the entire week.

Man Fined At Chester As Result Of Mishap

David P. Nedderman, 34, of New Knoxville, Ohio, was fined $10 and costs at a hearing conducted Friday by Mayor Harry Abrams of Chester.

Nedderman had been cited for improper backing following a traffic accident last Sunday in which his vehicle struck another at a traffic signal as he was backing from a parking place on Carolina Ave.

The pin oak tree is well named. Though this oak probably was named from the pins on leaf - tips, the tree's short branches served as pins which held many a building together before nails became plentiful.

12 Get Notice On Tax Cases

Bailiff Wilbert P. Taylor of Municipal Court completed work Friday on serving notices on 12 persons accused of violating the city income tax ordinance, ordering them to appear for hearings before Judge Samuel M. Chertoff Wednesday, July 28, at 9 a. m.

Named in affidavits filed Monday by Tax Commissioner D. G. Wilkinson, each of the defendants is accused of failure to file a final report on 1964 earnings before the deadline last April 15. They are:

Bernard Veglia, 1702 Alpha St., Donley C. Davis, 1149 Pennsylvania Ave., John Allen, 1045 Edgewood Ave., Thomas White, 1428 Dorothy St., Everett Watson, 611 Sugar St., Leslie Harvey, 420 Prospect St.

Walter C. Kimbro, 740 Dresden Ave., Willis W. Campbell, 1030 Bradshaw Ave., Clarence A. Bryan, 242 W. 5th St., Melvin L. Kidder Jr., 719 E. 4th St., Edwin Barnett Jr., 1054 Huston Ave., and Nelson Clark, 449 1st Ave.

Wilkinson filed 20 charges in all in the latest group, but two were withdrawn shortly, as the defendants had made settlements with his office. The bailiff was unable to find six more of the defendants at the addresses listed for them by the tax office.

It is the second group of 20 named in affidavits recently by the tax commissioner. He said more than 400 face the possibility of a trip to court as a result of failure to file a final return on 1964 earnings or an estimate of 1965 income. The deadline for both reports was last April 15.

Cleveland Orchestra Due At Cedar Point

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Summer Orchestra will perform Aug. 8 at Cedar Point amusement park, it was announced today.

The orchestra will play in the ballroom that overlooks Lake Erie. It will be the first time the orchestra has performed at the resort, which usually books "name bands" for the ballroom. The ballroom has a seating capacity of 2,500.

Fishes drink water, but not "like a fish." Those that live in fresh water swallow a small amount with their food. Salt - water species are heavier drinkers. Body fluids tend to seep from their tissues into the surrounding sea. To counteract this, the fish drink large amounts of seawater, absorbing some into their blood to maintain its salt content.

vide Cuyahoga County into four districts for election of House Hamilton counties into two each. The proposal would allow one representative for each 69,000 Ohioans.

Districts in the big counties boards or, in the alternative, by a state apportionment board composed of the governor, secretary of state and a third member named by the chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court.

Cloud said equal apportionment of the Senate offered no problem. Both Cloud and House Majority Leader Robert F. Reckman, R-Hamilton, have had other apportionment plans pending in the Rules Committee.

120 Dead Or Missing In Korea Rains, Flood

SEOUL, Korea (AP)— About 120 persons were reported dead or missing today in the wake of torrential rains which flooded many low-lying areas in central Korea.

About one-third of the casualties were reported from South Korean military establishments near Seoul and the Kangwon Province, east of the capital.

The flood committee said about 150,000 were homeless. Property damage was estimated at $160 million.

Budget OK'd By Liverpool

A 1966 budget of $30,000 was tentatively adopted by the Liverpool Township trustees at a meeting Friday night.

The budget is up $4,500 from the current expenditures of $26,500 due to increased operating costs the trustee said. The 1966 figure does not include $7,000 netted from the township fire levy.

Trustees awarded to the Wimmer Motor Sales a $4,598 contract for a fire truck chassis for a new tanker truck for the volunteer department's use at Dixonville.

The Baughman Manufacturing Co. of Jerseyville, Ill., will supply the tank for the truck, which will cost a total of $8,881.

Trustees also purchased a $450 pneumatic road tamper for use in repair work from the Adams Machinery Co. of Salineville.

An application was received from Franklin Hanlon of Pennsylvania Ave. Ext. for police constable in event there is an opening.

Bills totaling $2,638 were paid. The next meeting will be July 30.

Drought

fer of water from areas which haven't been hit by the shortage.

Even as the group met, the U.S. Weather Bureau issued a special report which began:

"The four-year drought now blanketing the most densely populated area of the nation is the worst — in extent and duration — ever recorded in the Northeast."

The bureau said there might be above - normal rainfall through mid-August but that months or even years of above-average rainfall may be needed to restore normal conditions.

The federal council, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said, was considering both short-and long-range solutions to the problem, adding:

"One of the major conclusions reached by all of the scientific people here was that the only prudent thing to do is for everybody to operate on the assumption there will be a fifth year of the drought."

23 Counties In Ohio Cited Disaster Areas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-three Ohio counties have been declared disaster areas because of drought conditions, the U. S. Department of Agriculture informed Gov. James A. Rhodes Friday.

The action clears the way for possible use of certain soil bank land, upon approval of county agriculture conservation committees. However, farmers must refund payments otherwise earned by them for retiring lands, the department said.

The counties are: Athens, Belmont, Carroll, Champaign, Clermont, Coshocton, Delaware, Guernsey, Hardin, Harrison, Highland, Hocking, Holmes, Jefferson, Knox, Logan, Madison, Morrow, Noble, Ross, Tuscarawas, Union and Vinton.

Alaska's largest producing industry is its fisheries.

Homecoming Next Week

Events Speeded In Highlandtown

Ray Leatherberry, on ladder, is shown putting the finishing touches on the wiring of the new pavilion constructed by the volunteer fire department in preparation for the annual Highlandtown Homecoming and community fair festivities which will begin Wednesday and run through Saturday.

Dale Rose prepares to hand Leatherberry a part of the housing for the wiring system which will be the main unit that controls the entire flow of electricity to the pavilion and the fairgrounds. Both men are firemen.

The pavilion, which measures 30 feet wide and 60 feet long, will be used as a lunch stand during the homecoming. The lunch counter will run down the center of the structure, with tables located on each side.

The pavilion was constructed not only to enlarge the eating facilities for the homecoming celebration, but also for use by the general public for picnics and meetings.

The fair is scheduled to get under way at 8 p.m. Wednesday with singing by the Twin Trio, accompanied by Nancy Clark on the piano.

This will be followed at 9 p.m. with Curt McClelland's version of a Punch and Judy show.

Thursday night will be highlighted by drills, contests and games presented by the Rambling Ridge Riders Saddle Club. Jim Ewing and his orchestra will play all evening.

The annual parade will begin at 7 Friday and will be led by the Southern Local High School Band.

A horse-pulling contest will be the main attraction Saturday afternoon, with all concession stands open and rides at special prices.

A round and square dance will round out the festivities at 9 Saturday, with music by Kenneth Nichols and his orchestra. Tom Rawlings will be caller.

Coleman's Amusements will provide rides and concessions for the fair, with steam engines and shingle-making machinery on display the entire week.

Man Fined At Chester As Result Of Mishap

David P. Nedderman, 34, of New Knoxville, Ohio, was fined $10 and costs at a hearing conducted Friday by Mayor Harry Abrams of Chester.

Nedderman had been cited for improper backing following a traffic accident last Sunday in which his vehicle struck another at a traffic signal as he was backing from a parking place on Carolina Ave.

12 Get Notice On Tax Cases

Bailiff Wilbert P. Taylor of Municipal Court completed work Friday on serving notices on 12 persons accused of violating the city income tax ordinance, ordering them to appear for hearings before Judge Samuel M. Chertoff Wednesday, July 28, at 9 a. m.

Named in affidavits filed Monday by Tax Commissioner D. G. Wilkinson, each of the defendants is accused of failure to file a final report on 1964 earnings before the deadline last April 15. They are:

Bernard Veglia, 1702 Alpha St., Donley C. Davis, 1149 Pennsylvania Ave., John Allen, 1045 Edgewood Ave., Thomas White, 1428 Dorothy St., Everett Watson, 611 Sugar St., Leslie Harvey, 420 Prospect St.

Walter C. Kimbro, 740 Dresden Ave., Willis W. Campbell, 1030 Bradshaw Ave., Clarence A. Bryan, 242 W. 5th St., Melvin L. Kidder Jr., 719 E. 4th St., Edwin Barnett Jr., 1054 Huston Ave., and Nelson Clark, 449 1st Ave.

Wilkinson filed 20 charges in all in the latest group, but two were withdrawn shortly, as the defendants had made settlements with his office. The bailiff was unable to find six more of the defendants at the addresses listed for them by the tax office.

It is the second group of 20 named in affidavits recently by the tax commissioner. He said more than 400 face the possibility of a trip to court as a result of failure to file a final return on 1964 earnings or an estimate of 1965 income. The deadline for both reports was last April 15.

Cleveland Orchestra Due At Cedar Point

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Summer Orchestra will perform Aug. 8 at Cedar Point amusement park, it was announced today.

The orchestra will play in the ballroom that overlooks Lake Erie. It will be the first time the orchestra has performed at the resort, which usually books "name bands" for the ballroom. The ballroom has a seating capacity of 2,500.

Fishes drink water, but not "like a fish." Those that live in fresh water swallow a small amount with their food. Salt - water species are heavier drinkers. Body fluids tend to seep from their tissues into the surrounding sea. To counteract this, the fish drink large amounts of seawater, absorbing some into their blood to maintain its salt content.

120 Dead Or Missing In Korea Rains, Flood

SEOUL, Korea (AP)— About 120 persons were reported dead or missing today in the wake of torrential rains which flooded many low-lying areas in central Korea.

About one-third of the casualties were reported from South Korean military establishments near Seoul and the Kangwon Province, east of the capital.

The flood committee said about 150,000 were homeless. Property damage was estimated at $160 million.

The blend or contrast of light and shadow, the composition, the eye-catching appeal of a picture—that's what makes a prizewinner in a photography contest.

A beginner with a camera soon finds some skills are needed to capture the right expression or a subject, the proper feeling of a scene as viewed in life.

And a topflight photographer knows an element of luck is involved in putting into some shots the quality which earns plaudits from his fellow professionals.

The Tri-State Camera Club's July 11 contest at the Carnegie Public Library was judged by Jack Horsley, commercial photographer, and Hans Hacker, a commercial artist, who selected the winners shown here.

The club, formed in 1946 with 15 members, now has 40 on its rolls, aged 7 to 70, and meets monthly at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex.

With the goal of learning more about photography, the club hears lectures, compares work, studies new methods and takes eight to ten trips a year to such sites as Put-In-Bay, Harpers Ferry, Va., and Gettysburg, Pa.

An annual exhibit is now planned by the club members who note that the quality of their pictures has improved since competition began.

The Lighter Side

Modern merchandising on the national level is an altruistic endeavor aimed mainly at amusing the masses and adding new catch phrases to the rote conversations that fill in coffee breaks and the time during television commercials—if one believes the ever-burgeoning crop of bright new ads in the slick magazines.

The profit motive is shoved into the background, or gone altogether from the manufacturer's message, in a new type of sales pitch that sometimes makes a big corporation sound as though it is run at the same intellectual level as a Punch and Judy show.

There's a veritable plethora of cute and intriguing phrases flung across the pages of the national magazines in big type—some sounding as though they were lifted bodily out of context from an off-Broadway play and others with all the subtlety of a Chaucer or Boccacio.

The idea is to catch the reader's eye and pull it into the smaller type, where sometimes it is subjected to an old-fashioned sales pitch, but more often it finds waggish prose that describes a petrochemical giant as a gaggle or Huck Finn types bent on fun and games, and to heck with the sales charts.

"PLEASE DON'T DRINK the suspension system . . . " urges an ad in a national magazine, underneath a photo that shows a man's feet jutting from beneath the radiator of a boxy-looking sedan.

Turns out in the small type the manufacturer wants the world to know he uses an alcohol mixture in his suspension system and what's more it makes for "a most intoxicating ride."

"Who's taking care of the inner man in outer space?" another national advertiser queries in sedate type underneath a full-color reproduction of an avant garde painting depicting an astronaut.

And when the reader plunges on breathlessly to solve this conundrum, he's told that good old earth food, "may be a pain in the stomach on a trip to the moon."

And the copywriter reveals coyly in the last paragraph that it all has to do with a new chemical being developed by one of the nation's biggest producers of plastics, petroleum and related products.

Hardly a cottage industry!

FOR THE OLD-FASHIONED types who like their advertising straight, frank—almost brutal—the hard sell boys are still in business. But their messages more and more are dropping out of the high priced slicks and finding their way into the frankly blatant publications that specialize in one-syllable words and illustrations that would provoke a raised eyebrow from Dr. Freud and a knowing grin from the Marquis de Sade.

When it comes to selling acne cures, stomach remedies and headache relief the approach still is as unsubtle as a baseball bat. The same rock 'em, sock 'em techniques are employed in the dog-eat-dog world of the soap salesman and the laundry detergent peddler.

The soap purveyor still promises a product that is a combination of TNT and essence of moonbeams — strong enough to scrub the stripes off a zebra one moment, but just right in the next breath for rinsing out a cobweb or cleaning the fuzz on a peach.

Some of the cute ads have found their way onto television and the radio, thanks mainly to Stan Freeberg, a comedian who dabbles in copywriting and producing to turn a fast buck. Sometimes his scripts are so sly that the advertiser's name and his product slip by unnoticed and its not clear whether he is selling cheese blintzes or the battleship Idaho.

But in the main the broadcasters' messages still are aimed straight at a basic emotion or instinct such as vanity, self-preservation or love.

IT'S STILL COMMON practice for all-night radio stations to urge their listeners with tremendous ruffles and flourishes at 3 a. m. to hurry down to the neighborhood store right now and demand some of the new product that removes dandruff, polishes tile floors and tightens slipping dental plates—all in one application.

A Madison Ave. type told an interviewer recently that the trend to off-beat advertising developed because most big corporations are fat and contented in today's steadily-growing markets and they'll O.K. any advertising campaign in the open-handed atmosphere.

But he added parenthetically that the bright approach is the right approach in days of general prosperity, particularly for companies which seek to build an image over the long run rather than purvey a paper of pins or sell a sack of potatoes in one well-directed double-barreled blast.

How will it all end? Perhaps when the last of the Ivy League types gives up slaving over a hot typewriter all day and rides off in his Aston-Martin toward a Connecticut exurban sunset to write the Great American Novel, turning the advertising business back to the men who invented morning backaches, halitosis and greasy kid stuff.

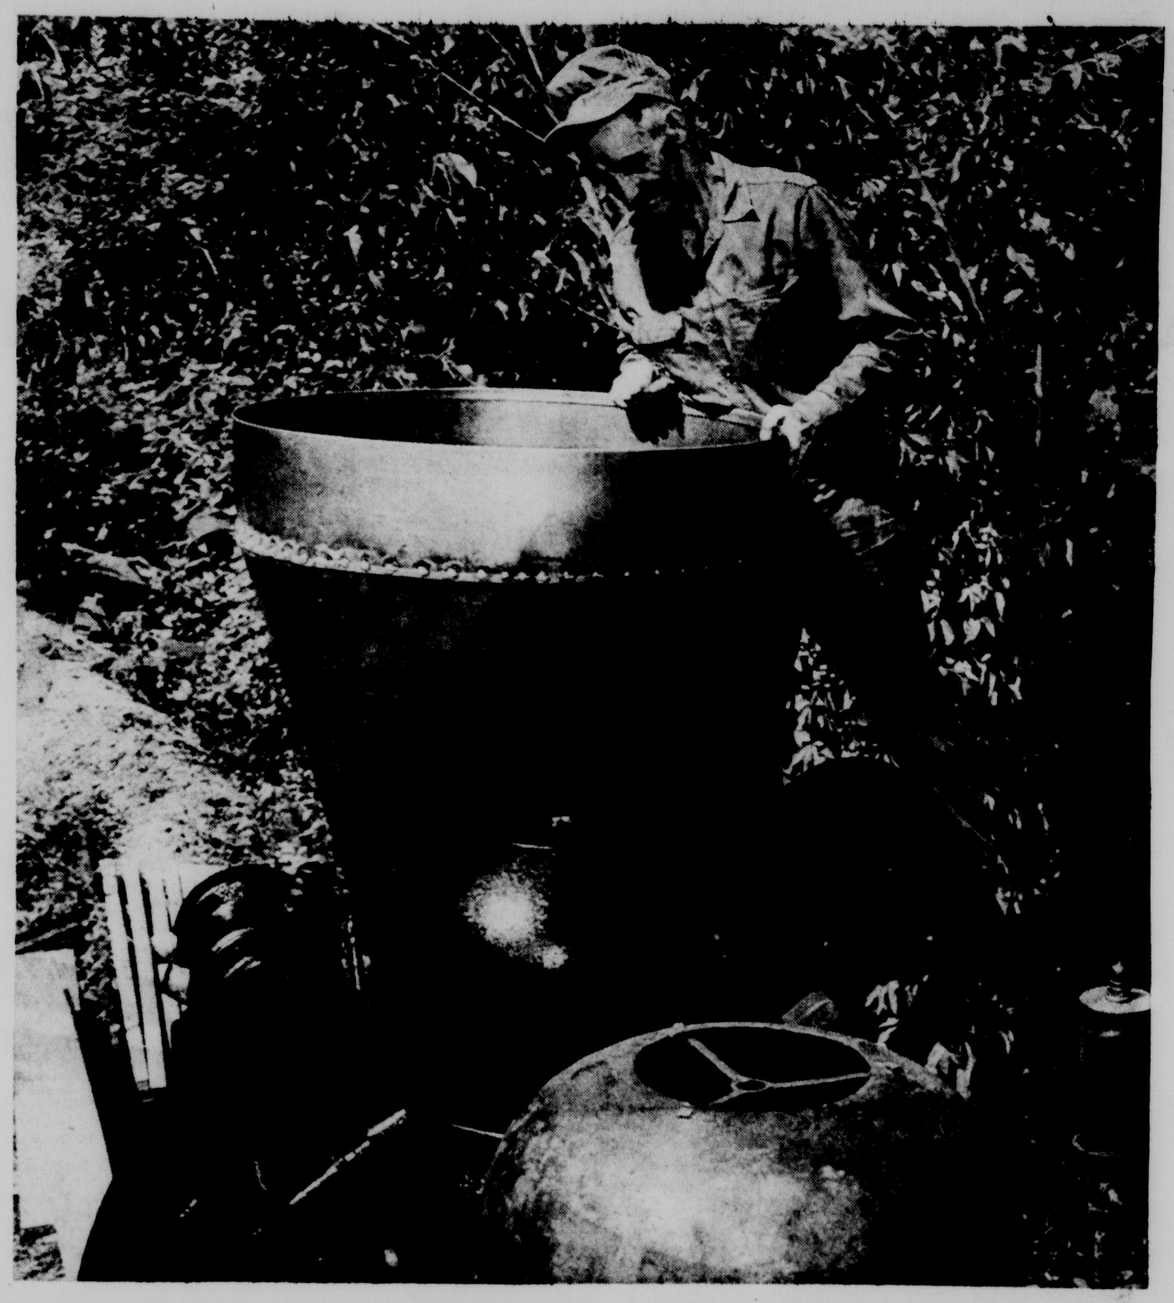
Old Engine Due At Rail Festival



By ROBERT SHAFFER JR.

No, it's not "John Henry—the steel drivin' man," but Earl Hamilton — the steam drivin' man shown gazing down into the newly - renovated smokestack on his 1924, 21-ton saddle tank steam locomotive to be featured in Lisbon's Railroad Centennial next week.

Acquiring this collector's item in 1960 from the Industrial Silica Sand Co. of near Warren, Hamilton has invested about $1,000 in parts toward the complete rennovation of the antique.

Hamilton, who fires boiler at East Liverpool High School, now has three antique steam engines, the other two being smaller and older type engines which were used on the farm to thresh wheat.

His saddle tank engine was used on the railroad by the Warren firm for hauling stone in and around its quarry.

HAMILTON SAID his engine was one of many of the same kind used by the sand company to haul up to 90 ton of stone from its quarry to the grinding mill which consisted of about a half - mile trip. He added that his yard-type engine could develop up to 150 horsepower.

The one - man locomotive was built by the H. K. Porter Co. of Pittsburgh and is coal fired. Porter had designed the engine for short hauls — it lacks a fuel tender and has only four wheels. The coal is kept in a compartment inside the cab of the engine.

Another outstanding feature of the locomotive is the water tank which straddles the engine and is not located in the same compartment as the engine as is the case in most long-haul locomotives.

Hamilton, 60, is in the process of laying 1,400 feet of track in back of his home on Route 518 in hopes of using the engine for public rides in the future.

HE PLANS to take his locomotive, which cost $18,000 when new, to the Lisbon Centennial Celebration Thursday where he will have it in operation July 25 as part of the battle re-enactment.

Hamilton's other two steam engines are a 10-ton traction engine and a 2½-ton portable traction engine, both built by the J. I. Case Co. of Racine, Wis. The larger one is a 1912 model, while the smaller engine was built in 1908. Together, the two cost about $2,850 new.

The former Calcutta resident uses the larger engine to run a small sawmill in back of his home, while he takes the smaller one to outings such as the annual Highlandtown Homecoming festivities.

The "steam drivin' " Hamilton, who has worked with steam engines all his life, is now building a one-half scale model of the 1912 traction engine, plus a flatcar to be pulled behind his saddle tank locomotive.

You And The Law

Suppose the TV commercial shows Mr. X, the bigtime ball player, endorsing a certain brand of iced tea. If that glass really contains just colored water which looks better on TV than the tea is this false advertising?

Generally, no. This is considered incidental use of the visual representation of the product. The ball player is doing the endorsing. The fact he has something which looks like tea is "incidental."

HOWEVER, showing "nothing" when there should be "something" can cause other problems. In a recent case, a glass manufacturer purported to show the clarity of his product in comparison with other type of glass, but in reality, the photograph was taken through "nothing."

The Federal Trade Commission found that the advertising misled the public into thinking that there really was glass in the window. It would not matter whether the glass was in fact as clear as represented. If an advertiser performs a demonstration and asks the viewer to rely upon what he sees, the thing the viewer thinks he sees must actually be used.

According to the Federal Trade Commission Act, "the term 'false advertising' means an advertisement other than labeling, which is misleading in a material respect. . ." The act goes on to say that the representations may be made or suggested by statements, word, design, device or sound or any combination and also can include failure to reveal certain facts.

A LEADING drug company was taken to task for advertising that one of its products killed certain types of germs causing a sore throat. True, the preparation killed these germs, but it reached only those present on the surface and not those deeply imbedded in the throat tissues. Therefore, the advertising was misleading and was ordered withdrawn.

In Ohio, so - called "bait advertising" is prohibited. In this type of promotion a product is advertised to draw customers to a sale. When the customer arrives to buy the "special," he is told, "Sorry, they're all gone, but we've got something better." The salesman then trys to sell the customer a higher priced or lower quality item.

In addition to legal agencies, the Better Business Bureaus keep close tabs on advertising. The advertisers and their agencies are, for the most part, very careful. After all, a "bad advertisement" may harm them more in the long run.

Benevolent Volcano

WASHINGTON — The dark cloud of volcanic ash that sifted down into Costa Rica for 20 months had a silver lining: It will enrich the soil for years to come.

The volcano Irazu erupted after 45 dormant years in March 1963, and began to hurl millions of tons of ash over the Central Plateau, where three-fourths of Costa Rica's 1,400,000 citizens live.

Robert de Roos, who was born in Costa Rica, described the eruption and its aftermath in an article, "Costa Rica: Free of the Volcano's Veil," in the July issue of National Geographic.

"DAY AFTER DAY, month after month," Mr. de Roos writes, "the ceniza (ash) poured from the volcano and covered the land. Coffee, the country's largest source of export revenue, was the crop most severely affected, with ten million plants damaged . . . .The dairy industry, an important one, also was affected; production dropped by almost a third."

Four thousand persons — most of them potato and onion growers and dairymen — were driven from the fertile slopes of Irazu. Many were resettled north of San ose, the capital.

When Mr. de Roos visited San Jose after the eruption, the city was choking under a fall of ceniza. The ash seeped through doors and windows, fouled automobile carburetors, contaminated hospital operating rooms, grated against moving parts of machinery, and clogged the city's drainage system. Corrugated metal roofs collapsed under the weight.

By December, 1964, Irazu had subsided. It erupted only intermittently thereafter and threw out much less ash. But Dr. Cesar Dondoli, professor of geology at the University of Costa Rica, calculated that 80 million tons of ceniza fell during the months of Irazu's activity.

Though ceniza is not a fertilizer, it remineralizes the soil. The "ash" is actually a very fine sand — a mixture of silicates, potassium, Calcium, sodium, magnesium, and other elements. In a year or so, Dr. Dondoli believes, it may cause crops to double. This effect may last 10 years.

INCREASED FERTILITY of the soil will aid Costa Rica's "soda-fountain" economy — based on coffee, bananas, sugar, cocoa, and some pineapples. Rice and beans are exported to neighboring countries.

"Although it has known recurring clashes," Mr. de Ros writes, "Costa Rica has been spared the terror of general war. Today the little republic is one of the most politically mature and economically stable of all Latin American nations."

Not many people are rich; neither are many poor. Costa Ricans are proud of their middle class.

The country's most frequent boast: "We have more teachers than soldiers, more schools than barracks." Order is maintained by a small civil guard, but the army was abolished in 1949. Elementary education is free and compulsory, and the literacy rate is 80 percent. About a fourth of the national budget goes to schools.

Costa Rica is the size of New Hampshire and Vermont combined. At its widest point it is less than 200 miles across. Costa Ricans living at an altitude of 3,000 to 5,000 feet, on the Central Plateau, enjoy an almost perfect climate.

The mean annual temperature is 70 degrees Fahrenheit, with a variation of only 10 degrees.

Railroad Wins Suit When Train Strikes House

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A passenger train struck a house near here, and the railroad collected damages for the accident.

Testimony at the trial showed the train rounded a curve at 79 miles per hour three-quarters of a mile from the crossing. The engineer saw a house squarely across the tracks.

He applied the emergency brakes and that slowed the big diesel units to 20 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The house, stuck on the track when its eaves became entangled in crossing signals, was reduced to splinters.

The mover sued the railroad, the owner of the house sued the mover and the railroad filed a counter suit.

The jury awarded the railroad $3,000 and the house's owner was given $1,650 for his loss. The mover had to pay.

Stamps In The News

Many countries throughout the world as well as the United Nations have issued stamps honoring the 100th anniversary of the International Telecommunication Union. The U. S. commemorative will be issued on Oct. 6 in Washington, D. C.

The 11-cent stamp for international surface mail use will show a map of the world in yellow. Superimposed on this design is a series of curved lines in black which are symbolic of a radio sine wave. Beneath is the Morse Code spelling of "ITU" four times. The dates 1865-1965 are in red.

First day collectors may send their requests together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. prior to Oct. 6. The outside cover to the Postmaster should be addressed: "First Day Covers ITU Stamp."

Also announced by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski is the exact design of the Robert Fulton commemorative to honor the 200th anniversary of the inventor's birth. The 5-cent stamp reproduces a bust of Fulton sculptured by Jean Antoine Houdon. To the left is Fulton's first commercially successful steamship, the Clermont.

First day ceremonies will be held Aug. 19 in Clermont, N. Y., where Fulton resided. First day cover collectors, however, should address their requests to: "First Day Covers Fulton Stamp," Postmaster, Kingston, N. Y. 12401, prior to Aug. 19. The covers will carry a Clermont cancellation, nevertheless, because that town does not have a post office. The nearest is Kingston.

IT'S STILL COMMON practice for all-night radio stations to urge their listeners with tremendous ruffles and flourishes at 3 a. m. to hurry down to the neighborhood store right now and demand some of the new product that removes dandruff, polishes tile floors and tightens slipping dental plates—all in one application.

A Madison Ave. type told an interviewer recently that the trend to off-beat advertising developed because most big corporations are fat and contented in today's steadily-growing markets and they'll O.K. any advertising campaign in the open-handed atmosphere.

But he added parenthetically that the bright approach is the right approach in days of general prosperity, particularly for companies which seek to build an image over the long run rather than purvey a paper of pins or sell a sack of potatoes in one well-directed double-barreled blast.

How will it all end? Perhaps when the last of the Ivy League types gives up slaving over a hot typewriter all day and rides off in his Aston-Martin toward a Connecticut exurban sunset to write the Great American Novel, turning the advertising business back to the men who invented morning backaches, halitosis and greasy kid stuff.

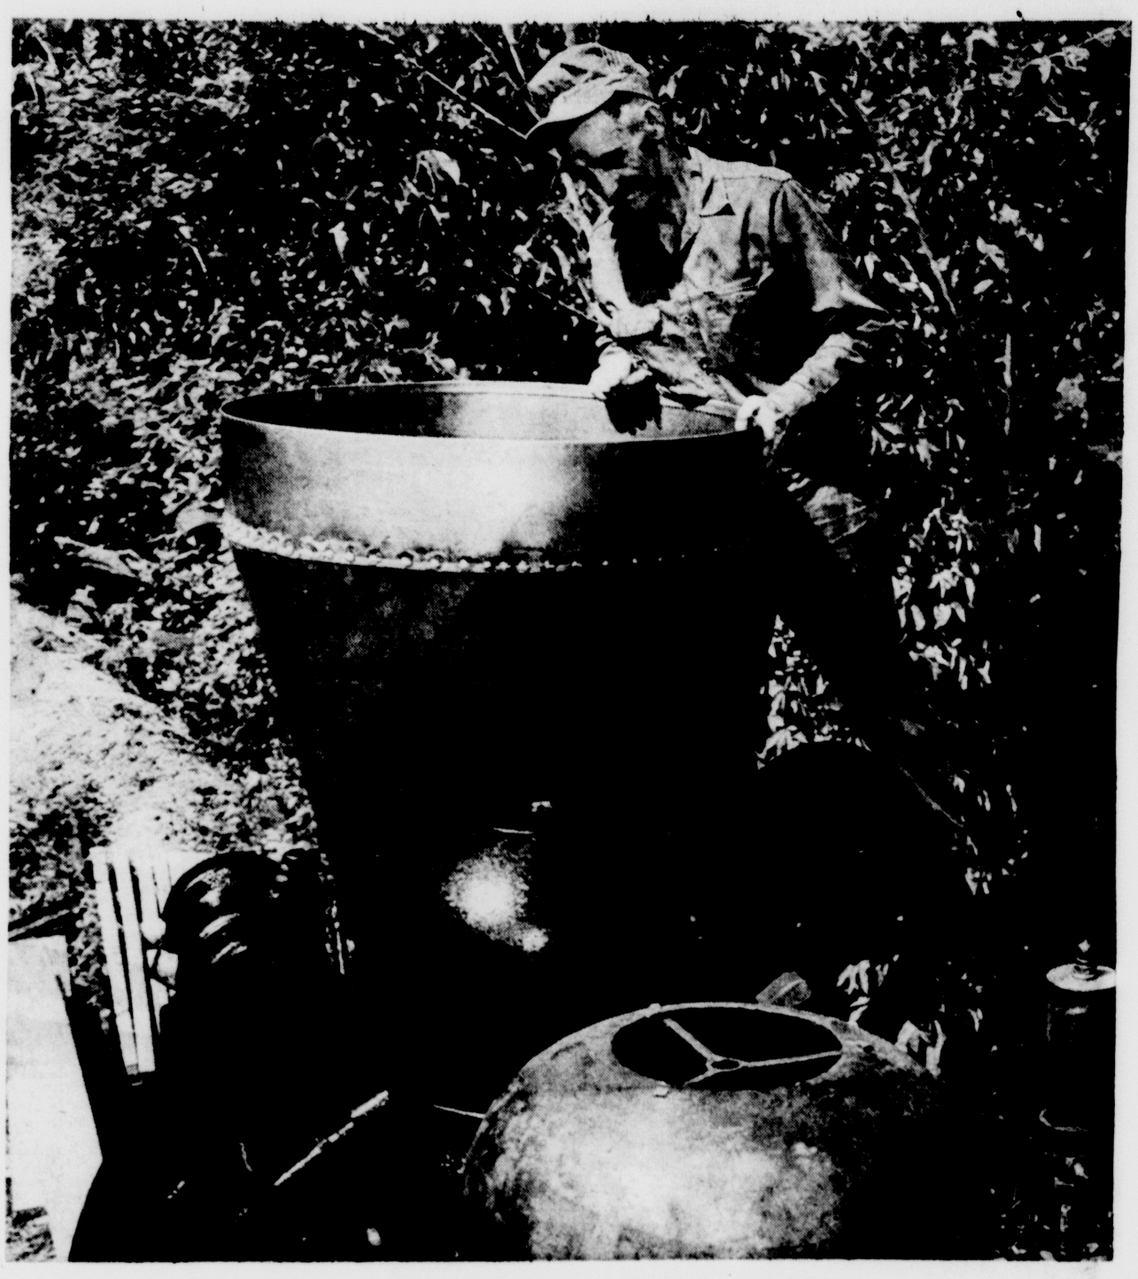
Old Engine Due At Rail Festival



By ROBERT SHAFFER JR.

No, it's not "John Henry—the steel drivin' man," but Earl Hamilton — the steam drivin' man shown gazing down into the newly - renovated smokestack on his 1924, 21-ton saddle tank steam locomotive to be featured in Lisbon's Railroad Centennial next week.

Acquiring this collector's item in 1960 from the Industrial Silica Sand Co. of near Warren, Hamilton has invested about $1,000 in parts toward the complete rennovation of the antique.

Hamilton, who fires boiler at East Liverpool High School, now has three antique steam engines, the other two being smaller and older type engines which were used on the farm to thresh wheat.

His saddle tank engine was used on the railroad by the Warren firm for hauling stone in and around its quarry.

HAMILTON SAID his engine was one of many of the same kind used by the sand company to haul up to 90 ton of stone from its quarry to the grinding mill which consisted of about a half - mile trip. He added that his yard-type engine could develop up to 150 horsepower.

The one - man locomotive was built by the H. K. Porter Co. of Pittsburgh and is coal fired. Porter had designed the engine for short hauls — it lacks a fuel tender and has only four wheels. The coal is kept in a compartment inside the cab of the engine.

Another outstanding feature of the locomotive is the water tank which straddles the engine and is not located in the same compartment as the engine as is the case in most long-haul locomotives.

Hamilton, 60, is in the process of laying 1,400 feet of track in back of his home on Route 518 in hopes of using the engine for public rides in the future.

HE PLANS to take his locomotive, which cost $18,000 when new, to the Lisbon Centennial Celebration Thursday where he will have it in operation July 25 as part of the battle re-enactment.

Hamilton's other two steam engines are a 10-ton traction engine and a 2½-ton portable traction engine, both built by the J. I. Case Co. of Racine, Wis. The larger one is a 1912 model, while the smaller engine was built in 1908. Together, the two cost about $2,850 new.

The former Calcutta resident uses the larger engine to run a small sawmill in back of his home, while he takes the smaller one to outings such as the annual Highlandtown Homecoming festivities.

The "steam drivin' " Hamilton, who has worked with steam engines all his life, is now building a one-half scale model of the 1912 traction engine, plus a flatcar to be pulled behind his saddle tank locomotive.

You And The Law

Suppose the TV commercial shows Mr. X, the bigtime ball player, endorsing a certain brand of iced tea. If that glass really contains just colored water which looks better on TV than the tea is this false advertising?

Generally, no. This is considered incidental use of the visual representation of the product. The ball player is doing the endorsing. The fact he has something which looks like tea is "incidental."

HOWEVER, showing "nothing" when there should be "something" can cause other problems. In a recent case, a glass manufacturer purported to show the clarity of his product in comparison with other type of glass, but in reality, the photograph was taken through "nothing."

The Federal Trade Commission found that the advertising misled the public into thinking that there really was glass in the window. It would not matter whether the glass was in fact as clear as represented. If an advertiser performs a demonstration and asks the viewer to rely upon what he sees, the thing the viewer thinks he sees must actually be used.

According to the Federal Trade Commission Act, "the term 'false advertising' means an advertisement other than labeling, which is misleading in a material respect. . ." The act goes on to say that the representations may be made or suggested by statements, word, design, device or sound or any combination and also can include failure to reveal certain facts.

A LEADING drug company was taken to task for advertising that one of its products killed certain types of germs causing a sore throat. True, the preparation killed these germs, but it reached only those present on the surface and not those deeply imbedded in the throat tissues. Therefore, the advertising was misleading and was ordered withdrawn.

In Ohio, so - called "bait advertising" is prohibited. In this type of promotion a product is advertised to draw customers to a sale. When the customer arrives to buy the "special," he is told, "Sorry, they're all gone, but we've got something better." The salesman then trys to sell the customer a higher priced or lower quality item.

In addition to legal agencies, the Better Business Bureaus keep close tabs on advertising. The advertisers and their agencies are, for the most part, very careful. After all, a "bad advertisement" may harm them more in the long run.

Benevolent Volcano

WASHINGTON — The dark cloud of volcanic ash that sifted down into Costa Rica for 20 months had a silver lining: It will enrich the soil for years to come.

The volcano Irazu erupted after 45 dormant years in March 1963, and began to hurl millions of tons of ash over the Central Plateau, where three-fourths of Costa Rica's 1,400,000 citizens live.

Robert de Roos, who was born in Costa Rica, described the eruption and its aftermath in an article, "Costa Rica: Free of the Volcano's Veil," in the July issue of National Geographic.

"DAY AFTER DAY, month after month," Mr. de Roos writes, "the ceniza (ash) poured from the volcano and covered the land. Coffee, the country's largest source of export revenue, was the crop most severely affected, with ten million plants damaged . . . .The dairy industry, an important one, also was affected; production dropped by almost a third."

Four thousand persons — most of them potato and onion growers and dairymen — were driven from the fertile slopes of Irazu. Many were resettled north of San ose, the capital.

When Mr. de Roos visited San Jose after the eruption, the city was choking under a fall of ceniza. The ash seeped through doors and windows, fouled automobile carburetors, contaminated hospital operating rooms, grated against moving parts of machinery, and clogged the city's drainage system. Corrugated metal roofs collapsed under the weight.

By December, 1964, Irazu had subsided. It erupted only intermittently thereafter and threw out much less ash. But Dr. Cesar Dondoli, professor of geology at the University of Costa Rica, calculated that 80 million tons of ceniza fell during the months of Irazu's activity.

Though ceniza is not a fertilizer, it remineralizes the soil. The "ash" is actually a very fine sand — a mixture of silicates, potassium, Calcium, sodium, magnesium, and other elements. In a year or so, Dr. Dondoli believes, it may cause crops to double. This effect may last 10 years.

INCREASED FERTILITY of the soil will aid Costa Rica's "soda-fountain" economy — based on coffee, bananas, sugar, cocoa, and some pineapples. Rice and beans are exported to neighboring countries.

"Although it has known recurring clashes," Mr. de Ros writes, "Costa Rica has been spared the terror of general war. Today the little republic is one of the most politically mature and economically stable of all Latin American nations."

Not many people are rich; neither are many poor. Costa Ricans are proud of their middle class.

The country's most frequent boast: "We have more teachers than soldiers, more schools than barracks." Order is maintained by a small civil guard, but the army was abolished in 1949. Elementary education is free and compulsory, and the literacy rate is 80 percent. About a fourth of the national budget goes to schools.

Costa Rica is the size of New Hampshire and Vermont combined. At its widest point it is less than 200 miles across. Costa Ricans living at an altitude of 3,000 to 5,000 feet, on the Central Plateau, enjoy an almost perfect climate.

The mean annual temperature is 70 degrees Fahrenheit, with a variation of only 10 degrees.

Railroad Wins Suit When Train Strikes House

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A passenger train struck a house near here, and the railroad collected damages for the accident.

Testimony at the trial showed the train rounded a curve at 79 miles per hour three-quarters of a mile from the crossing. The engineer saw a house squarely across the tracks.

He applied the emergency brakes and that slowed the big diesel units to 20 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The house, stuck on the track when its eaves became entangled in crossing signals, was reduced to splinters.

The mover sued the railroad, the owner of the house sued the mover and the railroad filed a counter suit.

The jury awarded the railroad $3,000 and the house's owner was given $1,650 for his loss. The mover had to pay.

Stamps In The News

Many countries throughout the world as well as the United Nations have issued stamps honoring the 100th anniversary of the International Telecommunication Union. The U. S. commemorative will be issued on Oct. 6 in Washington, D. C.

The 11-cent stamp for international surface mail use will show a map of the world in yellow. Superimposed on this design is a series of curved lines in black which are symbolic of a radio sine wave. Beneath is the Morse Code spelling of "ITU" four times. The dates 1865-1965 are in red.

First day collectors may send their requests together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. prior to Oct. 6. The outside cover to the Postmaster should be addressed: "First Day Covers ITU Stamp."

Also announced by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski is the exact design of the Robert Fulton commemorative to honor the 200th anniversary of the inventor's birth. The 5-cent stamp reproduces a bust of Fulton sculptured by Jean Antoine Houdon. To the left is Fulton's first commercially successful steamship, the Clermont.

First day ceremonies will be held Aug. 19 in Clermont, N. Y., where Fulton resided. First day cover collectors, however, should address their requests to: "First Day Covers Fulton Stamp," Postmaster, Kingston, N. Y. 12401, prior to Aug. 19. The covers will carry a Clermont cancellation, nevertheless, because that town does not have a post office. The nearest is Kingston.

Southern Roast

1 can onion soup
1 can mushroom soup
Beef roast

Place large piece of foil in pan, add onion soup, then place roast in pan, pour mushroom soup over roast, close foil and cook in the usual fashion. Makes delicious gravy.

Chocolate Icing

1 stick margarine
½ cup cocoa
1 box confectioners sugar
1/3 cup evaporated milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix softened margarine and cocoa, place over flame and heat until mixture turns dark in color. Blend in confectioner's sugar, milk and vanilla. Beat icing, then place over unit and heat before spreading on cake.

Ohio Assembly Chalks Up 'Firsts' To Help Erase 'Do-Nothing' Image

By WILLIAM S. VANCE
Review Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — In spite of itself, the 106th Ohio General Assembly is writing a record of achievement which should help dispel its do-nothing image.

It's true that political bickering, boondoggling and general foot - dragging have prolonged this session beyond justification.

But during the last week some important pieces fell into place and a legislature that started out with nothing special to do six months ago was on its way to chalking up some significant "firsts."

THE FIRST reorganization of Ohio's complex welfare structure in 30 years, consolidating all public assistance programs on the county level, won final approval in the Senate.

A school foundation bill, the major obstacle in the way of adjournment, cleared the House and goes to the Senate next week. It provides a $100 million increase in the state's public school subsidy for the next two years — the biggest ever.

The first major piece of strip mine legislation in more than a decade neared the end of its long and rocky course through the Assembly with passage in the House.

A BILL providing a $20 million salary increase for some 39,000 state employes — their first raise since 1959 — needs only the governor's signature to begin putting the extra cash in their pockets.

Another "first" is scheduled to come before the House Tuesday or Wednesday. It's the much - debated "fair housing" bill which would attempt the first inroads in Ohio against racial discrimination in housing rentals and sales.

Bills such as these would stand out in any session of the legislature. They loom larger in this session because there is so little else of statewide consequence before it.

THERE IS no administration program and there has been little active direction from the legislative leaders. Gov. James A. Rhodes got the major portions of his program enacted at the special session at last year's end.

Legislators generally have had to make their own way through an aimless session, a fact which makes any major accomplishment somewhat remarkable.

While action on major bills during the week represented progress, there is another side to the coin which is not so shiny.

The legislature, caught in a self-spun web of delay, is laboring under a handicap of apathy and absenteeism as it tries to close up shop.

FRIDAY SESSIONS have been ordered in an effort to move closer to the finish line. This may look like an extra pust in the eyes of the public, but it really isn't.

For the most part, major bills have not been scheduled on Fridays because the leadership is aware of potential absenteeism. The members also are aware that their absence is half expected. Many of them live up to that expectation.

The result has been postponement until the following week of bills which are at all controversial, defeating the purpose of the extended week.

AN EXCEPTION was Friday when the strip mine bill, among others, was carried over from Thursday afternoon when the House remained in session until 6:15 p.m. to pass the school foundation bill.

It seemed to observers here that a night session, such as the Senate held, could have polished off the leftovers.

But it was a night of gaiety, not legislating, as members attended a series of end-of-session committee parties in downtown Columbus night spots.

Committee chairmen, incidentally, have been running into attendance problems, too. They've had to do some hunting to round up enough members to form the quorum necessary to act on pending bills.

This is a situation that isn't likely to improve unless the leadership cracks down. Progress or no progress, further delays this late in the summer will make it increasingly difficult for the chiefs to keep their Indians on the reservation.

Weaker Moscow Grip On Soviet Bloc

Romanian Reds Stir Talk In Growing Independence

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—The fourth congress of Romania's Communist party opens next week on a note of growing independence that points up Moscow's weakening grip on the Soviet bloc.

A new national constitution and a rewritten party statute, to be adopted during the five-day congress, virtually deny Soviet claims to leadership in a manner likely to be embarrassing to the Kremlin.

The draft constitution omits any reference to the neighboring Soviet Union.

In one of its 116 articles, the constitution sets forth Romania's future relationships with "other Socialist countries on the basis of friendship and brotherly cooperation."

Designed to replace the first Communist constitution adopted in 1952 during the era of Stalinist domination, the draft stresses the need for close ties with "countries of different social and political order" — namely, the West.

The party statute, approved by the party's Central Committee last month and published recently in the Romanian press, strikes a note of political autonomy.

Unlike other East European parties which still adhere to a policy of Soviet leadership, the Romanians have bowed out of any commitments that might infringe on their new independent status.

The statute declares that the party, as the leading political and social power, "bases its activities upon Marxist-Leninist teachings — implementing them in accordance with the specific conditions and characteristics of our country."

In a manifesto published in April 1964, they claimed full equality with the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev's successors, party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, apparently have resigned themselves to Romania's autonomous course.

In an apparent effort to patch up differences, Brezhnev is heading a Soviet delegation to the congress which opens Monday.

Former Diplomat Will Head Dominican Provisional Rule

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Hector Garcia-Godoy has asked his boss for nine months leave of absence — "and not a day more" to serve as president of a provisional government.

The 44-year-old former diplomat, now the vice president of a big tobacco company, dwelt on the point in an interview. It was his way of emphasizing that he has no "personal political ambitions but only a desire to help my country emerge from this rebellion."

Under an Organization of American States peace formula, Garcia-Godoy will head a compromise government until elections are held in six to nine months. The deeply divided factions in the Dominican rebellion have reluctantly agreed to accept him as president. For nine months he must somehow hold their support.

"My main task will be to prepare the country for the election of a popular government," Garcia-Godoy said. "But in agreeing to become president, I made it clear that I would take whatever steps I consider necessary to initiate reform and development programs."

Hector Garcia-Godoy Caceres — he never uses the Caceres — was born Jan. 11, 1921, in Moca, in the fertile Cibao Valley. His family is old, aristocratic, and wealthy.

Garcia-Godoy went to high school in Washington where his father, Dr. Emilio Garcia-Godoy, was stationed as ambassador to the United States. He received a law degree from the University of Santo Domingo in 1944 and shortly afterward entered diplomatic service, serving in Costa Rica and Nicaragua until 1947.

For the next eight years he held executive posts in two state banks.

Garcia-Godoy re-entered the diplomatic service in 1956, as permanent Dominican delegate in London to the International Sugar Council.

In 1958 he was named ambassador to Belgium and a year later ambassador to Great Britain.

Garcia-Godoy speaks fluent English and French. He is a man of medium height, nearly bald, a careful dresser.

Lake Marwin Sold To Man At Wellsville

Lake Marwin, swimming and recreation area northwest of the city, has been purchased from Dr. F. D. Irwin, city dentist, by Dale Rudibaugh, owner of the Wellsville Feed Co.

The transaction includes the 13-acre park's lake area, buildings, swimming pool and equipment, but not the newly-installed driving range, according to Dr. Irwin, who will continue as supervisor of the park.

The amount of money involved in the sale was not disclosed.

Lake Marwin was begun in 1948 as a small pond and was enlarged to its present size in 1951, with a pay fishing lake started in 1953 and the swimming pool, dance hall and picnic facilities added in 1956.

Present facilities include fishing, boating, water bikes, miniature golf and other recreation.

Permanent Grave For Kennedy To Cost $1.4 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1,408,350 contract has been awarded for construction of a permanent grave for President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery.

The Aberthaw Construction Co. of Boston and Washington was the low bidder of nine firms which submitted bids among the 15 contractors solicited. Work is to begin this month.

The office of the chief of Army Engineers said Friday the project is expected to take 14 months.

The contract covers all major construction associated with the development of the grave and surrounding area. This will include the grave terrace, the terminal wall behind the grave, an elliptical overlook with an adjacent low wall and a circular walkway 210 feet in diameter.

Other contracst will be signed shortly, the engineers said. They will cover the marble base and bronze font for the eternal flame, the presidential seal on the terminal wall behind the grave, inscriptions on the overlook wall and three slate grave markers.

The original estimate for the grave was $2 million, with the government paying most of the cost as a shrine. The Kennedy family offered to pay all costs associated with graves themselves — estimated at between $200,000 and $400,000.

Young Raps Retired Officers In Top Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, says retired high-ranking military officers should not be placed in high positions in government.

He said in a statement Friday that some of the well-paid retired officers now in federal civilian jobs received their adjusted retirement pay plus civilian salaries ranging from 36,000 to $40,000 a year.

Democratic Leader Cited On Viet Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top House Republican has accused the Senate Democratic leadership of abandoning "rational debate and reasonable discussion" of President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin made the assertion Friday in a statement aimed at Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

"Certainly rational debate and reasonable discussion have been abandoned — not by Republicans, but the leaders of the President's majority in the United States Senate," Laird said. The situation this creates, he added, "is deplorable."

Laird, a frequent critic of the administration, has said the President might be close to losing GOP support on Viet Nam. He is chairman of the House Republican Conference, which includes all GOP members.

His remarks followed Senate speeches by Mansfield on June 30 and July 8. He criticized House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan for what he said was a threat to withdraw support from Johnson unless he orders "indiscriminate slaughter of Vietnamese by air and naval bombardment."

Republicans have "proceeded in a reasonable and responsible manner," Laird said. "They have shown a spirit of fairness in standing up for the administration policy against Democratic critics of that policy."

Meanwhile, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., frequently at odds with administration policies, told the Senate that Congress should stay in session because of the Vietnamese situation.

Morse said Congress must remain as a restraint to President Johnson's conduct of the war and what he called "a dangerous, desperate group of men in the Pentagon who want a preventive war against Red China."

Morse predicted that if the United States bombs Hanoi or Red China, the Soviet Union will respond with all-out attacks on U.S. cities.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., also suggested remaining in session, but for a different reason. He said at a hearing on the $45-billion defense bill that Congress should stay to determine the amount of money required to meet rising costs of the Viet Nam war.

5 From Chester Will Attend Camp

Five students from Chester will be among those attending the Veterans of Foreign Wars annual youth camp Sunday through next Saturday at Cedar Lakes near Ripley, W. Va.

They are Larry E. Allison, Connie Graham, Bonita Diane Johnson, Kimberly Laufenberger and Walter C. Selmon.

This is the fifth year the West Virginia VFW has sponsored the program. The seven-day camp session, according to David J. Lowery of Weirton, director, is based on the theme "Understanding and Appreciating West Virginia."

It is designed to give seventh, eighth and ninth grade students a better appreciation of the natural wonders and resources and to instill a deep sense of pride in the state in which they live.

Hunters in Europe have lured deer within shooting range by hiring violinists to play for them. In Sweden, one critical moose became so enraged at what he heard that he charged into the blind and killed both the hunter and musician.

Bennett Bares Red Influence During Revolt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett Jr., the man who asked President Johnson to send the Marines into the Dominican Republic, says there was "a strong Communist influence" from the beginning of the revolt.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Bennett told the committee Friday there still is a substantial Communist influence there, but "it is now less capable of exerting itself." He said this was because of the presence of the United States and the Organization of American States.

Bennett asked the President to send troops in April. The reason given for the intervention was first to protect American lives in Santo Domingo and later to prevent a Communist takeover there.

Fulbright quoted Bennett as saying many Latin-American leaders "approved of what we have done privately, but don't wish to say so publicly."

Fulbright said "it's a very chaotic situation" and there are many problems other than communism.

The United States has been criticized in Latin America and elsewhere for disregarding OAS treaty obligations in sending in its troops, and for allegedly exaggerating the Communist influence in the Dominican Republic.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, July 17, the 198th day of 1965. There are 167 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, President Harry S. Truman, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin met in Potsdam, on the outskirts of Berlin, to outline joint Allied policy for the remainder of World War II and its aftermath.

On this date

In 1897, the Klondike Gold Rush was touched off by the arrival of the treasure ship Portland at Seattle, Wash.

In 1898, the Spanish surrendered to U.S. forces at Santiago, Cuba.

In 1899, Horatio Alger, whose books had influenced a generation of American boys, died at Natick, Mass.

In 1917, a palace proclamation changed the name of the English royal family from Hanover to Windsor.

In 1938, Douglas (wrong-way) Corrigan took off from New York, ostensibly for California. He landed in Ireland.

Ten years ago—A commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover reported the government's executive branch could save $15 million a year just by cutting red tape.

Five years ago — Missile expert Dr. Wernher Von Braun declared the United States was ahead of Russia in the ballistic missile race.

One year ago—The Organization of African Unity met in Cairo to plan more political and economic pressure on Portugal and South Africa.

The ladies of Edenton, N. C. made history by staging a feminine Revolutionary Tea Party on Oct. 25, 1774. The location on Courthouse Green is marked with a bronze teapot.

Insects AND YOUR HEALTH

CARPET BEETLES
by Jim Fisher

Not so well-known as clothes moths, but just as destructive to fabrics are carpet beetles or "buffalo moths." Carpet beetles are more abundant than clothes moths in some localities. The larvae of clothes moths and carpet beetles damage fabrics by feeding on them. They feed on anything that contains wool or other fibers. The adult moths and beetles do no damage. Estimates of the damage caused each year by clothes moths and carpet beetles in the United States range from 200 million to 500 million dollars.

HOW THEY START

In some areas, infestations by carpet beetles are started by the adults that fly from house to house. They are sometimes carried into homes on articles containing wool or other animal fibers. Most commonly, these articles are second hand clothing, upholstered furniture and household furnishings. Good housekeeping practices have a specific bearing on control of fabric pests in the home.

PERIODIC CHECK UP

It is a good idea to have a periodic check-up of your home by a qualified pest control operator. At Fisher PEST CONTROL, we know the habit and best control methods of all insects and household pests that may be a threat to your home and family. Ohio Assembly Chalks Up 'Firsts' To Help Erase 'Do-Nothing' Image

By WILLIAM S. VANCE
Review Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — In spite of itself, the 106th Ohio General Assembly is writing a record of achievement which should help dispel its do-nothing image.

It's true that political bickering, boondoggling and general foot - dragging have prolonged this session beyond justification.

But during the last week some important pieces fell into place and a legislature that started out with nothing special to do six months ago was on its way to chalking up some significant "firsts."

THE FIRST reorganization of Ohio's complex welfare structure in 30 years, consolidating all public assistance programs on the county level, won final approval in the Senate.

A school foundation bill, the major obstacle in the way of adjournment, cleared the House and goes to the Senate next week. It provides a $100 million increase in the state's public school subsidy for the next two years — the biggest ever.

The first major piece of strip mine legislation in more than a decade neared the end of its long and rocky course through the Assembly with passage in the House.

A BILL providing a $20 million salary increase for some 39,000 state employes — their first raise since 1959 — needs only the governor's signature to begin putting the extra cash in their pockets.

Another "first" is scheduled to come before the House Tuesday or Wednesday. It's the much - debated "fair housing" bill which would attempt the first inroads in Ohio against racial discrimination in housing rentals and sales.

Bills such as these would stand out in any session of the legislature. They loom larger in this session because there is so little else of statewide consequence before it.

THERE IS no administration program and there has been little active direction from the legislative leaders. Gov. James A. Rhodes got the major portions of his program enacted at the special session at last year's end.

Legislators generally have had to make their own way through an aimless session, a fact which makes any major accomplishment somewhat remarkable.

While action on major bills during the week represented progress, there is another side to the coin which is not so shiny.

The legislature, caught in a self-spun web of delay, is laboring under a handicap of apathy and absenteeism as it tries to close up shop.

FRIDAY SESSIONS have been ordered in an effort to move closer to the finish line. This may look like an extra pust in the eyes of the public, but it really isn't.

For the most part, major bills have not been scheduled on Fridays because the leadership is aware of potential absenteeism. The members also are aware that their absence is half expected. Many of them live up to that expectation.

The result has been postponement until the following week of bills which are at all controversial, defeating the purpose of the extended week.

AN EXCEPTION was Friday when the strip mine bill, among others, was carried over from Thursday afternoon when the House remained in session until 6:15 p.m. to pass the school foundation bill.

It seemed to observers here that a night session, such as the Senate held, could have polished off the leftovers.

But it was a night of gaiety, not legislating, as members attended a series of end-of-session committee parties in downtown Columbus night spots.

Committee chairmen, incidentally, have been running into attendance problems, too. They've had to do some hunting to round up enough members to form the quorum necessary to act on pending bills.

This is a situation that isn't likely to improve unless the leadership cracks down. Progress or no progress, further delays this late in the summer will make it increasingly difficult for the chiefs to keep their Indians on the reservation.

Weaker Moscow Grip On Soviet Bloc

Romanian Reds Stir Talk In Growing Independence

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—The fourth congress of Romania's Communist party opens next week on a note of growing independence that points up Moscow's weakening grip on the Soviet bloc.

A new national constitution and a rewritten party statute, to be adopted during the five-day congress, virtually deny Soviet claims to leadership in a manner likely to be embarrassing to the Kremlin.

The draft constitution omits any reference to the neighboring Soviet Union.

In one of its 116 articles, the constitution sets forth Romania's future relationships with "other Socialist countries on the basis of friendship and brotherly cooperation."

Designed to replace the first Communist constitution adopted in 1952 during the era of Stalinist domination, the draft stresses the need for close ties with "countries of different social and political order" — namely, the West.

The party statute, approved by the party's Central Committee last month and published recently in the Romanian press, strikes a note of political autonomy.

Unlike other East European parties which still adhere to a policy of Soviet leadership, the Romanians have bowed out of any commitments that might infringe on their new independent status.

The statute declares that the party, as the leading political and social power, "bases its activities upon Marxist-Leninist teachings — implementing them in accordance with the specific conditions and characteristics of our country."

In a manifesto published in April 1964, they claimed full equality with the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev's successors, party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, apparently have resigned themselves to Romania's autonomous course.

In an apparent effort to patch up differences, Brezhnev is heading a Soviet delegation to the congress which opens Monday.

Former Diplomat Will Head Dominican Provisional Rule

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Hector Garcia-Godoy has asked his boss for nine months leave of absence — "and not a day more" to serve as president of a provisional government.

The 44-year-old former diplomat, now the vice president of a big tobacco company, dwelt on the point in an interview. It was his way of emphasizing that he has no "personal political ambitions but only a desire to help my country emerge from this rebellion."

Under an Organization of American States peace formula, Garcia-Godoy will head a compromise government until elections are held in six to nine months. The deeply divided factions in the Dominican rebellion have reluctantly agreed to accept him as president. For nine months he must somehow hold their support.

"My main task will be to prepare the country for the election of a popular government," Garcia-Godoy said. "But in agreeing to become president, I made it clear that I would take whatever steps I consider necessary to initiate reform and development programs."

Hector Garcia-Godoy Caceres — he never uses the Caceres — was born Jan. 11, 1921, in Moca, in the fertile Cibao Valley. His family is old, aristocratic, and wealthy.

Garcia-Godoy went to high school in Washington where his father, Dr. Emilio Garcia-Godoy, was stationed as ambassador to the United States. He received a law degree from the University of Santo Domingo in 1944 and shortly afterward entered diplomatic service, serving in Costa Rica and Nicaragua until 1947.

For the next eight years he held executive posts in two state banks.

Garcia-Godoy re-entered the diplomatic service in 1956, as permanent Dominican delegate in London to the International Sugar Council.

In 1958 he was named ambassador to Belgium and a year later ambassador to Great Britain.

Lake Marwin Sold To Man At Wellsville

Lake Marwin, swimming and recreation area northwest of the city, has been purchased from Dr. F. D. Irwin, city dentist, by Dale Rudibaugh, owner of the Wellsville Feed Co.

The transaction includes the 13-acre park's lake area, buildings, swimming pool and equipment, but not the newly-installed driving range, according to Dr. Irwin, who will continue as supervisor of the park.

The amount of money involved in the sale was not disclosed.

Lake Marwin was begun in 1948 as a small pond and was enlarged to its present size in 1951, with a pay fishing lake started in 1953 and the swimming pool, dance hall and picnic facilities added in 1956.

Present facilities include fishing, boating, water bikes, miniature golf and other recreation.

Permanent Grave For Kennedy To Cost $1.4 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1,408,350 contract has been awarded for construction of a permanent grave for President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery.

The Aberthaw Construction Co. of Boston and Washington was the low bidder of nine firms which submitted bids among the 15 contractors solicited. Work is to begin this month.

The office of the chief of Army Engineers said Friday the project is expected to take 14 months.

The contract covers all major construction associated with the development of the grave and surrounding area. This will include the grave terrace, the terminal wall behind the grave, an elliptical overlook with an adjacent low wall and a circular walkway 210 feet in diameter.

Other contracst will be signed shortly, the engineers said. They will cover the marble base and bronze font for the eternal flame, the presidential seal on the terminal wall behind the grave, inscriptions on the overlook wall and three slate grave markers.

The original estimate for the grave was $2 million, with the government paying most of the cost as a shrine. The Kennedy family offered to pay all costs associated with graves themselves — estimated at between $200,000 and $400,000.

Young Raps Retired Officers In Top Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, says retired high-ranking military officers should not be placed in high positions in government.

He said in a statement Friday that some of the well-paid retired officers now in federal civilian jobs received their adjusted retirement pay plus civilian salaries ranging from 36,000 to $40,000 a year.

Democratic Leader Cited On Viet Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top House Republican has accused the Senate Democratic leadership of abandoning "rational debate and reasonable discussion" of President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin made the assertion Friday in a statement aimed at Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

"Certainly rational debate and reasonable discussion have been abandoned — not by Republicans, but the leaders of the President's majority in the United States Senate," Laird said. The situation this creates, he added, "is deplorable."

Laird, a frequent critic of the administration, has said the President might be close to losing GOP support on Viet Nam. He is chairman of the House Republican Conference, which includes all GOP members.

His remarks followed Senate speeches by Mansfield on June 30 and July 8. He criticized House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan for what he said was a threat to withdraw support from Johnson unless he orders "indiscriminate slaughter of Vietnamese by air and naval bombardment."

Republicans have "proceeded in a reasonable and responsible manner," Laird said. "They have shown a spirit of fairness in standing up for the administration policy against Democratic critics of that policy."

Meanwhile, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., frequently at odds with administration policies, told the Senate that Congress should stay in session because of the Vietnamese situation.

Morse said Congress must remain as a restraint to President Johnson's conduct of the war and what he called "a dangerous, desperate group of men in the Pentagon who want a preventive war against Red China."

Morse predicted that if the United States bombs Hanoi or Red China, the Soviet Union will respond with all-out attacks on U.S. cities.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., also suggested remaining in session, but for a different reason. He said at a hearing on the $45-billion defense bill that Congress should stay to determine the amount of money required to meet rising costs of the Viet Nam war.

5 From Chester Will Attend Camp

Five students from Chester will be among those attending the Veterans of Foreign Wars annual youth camp Sunday through next Saturday at Cedar Lakes near Ripley, W. Va.

They are Larry E. Allison, Connie Graham, Bonita Diane Johnson, Kimberly Laufenberger and Walter C. Selmon.

This is the fifth year the West Virginia VFW has sponsored the program. The seven-day camp session, according to David J. Lowery of Weirton, director, is based on the theme "Understanding and Appreciating West Virginia."

It is designed to give seventh, eighth and ninth grade students a better appreciation of the natural wonders and resources and to instill a deep sense of pride in the state in which they live.

Hunters in Europe have lured deer within shooting range by hiring violinists to play for them. In Sweden, one critical moose became so enraged at what he heard that he charged into the blind and killed both the hunter and musician.

Bennett Bares Red Influence During Revolt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett Jr., the man who asked President Johnson to send the Marines into the Dominican Republic, says there was "a strong Communist influence" from the beginning of the revolt.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Bennett told the committee Friday there still is a substantial Communist influence there, but "it is now less capable of exerting itself." He said this was because of the presence of the United States and the Organization of American States.

Bennett asked the President to send troops in April. The reason given for the intervention was first to protect American lives in Santo Domingo and later to prevent a Communist takeover there.

Fulbright quoted Bennett as saying many Latin-American leaders "approved of what we have done privately, but don't wish to say so publicly."

Fulbright said "it's a very chaotic situation" and there are many problems other than communism.

The United States has been criticized in Latin America and elsewhere for disregarding OAS treaty obligations in sending in its troops, and for allegedly exaggerating the Communist influence in the Dominican Republic.

Insects AND YOUR HEALTH

CARPET BEETLES
by Jim Fisher

Not so well-known as clothes moths, but just as destructive to fabrics are carpet beetles or "buffalo moths." Carpet beetles are more abundant than clothes moths in some localities. The larvae of clothes moths and carpet beetles damage fabrics by feeding on them. They feed on anything that contains wool or other fibers. The adult moths and beetles do no damage. Estimates of the damage caused each year by clothes moths and carpet beetles in the United States range from 200 million to 500 million dollars.

HOW THEY START

In some areas, infestations by carpet beetles are started by the adults that fly from house to house. They are sometimes carried into homes on articles containing wool or other animal fibers. Most commonly, these articles are second hand clothing, upholstered furniture and household furnishings. Good housekeeping practices have a specific bearing on control of fabric pests in the home.

Koufax Turns Hitter In Recording 16th Victory

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's taken Sandy Koufax 10 years, but he's finally made it.

As a hitter.

Koufax, one of the best pitchers in baseball but previously one of the worst hitters, continued his surprising batting pace Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-0 and remained just four percentage points behind National League-leading Cincinnati.

The 29-year-old Dodger ace rapped two key singles, setting up two runs and scoring the other.

The two-hit game, his fourth of the season and second in a row, rocketed his batting average to .227 with 15 hits in 66 times at bat. Never before has Koufax collected more than seven hits in a season. Never before has he batted better than .123.

With two out in the second inning, Jim Lefebvre singled. Instead of finding Koufax an easy third out, Cub pitcher Larry Jackson found the ball sailing into center field for a single.

Lefebvre stopped at second, then scored as Ernie Banks let Maury Wills' grounder get by him for an error. Koufax followed across as Jim Gilliam singled.

Then, in the sixth, Lefebvre walked with two out, and this time Koufax lined a single up the middle. Lefebvre again moved to second, then scooted home on Wills' single.

Oh yes. The victory was Koufax' 10th straight and 16th of the season — high in the majors — against three defeats. He posted his third shutout and lowered his earned run average to 2.02 while completing his 15th game in 22 starts.

He also extended his National League record by reaching 200 strikeouts for the fifth consecutive year. He fanned nine, giving him a major league-leading total of 204, just 102 away from his National League record of 306.

Elsewhere in the league, Cincinnati knocked off Philadelphia 5-1, Milwaukee crushed Pittsburgh 12-2, St. Louis trimmed New York 8-5 and San Francisco nipped Houston 2-1.

Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis pitched a five-hitter for his 13th victory against four defeats. One of the Philadelphia hits was Johnny Callison's 18th home run in the ninth inning. The Reds scored two runs against Jim Bunning, 10-6, in the first when Dick Stuart dropped a two-out throw from Cookie Rojas.

Wade Blasingame scattered 10 hits for Milwaukee, bringing his record to 10-7, and socked two doubles. Rico Carty drove in three runs as the Braves handed Pittsburgh's Bob Veale his seventh setback against nine victories.

St. Louis erupted for six runs in the sixth inning, three on errors by Al Jackson and Roy McMillan, erasing a 4-2 New York lead. Bob Gibson brought his record to 11-7 although he gave up home runs to Charley Smith, Jesse Gonder, Johnny Lewis and Jim Hickman.

Bob Shaw held Houston to two hits through seven innings, one of them Joe Morgan's home run, and three Giant relievers held the Astros hitless the rest of the way. Dick Schofield singled across the winning run in San Francisco's two-run seventh inning.

Brown Leads Off 10th With Homer

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Let's say you've got this pitcher who's gone seven innings and given up just three hits and you've got a 3-0 lead and then he gives up one more hit. So what do you do?

Bill Rigney lifted him.

And he lost it.

The Chicago White Sox, delighted with Mr. Rigney's quick hook Friday night, called on Floyd Robinson and Eddie Fisher for key performances, quickly tied the Los Angeles Angels after George Brunet had been lifted and finally won it in the 11th, 4-3.

The victory lifted the Sox to third place, 4½ games back of the American League-leading Minnesota Twins and only one-half game back of the second place Cleveland Indians.

Kansas City bombed Minnesota 10-2, Cleveland edged Boston 4-3 in 10 innings, New York took Washington 9-5 and Baltimore edged Detroit 2-1 in 11 innings, all in night games.

In the National League, also all at night, Sandy Koufax and the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Chicago 3-0, San Francisco edged Houston 2-1, Cincinnati took Philadelphia 5-1, Milwaukee bombed Pittsburgh 12-2, and St. Louis beat the New York Mets 12-2.

The clutch performances of Fisher and Robinson were the chief reasons Angel manager Rigney was being exposed to some severe second guessing today on his move in taking out Brunet at a key juncture.

Brunet had a 3-0 lead and had allowed only three White Sox hits through seven innings. But the White Sox' Ken Berry led off the eighth with a single and Rigney decided Brunet had had enough.

He sent in Bob Lee. Another single and Smoky Burgess' sacrifice fly produced one run and another single sent Lee to the showers. Ed Sukla relieved him, got one man out, and then Robinson's pinch double drove in two runs that tied it and sent it into extra innings.

Robinson also tripled in the winning run in the 11th, beating Dean Chance and giving Eddie Fisher his 11th victory — most in the league — against three losses.

Larry Brown's homer leading off the 10th inning won it for the Indians and handed Boston's Dick Radatz his seventh loss. The Indians had taken a 3-2 lead in the sixth on homers by Fred Whitfield and Leon Wagner, but Boston tied it in the ninth on Bob Tillman's run-scoring single.

Hector Lopez led the Yankees against Washington, driving in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a bases-loaded single, the latter in New York's five-run third. A solo homer by Bobby Richardson in the fourth proved to be the winner.

Kansas City rushed in four runs after two were out in the first inning and romped in from there, adding runs in clusters of three in the third and sixth against the stunned Twins. Two walks and six singles got the A's started after two were out.

Baltimore tied Detroit 1-1 on Boog Powell's homer in the seventh inning and won it in the 11th when Brooks Robinson led off with a double and scored on two wild pitches by Larry Sherry.

Brown's Accuser Sticks To Story

CLEVELAND (AP) — The sensational trial of pro football star Jim Brown has been highlighted by a battle of wills between defense attorney Norman S. Minor and Brown's 18-year-old accuser, Miss Brenda Ayres.

Miss Ayres, the shapely high school dropout who accused Brown of slapping her in a motel room, testified over a period of three days in the assault and battery case.

Minor pounded at her all day Friday in cross - examination, trying to trip her into admitting that a shakedown attempt was behind the charges she filed with police.

But Miss Ayres, who left the stand in tears the two previous days, denied steadfastly that allegations raised by the attorney were true.

The questioning concerned an alleged telephone conversation June 21 between Miss Ayres and Miss Paula White, 16, who introduced Miss Ayres to the Cleveland Browns' all-star fullback. Miss Ayres refused to admit to any conversations with Miss White about trapping Brown for money.

She did admit accepting a $60 gift from the 29-year-old Brown, who is married and the father of three. She said Brown gave her the money to visit a sick uncle in Dayton.

"There is a big dollar sign hanging all over the picture," Minor said, but not a word from the state's star witness supported his contention.

Among questions fired at Miss Ayres was whether she once told Miss White she liked Brown and thought she "could get something out of him." And whether she told Miss White that Brown "will drop it (the case) and he'll have to pay a whole lot of money." The witness answered with a firm, "No, I did not.

"Didn't you say, 'You help me and you'll get something out of it?' " Minor demanded.

"Mr. Minor, I have already stated that I did not talk to Paula White that day—June 21, Miss Ayres replied.

She answered no, also, when Minor asked her if she told Miss White that her mother told her "it would be necessary for me to tell some lies and that if they let Jim do all the talking he could clear himself and I would look bad and we wouldn't have a chance to get money."

Minor attacked Miss Ayres' testimony about what happened on the night of June 20, when Brown is accused of taking her to a motel room. The attorney asked if she told Miss White that Brown "took me over on St. Clair" and that she was afraid to go home because "I had been to a lot of parties."

Brown sat expressionless during the cross-examination. During court breaks he chatted with friends and admirers.

Municipal Court Judge Blanche Krupansky adjourned the trial until Monday at 9 a.m., when Miss Ayres' mother, Mrs. Barbara Ayres, is expected to be called by the prosecution.

Florists Top Central, 3-2, In 9th Frame

Riverview scored the winning run in the last of the ninth inning to edge Central Service, 3-2, Friday in the Colt League.

The winners scored single runs in the first and fifth innings but Central bounced back to knot the score with a pair of runs in the sixth.

Jerry Canne drove in both runs for Central while Buzz Arrington drove in one of Riverview's runs.

Yanks' Pepitone Given Stiff Fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Pepitone, the New York Yankees' uninhibited first baseman, was slapped with a stiff fine and benched indefinitely by Manager Johnny Keane for reporting late to the park and failing to participate in batting practice before Friday night's game with the Washington Senators.

The Yankees won 9-5 with Ray Barker, Pepitone's replacement, getting two key singles and driving in a run.

Pepitone, in a severe batting slump, was reprimanded by Keane and fined for arriving 1½ hours late. The amount of the fine was not disclosed, but was believed to be a large amount.

Although he had failed to hit a ball fairly in four times at bat against Washington Thursday night, twice fouling out with the bases full, Keane had him in Friday's original line-up.

But when the temperamental first baseman sat sulking in front of his locker throughout the batting practice session, refusing to emerge from the clubhouse, Keane scratched him off the official batting card and inserted Barker's name.

Neither Keane nor Pepitone would discuss the matter publicly. In response to inquiries Keane simply said, "I'm giving him a rest."

Pepitone, when informed that Keane was not talking, said, "Then I won't say anything either."

Although he is leading the club with 38 runs batted in, Pepitone is hitting only .258, his lowest average since he joined the Yankees in 1962.

Warren Fireman Gains Finals Of Links Play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 24-year-old Ohio fireman and a 21-year-old college student from California who make it look like the secret to golf is silence meet today in the 36-hole finals of the 40th National Public Links Golf Championship.

"I'm making no predictions," said husky, solemn Leo Zampedro of Warren, Ohio, after eliminating 19-year-old Al Bailey of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, 2 and 1 Friday in the 36-hole semifinals over the North Park golf course.

It was the longest sentence Zampedro spoke all day.

Zampedro meets 21-year-old Arne Dokka of Studio City, Calif., who defeated Jim Schroder, 21, of San Francisco, 4 and 3.

Dokka is a business and finance student at California State College at Los Angeles.

Although Zampedro, former football fullback at Colorado State, spots Dokka 40 pounds, both are big hitters.

Dokka hit what probably was the longest drive of the tournament in the quarter-finals. With a slight trailing wind, he left himself a 20-yard pitch on the 424-yard 18th.

Zampedro hit several drives that were well beyond 300 yards, but had trouble keeping them on North Park's rockhard, baked-out fairways.

Chiefs Win On One-Hitter By Needham

Big Kim Needham fired a one hitter at the hard hitting Hammondsville Red Sox to give the Salineville Chiefs a 1-0 victory in the HIH League Friday.

While giving up one hit, Needham fanned 15 batters on his way to victory. Tim Ferbee pitched a strong game as he allowed only three hits.

The Hammondsville Yankees scored a 20-5 victory over the Salineville Dodgers with Mark Grafton the winning hurler. Mike Patterson clubbed a home run with two teammates aboard to pace the Yankees attack.

The Highlandtown Colts were a 13-3 winner over Highlandtown Apaches. Mike Lewis was on the mound for the Colts and Chick Jarvis was the loser.

Rookies Awed Over Kicking Of 'The Toe'

HIRAM, Ohio (AP) — The "Toe" is back at it again.

Lou "The Toe" Groza, Cleveland Browns highest - scoring tackle, was booting the ball between the uprights from outside the 45-yard line Friday, and rookies were awed.

The 41-year-old lineman and kicking specialist is opening his 19th season with the National Football League pro football champions seems to be showing his old form again from the kicking tee both on kickoffs and field goals.

One of the dazzled rookies was Dave Lee, a 6-foot-4, 220-pound punter and place kicker from Louisiana Tech. He also may work out at the slot end position.

Groza, last of the original Browns, tips the scales this season at 253—a bit on the lean side for offenive tackle.

Coach Blanton Collier, watching Groza's kicking exhibition, said, "People keep talking about Groza being too old for the job—I don't care if he's 51 if he can kick like that."

The Browns will practice twice today and then take off Saturday night and Sunday.

Palmer Ready To Charge Devlin In Canadian Open

TORONTO (AP) — Arnold Palmer was set today to stage one of his old time fast finishes and win the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship.

The belter from Latrobe, Pa., started the final round of the 72-hole tourney with a 207, two strokes behind the 205 of the leader, Bruce Devlin of Australia, playing out of Hilton Head Island, S.C.

But Arnie has shown improvement in every round over the 6,828-yard Mississaugua course and, unless his play falls off, he could easily make up the two-stroke deficit.

Palmer shot a par 70 in the first round Wednesday, a 69 Thursday and a 68 Friday. His 68 enabled him to make up three strokes on Devlin, who took a one-over-par 71 after a 68 opening day and a second round 66.

Big Jack Nicklaus, the Masters champ from Columbus, Ohio, also is in a spot for a winning finish, although he missed a chance to take the lead or tie Devlin when he posted a two-over-par 72. That dropped him into a tie with Palmer at 207.

Mason Rudolph, of Clarksville, Tenn., and Gene Littler of Las Vegas, Nev., can't be counted out, either. Each shot a 69 Friday to make it a four-way tie at 207.

In the event of a tie for first place, a sudden death playoff will start immediately.

Scafide's Gains On Leaders In Chester Softball League

Scafide's Carry Out drew within a half game of the league leading Chester Merchants by handing the Merchants a 5-2 setback Friday night in the Chester Softball Loop.

A two-run error gave Scafide's the lead in the opening inning while a home run by Jim Cerasi with a mate on base added two more in the third inning.

The final run came in the seventh when Bob Swogger slammed a roundtripper.

Chink McCauley hurled the victory giving up three hits as Jack Evans, the loser, gave up four hits and fanned nine.

The Chester Merchants will meet Gallagher's Monday.

Frank Crosetti, who has coached with the New York Yankees since 1947, batted .245 in 1,682 games with the Yankees. He first joined them in 1932.

Koufax Turns Hitter In Recording 16th Victory

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's taken Sandy Koufax 10 years, but he's finally made it.

As a hitter.

Koufax, one of the best pitchers in baseball but previously one of the worst hitters, continued his surprising batting pace Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-0 and remained just four percentage points behind National League-leading Cincinnati.

The 29-year-old Dodger ace rapped two key singles, setting up two runs and scoring the other.

The two-hit game, his fourth of the season and second in a row, rocketed his batting average to .227 with 15 hits in 66 times at bat. Never before has Koufax collected more than seven hits in a season. Never before has he batted better than .123.

With two out in the second inning, Jim Lefebvre singled. Instead of finding Koufax an easy third out, Cub pitcher Larry Jackson found the ball sailing into center field for a single.

Lefebvre stopped at second, then scored as Ernie Banks let Maury Wills' grounder get by him for an error. Koufax followed across as Jim Gilliam singled.

Then, in the sixth, Lefebvre walked with two out, and this time Koufax lined a single up the middle. Lefebvre again moved to second, then scooted home on Wills' single.

Oh yes. The victory was Koufax' 10th straight and 16th of the season — high in the majors — against three defeats. He posted his third shutout and lowered his earned run average to 2.02 while completing his 15th game in 22 starts.

He also extended his National League record by reaching 200 strikeouts for the fifth consecutive year. He fanned nine, giving him a major league-leading total of 204, just 102 away from his National League record of 306.

Elsewhere in the league, Cincinnati knocked off Philadelphia 5-1, Milwaukee crushed Pittsburgh 12-2, St. Louis trimmed New York 8-5 and San Francisco nipped Houston 2-1.

Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis pitched a five-hitter for his 13th victory against four defeats. One of the Philadelphia hits was Johnny Callison's 18th home run in the ninth inning. The Reds scored two runs against Jim Bunning, 10-6, in the first when Dick Stuart dropped a two-out throw from Cookie Rojas.

Wade Blasingame scattered 10 hits for Milwaukee, bringing his record to 10-7, and socked two doubles. Rico Carty drove in three runs as the Braves handed Pittsburgh's Bob Veale his seventh setback against nine victories.

St. Louis erupted for six runs in the sixth inning, three on errors by Al Jackson and Roy McMillan, erasing a 4-2 New York lead. Bob Gibson brought his record to 11-7 although he gave up home runs to Charley Smith, Jesse Gonder, Johnny Lewis and Jim Hickman.

Bob Shaw held Houston to two hits through seven innings, one of them Joe Morgan's home run, and three Giant relievers held the Astros hitless the rest of the way. Dick Schofield singled across the winning run in San Francisco's two-run seventh inning.

Brown Leads Off 10th With Homer

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Let's say you've got this pitcher who's gone seven innings and given up just three hits and you've got a 3-0 lead and then he gives up one more hit. So what do you do?

Bill Rigney lifted him.

And he lost it.

The Chicago White Sox, delighted with Mr. Rigney's quick hook Friday night, called on Floyd Robinson and Eddie Fisher for key performances, quickly tied the Los Angeles Angels after George Brunet had been lifted and finally won it in the 11th, 4-3.

The victory lifted the Sox to third place, 4½ games back of the American League-leading Minnesota Twins and only one-half game back of the second place Cleveland Indians.

Kansas City bombed Minnesota 10-2, Cleveland edged Boston 4-3 in 10 innings, New York took Washington 9-5 and Baltimore edged Detroit 2-1 in 11 innings, all in night games.

In the National League, also all at night, Sandy Koufax and the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Chicago 3-0, San Francisco edged Houston 2-1, Cincinnati took Philadelphia 5-1, Milwaukee bombed Pittsburgh 12-2, and St. Louis beat the New York Mets 12-2.

The clutch performances of Fisher and Robinson were the chief reasons Angel manager Rigney was being exposed to some severe second guessing today on his move in taking out Brunet at a key juncture.

Brunet had a 3-0 lead and had allowed only three White Sox hits through seven innings. But the White Sox' Ken Berry led off the eighth with a single and Rigney decided Brunet had had enough.

He sent in Bob Lee. Another single and Smoky Burgess' sacrifice fly produced one run and another single sent Lee to the showers. Ed Sukla relieved him, got one man out, and then Robinson's pinch double drove in two runs that tied it and sent it into extra innings.

Robinson also tripled in the winning run in the 11th, beating Dean Chance and giving Eddie Fisher his 11th victory — most in the league — against three losses.

Larry Brown's homer leading off the 10th inning won it for the Indians and handed Boston's Dick Radatz his seventh loss. The Indians had taken a 3-2 lead in the sixth on homers by Fred Whitfield and Leon Wagner, but Boston tied it in the ninth on Bob Tillman's run-scoring single.

Hector Lopez led the Yankees against Washington, driving in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a bases-loaded single, the latter in New York's five-run third. A solo homer by Bobby Richardson in the fourth proved to be the winner.

Kansas City rushed in four runs after two were out in the first inning and romped in from there, adding runs in clusters of three in the third and sixth against the stunned Twins. Two walks and six singles got the A's started after two were out.

Baltimore tied Detroit 1-1 on Boog Powell's homer in the seventh inning and won it in the 11th when Brooks Robinson led off with a double and scored on two wild pitches by Larry Sherry.

Brown's Accuser Sticks To Story

CLEVELAND (AP) — The sensational trial of pro football star Jim Brown has been highlighted by a battle of wills between defense attorney Norman S. Minor and Brown's 18-year-old accuser, Miss Brenda Ayres.

Miss Ayres, the shapely high school dropout who accused Brown of slapping her in a motel room, testified over a period of three days in the assault and battery case.

Minor pounded at her all day Friday in cross - examination, trying to trip her into admitting that a shakedown attempt was behind the charges she filed with police.

But Miss Ayres, who left the stand in tears the two previous days, denied steadfastly that allegations raised by the attorney were true.

The questioning concerned an alleged telephone conversation June 21 between Miss Ayres and Miss Paula White, 16, who introduced Miss Ayres to the Cleveland Browns' all-star fullback. Miss Ayres refused to admit to any conversations with Miss White about trapping Brown for money.

She did admit accepting a $60 gift from the 29-year-old Brown, who is married and the father of three. She said Brown gave her the money to visit a sick uncle in Dayton.

"There is a big dollar sign hanging all over the picture," Minor said, but not a word from the state's star witness supported his contention.

Among questions fired at Miss Ayres was whether she once told Miss White she liked Brown and thought she "could get something out of him." And whether she told Miss White that Brown "will drop it (the case) and he'll have to pay a whole lot of money." The witness answered with a firm, "No, I did not.

"Didn't you say, 'You help me and you'll get something out of it?'" Minor demanded.

"Mr. Minor, I have already stated that I did not talk to Paula White that day—June 21, Miss Ayres replied.

She answered no, also, when Minor asked her if she told Miss White that her mother told her "it would be necessary for me to tell some lies and that if they let Jim do all the talking he could clear himself and I would look bad and we wouldn't have a chance to get money."

Minor attacked Miss Ayres' testimony about what happened on the night of June 20, when Brown is accused of taking her to a motel room. The attorney asked if she told Miss White that Brown "took me over on St. Clair" and that she was afraid to go home because "I had been to a lot of parties."

Brown sat expressionless during the cross-examination. During court breaks he chatted with friends and admirers.

Municipal Court Judge Blanche Krupansky adjourned the trial until Monday at 9 a.m., when Miss Ayres' mother, Mrs. Barbara Ayres, is expected to be called by the prosecution.

Florists Top Central, 3-2, In 9th Frame

Riverview scored the winning run in the last of the ninth inning to edge Central Service, 3-2, Friday in the Colt League.

The winners scored single runs in the first and fifth innings but Central bounced back to knot the score with a pair of runs in the sixth.

Jerry Canne drove in both runs for Central while Buzz Arrington drove in one of Riverview's runs.

Sevy's Shows Big Inning In Pony Victory

Sevy's Drugs came up with a five run fourth inning that carried to a 7-3 victory over George Bright's Friday in the Pony League.

Cornell was the winning pitcher and allowed only three hits while Smith, the loser, gave up four hits but his teammates committed four errors. Cornell fanned 10 batters but was hit by wildness and walked nine.

Brown paced Sevy's with two hits.

In another contest, Woodbine scored an 8-4 victory over Burbick's by coming from behind with three runs in the fifth and four in the sixth inning.

Logston was the winning pitcher and gave up five hits while his teammates committed five errors. He also was the hitting star with three hits including a double. Jim Musuraca led Burbick's with two hits.

May Help Missions To Planets

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robot fireflies in space — using chemicals from the "love lanterns" of real fireflies—may indirectly help future missions to the planets.

At least 10,000 fireflies, collected by 4-H Club youngsters in Florida, are being used by space agency scientists to develop an instrument to determine just how far out in space living microbes can be found.

Employing the same two chemicals which cause the tail lamps of fireflies to light up when they're in the mood for love, the instrument would be shot aloft on a rocket or an earth-orbiting satellite.

The space agency hopes to launch the first one late this year aboard a rocket climbing 100 miles.

Wherever the space probe encountered living microbes, the impact would cause the robot firefly to light up — and transmit a radio message to the earth.

Scientists of the Goddard Space Flight Center say the project could be a help to future manned or unmanned missions to the planets in this way:

If it is found that the outer limit of microbe life is less than the 50-mile limit generally estimated by scientists, the shielding shrouds on inerplanetary spacecraft — designed partly to prevent contaminating the planets with any earth-type organisms — could be jettisoned earlier. That weight saving could add to the payload and help the mission.

Conversely, they indicate, if the earth's atmospheric microbes extend much beyond 50 miles, shielding precautions would have to be intensified. The spacecraft could be sterilized of earth-microbes before it was launched, but it still would have to be shielded against those in the earth's atmosphere.

The key to the artificial firefly instrument is the presence in microbes — as in all living things — of a chemical called adenosine triphosphate, or ATP for short.

This chemical — rated as the closest thing to the spark of life yet isolated by scientists — is a wondrous medium of energy-transfer in human, animal, plant and microbial systems. Without it, for example, the human heart couldn't beat.

In firefly's tail lamp ATP — upon getting a nerve system signal from a love-sick firefly — triggers the illumination of two other chemicals. They are appropriately called luciferin and luciferase.

In the firefly experiments at Goddard in nearby Greenbelt, Md., scientists extract the latter two chemicals from fireflies sent by Florida kids. The fireflies are shipped dead, frozen in dry ice, but their chemicals are still active.

Goddard scientists have developed a laboratory-based instrument capable of detecting one-quadrillionth of a gram of ATP — only slightly more than might be present in a single living cell.

They say it's conceivable that the Goddard work could have important effects on medical research on earth, even helping determine whether malfunctioning or nonfunctioning ATP plays any role in such maladies as cancer and mental disease.

3 Vets, Newcomer Battle For Ohio Amateur Title

By HAL PARIS

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Three veteran golfers and an unheralded Akron competitor who learned how to play only eight years ago battled it out today in the semifinal round of the 59th Ohio Amateur Golf Tournament.

Two-time titlist Tony Blom, the 37-year-old Cincinnati steel salesman bidding to become only the fifth man in history to win the event three or more times, faced Bill Bosshard, the Akron upstart, in one of two 36-hole matches.

In the other, 47-year-old Steve Pipoly of Youngstown, a building supply dealer, met hometown favorite Dick Flockenzier, a 39-year-old manufacturer's agent.

The two winners go another gruelling 36 holes in Sunday's finale.

Flockenzier, putting superbly and playing his home course, the Westbrook Country Club's 6,414-yard layout, where he has won the club championship four times, scored a dramatic victory in Friday's quarterfinal round when he shaded Dr. Harry Duccilli of Cincinnati, 1 up in 21 holes.

The end came on the third extra hole when Flockenzier dropped in a short putt for a par while Duccilli, a 41-year-old physician who lost in the 1959 finals to Blom, took a bogey.

In Friday's other matches, Pipoly, who lost in the 1954 semis to a fellow named Arnold Palmer, ousted the tourney's medalist Dr. Mel Woelfling, the 32-year-old dentist from Toledo; Blom had little trouble disposing of Joe Miller Jr. of Hamilton, 3 and 1, and Bosshard had too much for 19-year-old Jim Nordstrom of Ashland as he posted a 3 and 2 verdict.

Pipoly, who has won the Cleveland district amateur three times, battled Woelfling on even terms almost all the way. They halved 15 of their 18 holes with Pipoly winning No. 6 and Woelfling, the Toledo district champ, taking No. 8.

The Youngstown performer who said, "I'm in good shape and ready for 36 more holes," won No. 12 with a par to take the lead for good and finally closed out the match by sinking a six-foot downhill putt on No. 18.

Flockenzier rallied from two back and finally forged ahead with birdies on Nos. 12 and 13 and went 2 up with a par on No. 15.

But Duccilli wasn't through. He won No. 16 with a par and then rolled in an 11-foot putt on the final hole for another bird to deadlock the match.

Blom led all the way against Miller, an automobile dealer, and finished the match by chipping in a 25-foot shot on No. 17.

Bosshard, the 1964 Akron district king, had little trouble against Nordstrom, the Ohio University freshman. He never trailed, was 1 up at the turn and took Nos. 10 and 14 to wrap it up.

Lucky Better Wins $74,221 At Trotters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — One unidentified bettor won $74,221.80 Friday night by picking the four winners of the Twin Double at Liberty Bell Harness Park.

The Twin Double payoff was the second highest ever at the three-year-old track.

On opening night this season a bettor won $74,459.20.

Friday night's winning 4-3-4-6 combination consisted of Ace Quinton, $18.40, in the sixth race, Singing Sam, $13.80, in the seventh, Scout's Honor, $19, in the eighth and Solar Wave, $36, in the ninth.

Coach Billy Martin of the Minnesota Twins compiled a .257 batting average in 1,021 major league games.

Building Figure Dies

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Lorenzo C. Dilks, 90, prominent in bridge and shipbuilding in New York, Chicago, Detroit and Wilmington, N.C., died in a hospital Friday night. He was a native of Mantua, N.J. During World War I, he introduced the practice of fabricating steel for ship hulls at the plant.

Sevy's Shows Big Inning In Pony Victory

Sevy's Drugs came up with a five run fourth inning that carried to a 7-3 victory over George Bright's Friday in the Pony League.

Cornell was the winning pitcher and allowed only three hits while Smith, the loser, gave up four hits but his teammates committed four errors. Cornell fanned 10 batters but was hit by wildness and walked nine.

Brown paced Sevy's with two hits.

In another contest, Woodbine scored an 8-4 victory over Burbick's by coming from behind with three runs in the fifth and four in the sixth inning.

Logston was the winning pitcher and gave up five hits while his teammates committed five errors. He also was the hitting star with three hits including a double. Jim Musuraca led Burbick's with two hits.

May Help Missions To Planets

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robot fireflies in space — using chemicals from the "love lanterns" of real fireflies—may indirectly help future missions to the planets.

At least 10,000 fireflies, collected by 4-H Club youngsters in Florida, are being used by space agency scientists to develop an instrument to determine just how far out in space living microbes can be found.

Employing the same two chemicals which cause the tail lamps of fireflies to light up when they're in the mood for love, the instrument would be shot aloft on a rocket or an earth-orbiting satellite.

The space agency hopes to launch the first one late this year aboard a rocket climbing 100 miles.

Wherever the space probe encountered living microbes, the impact would cause the robot firefly to light up — and transmit a radio message to the earth.

Scientists of the Goddard Space Flight Center say the project could be a help to future manned or unmanned missions to the planets in this way:

If it is found that the outer limit of microbe life is less than the 50-mile limit generally estimated by scientists, the shielding shrouds on inerplanetary spacecraft — designed partly to prevent contaminating the planets with any earth-type organisms — could be jettisoned earlier. That weight saving could add to the payload and help the mission.

Conversely, they indicate, if the earth's atmospheric microbes extend much beyond 50 miles, shielding precautions would have to be intensified. The spacecraft could be sterilized of earth-microbes before it was launched, but it still would have to be shielded against those in the earth's atmosphere.

The key to the artificial firefly instrument is the presence in microbes — as in all living things — of a chemical called adenosine triphosphate, or ATP for short.

This chemical — rated as the closest thing to the spark of life yet isolated by scientists — is a wondrous medium of energy-transfer in human, animal, plant and microbial systems. Without it, for example, the human heart couldn't beat.

In firefly's tail lamp ATP — upon getting a nerve system signal from a love-sick firefly — triggers the illumination of two other chemicals. They are appropriately called luciferin and luciferase.

In the firefly experiments at Goddard in nearby Greenbelt, Md., scientists extract the latter two chemicals from fireflies sent by Florida kids. The fireflies are shipped dead, frozen in dry ice, but their chemicals are still active.

Goddard scientists have developed a laboratory-based instrument capable of detecting one-quadrillionth of a gram of ATP — only slightly more than might be present in a single living cell.

They say it's conceivable that the Goddard work could have important effects on medical research on earth, even helping determine whether malfunctioning or nonfunctioning ATP plays any role in such maladies as cancer and mental disease.

Youth, 19, Indicted In Slaying Of Wife

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — A been returned against James Tucker, 19, of Akron in the knife slaying of Lance D. Williams Jr., 17, of Akron.

The charge against Tucker, indicted Friday by the Portage County grand jury, was reduced from second-degree murder. Williams was stabbed to death in a parking lot at a teen-age dance spot near Brimfield.

3 Vets, Newcomer Battle For Ohio Amateur Title

By HAL PARIS

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Three veteran golfers and an unheralded Akron competitor who learned how to play only eight years ago battled it out today in the semifinal round of the 59th Ohio Amateur Golf Tournament.

Two-time titlist Tony Blom, the 37-year-old Cincinnati steel salesman bidding to become only the fifth man in history to win the event three or more times, faced Bill Bosshard, the Akron upstart, in one of two 36-hole matches.

In the other, 47-year-old Steve Pipoly of Youngstown, a building supply dealer, met hometown favorite Dick Flockenzier, a 39-year-old manufacturer's agent.

The two winners go another gruelling 36 holes in Sunday's finale.

Flockenzier, putting superbly and playing his home course, the Westbrook Country Club's 6,414-yard layout, where he has won the club championship four times, scored a dramatic victory in Friday's quarterfinal round when he shaded Dr. Harry Duccilli of Cincinnati, 1 up in 21 holes.

The end came on the third extra hole when Flockenzier dropped in a short putt for a par while Duccilli, a 41-year-old physician who lost in the 1959 finals to Blom, took a bogey.

In Friday's other matches, Pipoly, who lost in the 1954 semis to a fellow named Arnold Palmer, ousted the tourney's medalist Dr. Mel Woelfling, the 32-year-old dentist from Toledo; Blom had little trouble disposing of Joe Miller Jr. of Hamilton, 3 and 1, and Bosshard had too much for 19-year-old Jim Nordstrom of Ashland as he posted a 3 and 2 verdict.

Pipoly, who has won the Cleveland district amateur three times, battled Woelfling on even terms almost all the way. They halved 15 of their 18 holes with Pipoly winning No. 6 and Woelfling, the Toledo district champ, taking No. 8.

The Youngstown performer who said, "I'm in good shape and ready for 36 more holes," won No. 12 with a par to take the lead for good and finally closed out the match by sinking a six-foot downhill putt on No. 18.

Flockenzier rallied from two back and finally forged ahead with birdies on Nos. 12 and 13 and went 2 up with a par on No. 15.

But Duccilli wasn't through. He won No. 16 with a par and then rolled in an 11-foot putt on the final hole for another bird to deadlock the match.

Blom led all the way against Miller, an automobile dealer, and finished the match by chipping in a 25-foot shot on No. 17.

Bosshard, the 1964 Akron district king, had little trouble against Nordstrom, the Ohio University freshman. He never trailed, was 1 up at the turn and took Nos. 10 and 14 to wrap it up.

Building Figure Dies

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Lorenzo C. Dilks, 90, prominent in bridge and shipbuilding in New York, Chicago, Detroit and Wilmington, N.C., died in a hospital Friday night. He was a native of Mantua, N.J. During World War I, he introduced the practice of fabricating steel for ship hulls at the plant.

Lucky Better Wins $74,221 At Trotters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — One unidentified bettor won $74,221.80 Friday night by picking the four winners of the Twin Double at Liberty Bell Harness Park.

The Twin Double payoff was the second highest ever at the three-year-old track.

On opening night this season a bettor won $74,459.20.

Friday night's winning 4-3-4-6 combination consisted of Ace Quinton, $18.40, in the sixth race, Singing Sam, $13.80, in the seventh, Scout's Honor, $19, in the eighth and Solar Wave, $36, in the ninth.

Coach Billy Martin of the Minnesota Twins compiled a .257 batting average in 1,021 major league games.

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN memory of "our Mom," Mrs. Ethel Rowley, who passed away one year ago, July 18th, 1964.
What is God's most precious gift?
The one beyond compare.
Bestowed on all, both rich and poor, a priceless gift most rare.
It lives within our hearts,
Through bright and darkest days.
That gives us peace and hope and love.
Through all life's tangled ways.
It is a pure and shining light,
A wondrous gift of love,
That comes to everyone on earth,
From Him who dwells above.
The gift that we all prize
Far more than any other,
'Tis God's greatest gift to man,
The angel we call "Mother."
The Children
and Grandchildren

IN memory of our beloved husband and father, Colonel Gabriel Van Ludmann de Hadusfelvi, who died 3 years ago today.
Forever live those who are remembered, only those die who are forgotten.
Lully, Gabrielle, Gabriel, Jr.

2 IN MEMORIAM

IN memory of "our Mom," Mrs. Ethel Rowley, who passed away one year ago, July 18th, 1964.
What is God's most precious gift?
The one beyond compare.
Bestowed on all, both rich and poor, a priceless gift most rare.
It lives within our hearts,
Through bright and darkest days.
That gives us peace and hope and love.
Through all life's tangled ways.
It is a pure and shining light,
A wondrous gift of love,
That comes to everyone on earth,
From Him who dwells above.
The gift that we all prize
Far more than any other,
'Tis God's greatest gift to man,
The angel we call "Mother."
The Children
and Grandchildren

IN memory of our beloved husband and father, Colonel Gabriel Van Ludmann de Hadusfelvi, who died 3 years ago today.
Forever live those who are remembered, only those die who are forgotten.

Q. — Please comment on the problem of waffles that stick in the iron?

A. — They usually stick for one of the following reasons: The waffle iron was not properly cleaned. The lid was lifted before the waffle was baked. The batter was poured before the iron was hot, the grids were not properly seasoned, or it may be that the recipe doesn't call for enough fat. Try adding one or two extra tablespoons of fat.

Q. — How can I camouflage or cover up tack and nail holes in light - colored wallpaper?

A. — With a little dry cornstarch. Just press a bit of this into the hole, then rub over it lightly with your fingertip to smooth it out.

Q. — How can I remove rust spots from a ceramic tile floor?

A. — With a washing solution composed of one part of sodium citrate to six parts of glycerin, adding water to thin the mixture, then mixing with sufficient whiting to form a paste. Spread this compound over the rust spots in a quick coating.

Q. — What is a good way to make use of every bit of catsup in a bottle without waste?

A. — When you have seemingly emptied the bottle, pour into it the correct amount of salad oil, vinegar, and seasoning for French dressing, and shake vigorously. That bit of catsup will add a piquant flavor.

Q. — How can I induce a sparkle in chinaware and glassware when washing?

A. — Add three or four tablespoons of vinegar to the hot water in which you rinse these items. It cuts the soapy film, and your dishes will be dry and sparkling with only a swish of the towel.

Junior Editors Quiz on OLD SALTS

QUESTION: Why are seamen called "old salts?"

ANSWER: We don't think of all people who sail on ships as old salts, for there are many people at sea, especially on large modern vessels, who live almost as sheltered an existence as we do on land. A true old salt is a seafaring man who has lived most of his life exposed to wind and spray. His face will be weathered to a leathery brown. His eyes will be narrowed from much squinting at the far distance and trying to peer his way through fog and rain storms. Our artist gives us his own particular conception of an old salt and the natural forces which have made him one.

No. 1 shows why the ocean is salty: it is from the minerals ceaselessly being washed down into it by the rivers. In (2) King Neptune is taking the bitter, briny water and flinging a galeful of it at a small fishing boat whose business it is to take the weather as it comes. Cold, stinging spray hits the face of the man fighting with the wheel. Enough years of this and our helmsman (3) ranks as a true old salt, a rugged character of the type which used to man the old sailing ships — a symbol of hardihood, persistance and courage.

FOR YOU TO DO: Think of some other examples of men — and women too — who do daring and courageous things in our modern world.

O'Hara Talks To Lions Club

Atty. Delmar T. O'Hara, owner of the W. C. Bunting Co. in East End, discussed his relatively new National College Supply Co., a firm which manufactures paddles for colleges, fraternities and sororities, during the Friday noon luncheon meeting of the Lions Club at the Travelers Hotel.

Under the management of Ira Sayre, a Chester resident who was formerly a shop instructor at East Liverpool High School, the concern is located in the basement of O'Hara's office building at the corner of 3rd and Main Sts. in Wellsville.

Other articles the company makes include plaques, book ends, plastics and pipe holders, all with crests and school or organization names engraved.

Dick Judge, program chairman, introduced O'Hara.

It was announced to the 26 members present that Russell Phillis, superintendent of the County Home near Lisbon, has extended the club an invitation to visit the home at its convenience.

Next Friday's program will include a talk by John Hedrick, head of the Kent State Academic Center here.

Guests were David N. Roller of Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio, Jack Hansen of Westminster, Calif., a former East Liverpool resident, and Herbert Anderson of 2001 Lisbon St.

Fire Chief, Aide Are Selected At Irondale Meeting

James Crawford was elected fire chief of the Irondale firemen at a meeting Wednesday night. Dale Tice was named assistant chief.

The firemen voted to continue the weekly bake sales and socials which are held Fridays from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

Donna Kay Tolson, Connie Tolson, Jana Kay Gill, Mary Alice Fortune, Leah Board and Stevie Frampton are attending the Methodist church camp at Camp Aldersgate.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patton have concluded a tour of the New England states. They visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Patton of Rome, N. Y., and Mrs. Patton's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of Silver Springs, Md. While on the trip, they observed their 25th wedding anniversary

Four Insurance Men At New York Meeting

They are Manager W. A. Kent, James Bowen, Robert Murray and Albert Abdalla.

The four compiled exceptional sales and service records last year and are among the top-ranking members of Metropolitan's staff of 30,000 field representatives in the United States and Canada.

The local office has a staff of two assistant managers, 19 agents and four clerks under the supervision of Kent.

Mighty Mississippi To Blush Bright Red

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The mighty Mississippi will blush bright red Sunday night.

Engineers of the U.S. Public Health Service plan to dump eight gallons of fluorescent red dye into the river.

The dye, harmless to boats and wildlife, is being used to determine the rate of water flow.

Engineers said the river will run red for several miles before the dye dissipates.

Miss Roush, a 1965 graduate of East Liverpool High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl A. Roush, 717 Edwards Ave. The new class at the nursing school will start Sunday. The group has given eight complete scholarships and at present has a junior student enrolled. It sponsors a tag day annually each spring to provide proceeds for the project.

Warns He'll Not Tolerate Violence

Premier Charges Leftists Instigated Athens Rioting

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Premier George Athanasiadis Novas charged today that leftists had instigated Friday night's anti - government rioting here and he warned that his new regime will not tolerate violence.

Athanasiadis Novas summoned his 15-member cabinet to discuss the crisis and try to strengthen his controversial government with more cabinet appointments.

The Greek capital appeared quiet this morning after the violent demonstrations in support of ousted premier George Papandreou.

More than a score of demonstrators were arrested and 110 persons—half of them police — were reported injured in sporadic outbursts here during the night. Other anti - government demonstrations, involving thousands, were staged Friday in Salonika and elsewhere.

Extra police patrols were on duty around Athens today to guard against further demonstrations.

Athanasiadis Novas said he would have the demonstrations investigated because he had reports that Center Union party deputies were involved. The government party is a broad grouping that includes elements ranging from the left to right.

The rioting broke out shortly after King Constantine had sworn in Novas' new Center Union government and departed by plane for his Corfu Island summer palace.

The 25-year-old monarch apparently had thought that Greece's worst crisis since the Communist civil war fo 1947-1949 was past. Twenty-four hours earlier he had fired 77-year-old Papandreou in a dispute over the premier's proposed purge of politically active officers in the army.

Athanasiadis Novas, 72, managed to put together a 15-man Cabinet in one day. It included six ministers who had served under Papandreou, who, like Athanasiadis Novas, is a member of the Center Union party. Three more party members were expected to announce today that they would join the new government.

Under the constitution, the new government must reconvene Parliament by Aug. 1 to seek a vote of confidence.

The Center Union party has 170 seats in the 300-member Parliament, but a party split conceivably could defeat the confidence vote and force new elections.

It appeared, however, that the new premier also would win support from the major opposition party, the National Radical Union which has 99 seats. The Progressive party, with nine seats, also was expected to support Athanasiadis Novas.

Papandreou said in a broadcast statement Friday that "from today, a new unrelenting struggle for democracy begins. I assure the people we shall return to office."

Garfield Heights Girl Wins Talent Phase Of Miss Ohio

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Pert Patricia Ann Mazeppa of Garfield Heights wowed an enthusiastic audience of 1,250 persons Friday night with her piano rendition of Chopin's "Scherzo" in winning the talent division of the Miss Ohio Pageant.

Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mazeppa, wore a striking white gown with a long red velvet streamer.

The 19 - year-old Oberlin College coed, who has performed with recording artist Peter Nero and on Cleveland area television, is entered in the pageant as Miss Greater Cleveland.

Nancy Borden, a 21-year-old statuesque brunette representing Miami University, was the winner in the swimsuit and evening gown competition Friday night.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Borden of Roachdale, Ind., Nancy stands 5-feet-6 and measures 34-22-36. She is an education major and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Miami.

Friday night's activities came in the preliminaries to tonight's selection of a new Miss Ohio for 1965.

In judging Thursday, Sharon Phillian of Delaware, Miss Central Ohio, won the talent contest, and Judith Ann Duncan, Miss Portsmouth, won the swimsuit division.

Miss Bowling Green State University, Sharon Marton of Fremont—who bears a striking resemblance to Jackie Mayer of Sandusky, the Miss Ohio who advanced to the Miss America title two years ago—appeared to be the favorite of the crowds for this year's title.

A capacity crowd is expected for the finals tonight in the ballroom at nearby Cedar Point.

Agreement's Reached In Gas Strike

CLEVELAND (AP)—A tentative agreement between the East Ohio Gas Co. and members of the Natural Gas Workers Union has brought the month - old strike nearer an end.

The tentative agreement was reached Friday night when the officials of Local 555 agreed to an East Ohio proposal. Details were not disclosed.

Robert W. Ramsdell, president of East Ohio, told a joint meeting of union and company executives that he thought the proposal was "fair and equitable." He also expressed his appreciation for the public's cooperation during the strike.

John D. Nagle, president of the local, said terms of the proposal will be printed and sent to members of the union. He said he expected a vote early next week.

The company and the union agreed that if the proposal is approved the union must give notice of returning to work at least four hours prior to midnight the night of ratification.

The strike was called June 16 after talks deadlocked over company demands for seven changes in the old contract language on non-economic items.

Musical Review Aids Beaver Cancer Fund

BEAVER FALLS — The Beaver County unit of the American Cancer Society will share in the proceeds from a musical review which will be presented next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the Regent Theater here, beginning at 8:40.

The production is "Sights and Sounds of Stereo."

"Through this project, we hope to reach our 1965 Crusade quota before the fiscal year ends Aug. 31," H. Robert Cousin of Beaver Falls, county chairman, said.

Mrs. Arthur Castelli of Midland is a member of the volunteer ticket committee.

Student Facility Due Name Of Texas Man

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A new $2.1 million facility for students of Peabody and Scaritt Colleges and Vanderbilt University will be named in honor of H. Fort Flowers, board chairman of the Differential Steel Car Co. of Findlay, Ohio.

The facility will be an addition to the Joint University Libraries. Flowers, of Houston, Tex., has been active in Vanderbilt affairs since he worked his way through the university in the early part of the century.

Scientists Hope To Save Temple From Rising Nile

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Cutting through solid rock with electronic chisels, scientists hope to save Egypt's majestic twin temples of Abu Simbel from the rising waters of the Nile.

The massive monuments, with statues of an ancient pharaoh and his pretty queen, four gods and 21 carved baboons, have greeted the rising sun for 32 centuries.

Archaeologists plan to cut the temples into blocks, hoist them 192 feet up a cliff and reassemble them.

They began cutting the stone cliffs around the temples this month. This job will take about six months, engineers say.

Then a line of carved baboons above the king's temple will be cut into 30-ton blocks and carried to a storage area on trucks and barges.

Saving Abu Simbel from the lake that will form when Egypt's immense Aswan high dam backs up the Nile is a project of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Forty-seven countries have contributed most of the $36 million cost, with the United States and Egypt bearing the brunt.

A five - nation construction team headed by the Hochtief Co. of West Germany is handling the project.

Workers and engineers cheered as the first giant chunk of rock was cut free and carried away in a truck.

Some fragile parts of the temples are being injected with special chemicals to preserve them under the surgery. Archaeologists are concerned about the towering nude statue of Queen Nefertari. Engineers say she will have scars from the operation.

As work continues on the Soviet-financed Aswan dam, the Nile is rising, but an 111-foot high, 1,200-foot long protective dam has been built around the temples to keep the water away until the salvage project is over.

Dismantling the temples is expected to take until January 1967. Each block is numbered and catalogued as it is cut free.

When the temples get their new home on the bank of Lake Nasser, they will face the rising sun and look almost exactly as they did before.

Nearby will be a tourist hotel, a small port, a hospital, a swimming pool, a museum and a tourist bazaar.

2 Minor Mishaps Are Investigated

No one was injured in two minor accidents investigated by police early today and Friday afternoon.

Cars operated by Samuel Eltringham, 37, of R.D. 2 and Robert Rocca, 20, of 717 Virginia Ave., Midland, were involved in a collision at 3:15 a.m. today on Market St. The crash damaged the rear of the Rocca car and the front end of the Eltringham vehicle.

A car driven by Lillie A. Franklin, 35, of 957 W. 8th St. hit the rear of another driven by Jerry Lee Potts, 23, of 1702 Globe St. Friday afternoon at 3:47 p.m. on Walnut St. at the intersection of High Alley.

The woman told police she started down the hill when she saw the other car backing from the alley. She said she swung out in an attempt to avoid a collision, but was unable to miss the rear of Potts' car. Potts told police he tried to pull back into the alley after someone standing nearby yelled that a car was coming down the hill.

O'Hara Talks To Lions Club

Atty. Delmar T. O'Hara, owner of the W. C. Bunting Co. in East End, discussed his relatively new National College Supply Co., a firm which manufactures paddles for colleges, fraternities and sororities, during the Friday noon luncheon meeting of the Lions Club at the Travelers Hotel.

Under the management of Ira Sayre, a Chester resident who was formerly a shop instructor at East Liverpool High School, the concern is located in the basement of O'Hara's office building at the corner of 3rd and Main Sts. in Wellsville.

Other articles the company makes include plaques, book ends, plastics and pipe holders, all with crests and school or organization names engraved.

Dick Judge, program chairman, introduced O'Hara.

It was announced to the 26 members present that Russell Phillis, superintendent of the County Home near Lisbon, has extended the club an invitation to visit the home at its convenience.

Next Friday's program will include a talk by John Hedrick, head of the Kent State Academic Center here.

Fire Chief, Aide Are Selected At Irondale Meeting

James Crawford was elected fire chief of the Irondale firemen at a meeting Wednesday night. Dale Tice was named assistant chief.

The firemen voted to continue the weekly bake sales and socials which are held Fridays from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

Donna Kay Tolson, Connie Tolson, Jana Kay Gill, Mary Alice Fortune, Leah Board and Stevie Frampton are attending the Methodist church camp at Camp Aldersgate.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patton have concluded a tour of the New England states. They visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Patton of Rome, N. Y., and Mrs. Patton's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of Silver Springs, Md. While on the trip, they observed their 25th wedding anniversary

Four Insurance Men At New York Meeting

They are Manager W. A. Kent, James Bowen, Robert Murray and Albert Abdalla.

The four compiled exceptional sales and service records last year and are among the top-ranking members of Metropolitan's staff of 30,000 field representatives in the United States and Canada.

The local office has a staff of two assistant managers, 19 agents and four clerks under the supervision of Kent.

Mighty Mississippi To Blush Bright Red

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The mighty Mississippi will blush bright red Sunday night.

Engineers of the U.S. Public Health Service plan to dump eight gallons of fluorescent red dye into the river.

The dye, harmless to boats and wildlife, is being used to determine the rate of water flow.

Engineers said the river will run red for several miles before the dye dissipates.

Warns He'll Not Tolerate Violence

Premier Charges Leftists Instigated Athens Rioting

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Premier George Athanasiadis Novas charged today that leftists had instigated Friday night's anti - government rioting here and he warned that his new regime will not tolerate violence.

Athanasiadis Novas summoned his 15-member cabinet to discuss the crisis and try to strengthen his controversial government with more cabinet appointments.

The Greek capital appeared quiet this morning after the violent demonstrations in support of ousted premier George Papandreou.

More than a score of demonstrators were arrested and 110 persons—half of them police — were reported injured in sporadic outbursts here during the night. Other anti - government demonstrations, involving thousands, were staged Friday in Salonika and elsewhere.

Extra police patrols were on duty around Athens today to guard against further demonstrations.

Athanasiadis Novas said he would have the demonstrations investigated because he had reports that Center Union party deputies were involved. The government party is a broad grouping that includes elements ranging from the left to right.

The rioting broke out shortly after King Constantine had sworn in Novas' new Center Union government and departed by plane for his Corfu Island summer palace.

The 25-year-old monarch apparently had thought that Greece's worst crisis since the Communist civil war fo 1947-1949 was past. Twenty-four hours earlier he had fired 77-year-old Papandreou in a dispute over the premier's proposed purge of politically active officers in the army.

Athanasiadis Novas, 72, managed to put together a 15-man Cabinet in one day. It included six ministers who had served under Papandreou, who, like Athanasiadis Novas, is a member of the Center Union party. Three more party members were expected to announce today that they would join the new government.

Under the constitution, the new government must reconvene Parliament by Aug. 1 to seek a vote of confidence.

The Center Union party has 170 seats in the 300-member Parliament, but a party split conceivably could defeat the confidence vote and force new elections.

It appeared, however, that the new premier also would win support from the major opposition party, the National Radical Union which has 99 seats. The Progressive party, with nine seats, also was expected to support Athanasiadis Novas.

Papandreou said in a broadcast statement Friday that "from today, a new unrelenting struggle for democracy begins. I assure the people we shall return to office."

Garfield Heights Girl Wins Talent Phase Of Miss Ohio

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Pert Patricia Ann Mazeppa of Garfield Heights wowed an enthusiastic audience of 1,250 persons Friday night with her piano rendition of Chopin's "Scherzo" in winning the talent division of the Miss Ohio Pageant.

Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mazeppa, wore a striking white gown with a long red velvet streamer.

The 19 - year-old Oberlin College coed, who has performed with recording artist Peter Nero and on Cleveland area television, is entered in the pageant as Miss Greater Cleveland.

Nancy Borden, a 21-year-old statuesque brunette representing Miami University, was the winner in the swimsuit and evening gown competition Friday night.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Borden of Roachdale, Ind., Nancy stands 5-feet-6 and measures 34-22-36. She is an education major and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Miami.

Friday night's activities came in the preliminaries to tonight's selection of a new Miss Ohio for 1965.

In judging Thursday, Sharon Phillian of Delaware, Miss Central Ohio, won the talent contest, and Judith Ann Duncan, Miss Portsmouth, won the swimsuit division.

Miss Bowling Green State University, Sharon Marton of Fremont—who bears a striking resemblance to Jackie Mayer of Sandusky, the Miss Ohio who advanced to the Miss America title two years ago—appeared to be the favorite of the crowds for this year's title.

A capacity crowd is expected for the finals tonight in the ballroom at nearby Cedar Point.

Agreement's Reached In Gas Strike

CLEVELAND (AP)—A tentative agreement between the East Ohio Gas Co. and members of the Natural Gas Workers Union has brought the month - old strike nearer an end.

The tentative agreement was reached Friday night when the officials of Local 555 agreed to an East Ohio proposal. Details were not disclosed.

Robert W. Ramsdell, president of East Ohio, told a joint meeting of union and company executives that he thought the proposal was "fair and equitable." He also expressed his appreciation for the public's cooperation during the strike.

John D. Nagle, president of the local, said terms of the proposal will be printed and sent to members of the union. He said he expected a vote early next week.

The company and the union agreed that if the proposal is approved the union must give notice of returning to work at least four hours prior to midnight the night of ratification.

The strike was called June 16 after talks deadlocked over company demands for seven changes in the old contract language on non-economic items.

Musical Review Aids Beaver Cancer Fund

BEAVER FALLS — The Beaver County unit of the American Cancer Society will share in the proceeds from a musical review which will be presented next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the Regent Theater here, beginning at 8:40.

The production is "Sights and Sounds of Stereo."

"Through this project, we hope to reach our 1965 Crusade quota before the fiscal year ends Aug. 31," H. Robert Cousin of Beaver Falls, county chairman, said.

Mrs. Arthur Castelli of Midland is a member of the volunteer ticket committee.
